DOCTOR OF THE FUTURE WILL BE INSPECTOR

NEW YORK, March 4.—"The man who first said: 'An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure,' spoke even more wisely than he knew. He put up a sign-post that an ever-increasing number of doctors are following and laid the foundation for a community in which the family doctor will be far different and far more useful individual than he is today."

comes from. If necessary he will visit the dairy that furnishes the milk, the meat shop and other provision sources. He will know the school hours the children have, what games they play and he will try to know all about their personal habits. If he is the right kind of a doctor he would rather hear about the plumbing in his patient's house and the way the collar is arranged, and whether any of the servants have a suspicious cough or eruption, than about the prizes his wife won at the last bridge party.

10,000 and 100,000 and their collections showed that they averaged less than $15,000 per year from all the families they attended.

"Where is there a family that would not agree to pay $25 a year to have the health of its members looked after? Some would pay many times this and do it gladly. Families could be graded into three or more main classes, say those with incomes below $75 a month, those between $75 and $200 and those above $200. A corresponding fee could be fixed, say $10 a year for the lowest class, $25 for the second, and $50 for the third. Then the profession would get moderate returns out of the third or more of the community which it now rents for nothing as personal charity or in those pauperized of the community, hospitals and dispensaries.

"This new scheme isn't intended to put the doctor out of business. We can't have too many doctors—good doctors. The way the profession is run now, I know of cases of a single doctor treating 75 cases in a day. This won't be possible under the new regime. Doctors will have fewer patients, but they will have to give them more time. "Some may imagine that under the plan there outlined, there wouldn't be much opportunity for the poor people to get the best service. There never was a bigger mistake than that a doctor doesn't care for practice in poor families. Why, the working class are the mainstay of the medical profession! There are lots of streets in New York that pay out more in doctor's bills than Fifth Ave.

DOUBTS VALUE OF PRESENT DAY FAIRS TO THE FARMERS

FREDERICTON, Mar. 4.—In addition to his remarks at the Farmers & Dairymen's convention, printed in today's Telegraph, President Hathe-way referred also to other matters. He said:

The past year New Brunswick held her first dominion exhibition, and as an exhibition, I wish to say that from an agricultural standpoint the show—with the exception of stock—considering its magnitude and government grant—lacked in educational features.

Stock was seen at a great advantage, but the products of the farm came in for only passing notice. This suggests the question as to whether, in making grants of local government money to exhibitions, we are adopting the most practical plan of assisting agriculture. It would seem the farmer and small breeder under present conditions, has little chance of receiving benefits from increased prize money. Exhibiting is being professionalized and trades and manufactures are being stimulated at the expense of agriculture.

GOODS IN COLD STORAGE LIMITATIONS OF TIME.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Senator Reburn, chairman of the committee on manufacturers, reported to the Senate on Friday, the result of the investigations of that committee in to the question of how articles of food should be kept in cold storage. One of the recommendations is that the following articles held in cold storage for periods indicated shall be regarded as having been adulterated: beef, seven months; veal, four months; lamb, three months; poultry, three months; butter, three months; pork, four months; sheep, four months.

GRAIN GROWERS OPPOSE SIFTON.

WINNIPEG, March 4.—The Manitoba Grower's Association Executive, yesterday, adopted a resolution repudiating the statements in Hon. Clifford Sifton's speech in the House of Commons at Ottawa that the grain growers opposed reciprocity. They further declared for the ratification of the Reciprocity agreement, the complete abolition of all duties on agricultural machinery and the increase of the British preference to 50 per cent on general tariff.

Her Face and Body Were Litterly Covered With "BOILS."

Burdock Blood Bitters Cured Them.

Mrs. John H. King, Johnston, N.B., writes:—"Last summer I was very much troubled with boils, and my face and body were literally covered with them. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I got three bottles, and before I had taken all the first one my boils began to go away. I had just taken a few doses out of the last one when they all disappeared. My husband has also used Burdock Blood Bitters with much benefit."

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still, at the same time, are very painful. They are caused entirely by bad blood, and to get rid of them it is necessary to put the blood in good condition, and for this purpose there is nothing to equal that old and tried remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters. Manufactured only by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE PETS.

He—"It's quite true that there are microbes in kisses." She—"Oh, the sweet little darlings!"

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen.—My daughter, 13 years old, was thrown from a sleigh and injured her elbow so badly it remained stiff and very painful for three years. Four bottles of MINARD'S LINIMENT completely cured her and she has not been troubled for two years. Yours truly, J. B. LIVESQUE, St. Joseph, P.O., 18th Aug., 1900.

MRS. CARRIE NATION.

Mrs. Carrie Nation, broken in health and reported in a dying condition, was born in Boyle county, Kentucky, about sixty-six years ago. Her father, George Moore, who came from a wealthy and well connected Kentucky family, was born near Lexington, Ky. He was a farmer and live stock trader and was considered a rising in his enterprises. He was married twice, his second wife, the mother of Carrie, being a Miss Campbell, of Boylston county. When Carrie was nine years old, her parents removed to a farm near Versailles, in Woodford county, Ky.

Carrie Moore received her education at the old schoolhouse near the Moore farm when in the fifties a Yankee schoolmaster, named Hanna, instructed the children of the district. Carrie was strong-willed and self-assertive and even in her early school days made herself not only the leader, but the dictator of the other children. She was never a zealous student, but was naturally bright and quick witted and usually knew her lessons. In those days Carrie was large for her age, and yellow hair and a fair complexion. She was inclined to be a tomboy and was afraid of nothing. She dominated the school and her martial spirit even conquered the boys. Playing soldier was one of her favorite pastimes and she liked nothing better than to lead exploring expeditions of other children into the woods and into the caves in that vicinity.

Her mother was deeply religious and brooded so much over religious matters that her mind became unbalanced and she died in an insane asylum. Carrie Moore was a regular attendant at the Christian church Sunday school in the town of Midway near her home. She manifested great interest and enthusiasm in the Study of the Bible and was always at the head of her class. Through all her life she prided herself on being a God-fearing moral woman and imbued with the militant spirit of a Christian reformer. She always was fond of quoting the scriptures and, later in her life, when she took to the war path against saloons, she never failed to intersperse her harangues with plentiful references to the Bible. From her mother she had inherited a high-strung and extremely nervous disposition, but her physical constitution was excellent and enabled her quickly to recover from the effects of her most exciting raids. Carrie, from her earliest youth, was fond of notoriety and this characteristic, together with the inherited mental instability and her leaning toward zealotism, explain in a large measure her later career.

When Carrie was fourteen years old, her father, who had lost the greater part of his fortune by speculation, moved with his family to Missouri. But little is known of her life during the first years in that state, but she married when quite young. According to current rumor her first husband was a drunkard, who often mistreated her. Not very long after his death she married David Nation, a rising young lawyer, in the early eighties Mr. Nation was prosecuting attorney at Muncie, Ind., and under President Garfield, he was appointed inspector of revenue on the Brazos River, Tex. He moved to Texas and held his office until President Cleveland removed him and filled the position with a Democrat.

Then Mr. Nation went to Richmond, Tex., where he started a Republican newspaper. It did not pay and Mr. Nation sold out. Next he started a hotel in the same town, and made considerable money. Mrs. Nation made it a point to look after the spiritual as well as after the physical welfare of the guests and insisted that they should go to church on Sunday. She did not hesitate in dragging unwilling guests to church by main strength and after she had subdued several bullies and obstreperous cowboys by her fearlessness and courage, she became greatly feared. After her husband had been run out of town after having been mixed up in a factional political fight, Mrs. Nation conducted the hotel alone, until her daughter married. Then she turned over the place to her son-in-law and joined her husband in Medicine Lodge, Ky.

It was while she lived in Medicine Lodge that the inspiration came to her to start on a campaign of violence against saloons and "joints." She began in Kansas and afterward travelled all through the United States, "smashing joints" wherever she went. For nearly ten years she continued this warfare, which made her so notorious, that her husband obtained a divorce. She was in England and there, as well as in several places in the U. S. She was placed in jail on several occasions. Ill health forced her a few years ago to retire from the warpath and she has been spending her declining years at Eureka Springs, Ark.

GRACIOUS CHARACTER.

Where are the old-fashioned father and mother? And what has become of that sturdy system (though they didn't dignify it by any such name—bring up) which produced the vigorous, courteous, manly youngster of yore? The Washington Post declares that the old-fashioned father have become almost obsolete in large cities. Modern mothers and fathers have ceased to take their responsibility seriously. During the early days of the child's life the task of looking after manners and education is largely shifted to the schools. The education of children consequently has become more automatic, and, naturally, lacks the individual touch of refinement and breeding that can be obtained only in the home. Few schools teach kindness, gentleness, courtesy or unselfishness. Such qualities can be thoroughly inculcated only in the home. It is only by the father making a chum of his boy and the mother making a friend of her girl that the miracle of a gracious character can be wrought. If fathers would make confidants of their sons, and mothers confidants of their daughters, teaching them to share adversity or prosperity like partners, there would be less dissatisfaction and less extravagance among the growing generation. By unselfishness they could teach unselfishness, by kindness they would teach kindness; by courtesy they would teach courtesy. And the world would be the gainer.—Sel.
