PERILOUS ADVENTURES TOLD IN FILM DRAMA

A picture designed to satisfy the most avid action fans is due to arrive today at the Capitol Theatre. It is Paramount's new Pine-Thomas thriller, "Disaster," with Richard Denning, Trudy Marshall, Will Wright and James Millican heading the cast.

"Disaster" focuses the spotlight on the danger-packed lives of the men who risk death to scale skyscrapers in pursuit of their steeplejacking trade. It is said to extract from this hazardous occupation all the perilous adventure and mid-air exploits inherent in it.

Denning, the blond star with the South Sea Island physique, portrays Bill Wyatt, a hunted man wanted for a murder he did not commit, who takes to steeplejacking as a means of eluding the police. He gets a job with Tom Hanford (Will Wright) a kind old man whose friendly interest causes him to pour out his story. Pop, believing Bill, suggests a plan for flushing out into the open the man Bill knows to be the real killer.

But Pop's plan boomerangs and Bill is more on the spot than ever. Added to his troubles is his love for Pop's daughter, Jerry (played by Miss Marshall) and the difficulties he encounters as a result thereof with Pop's jealous helper, who is not averse to pulling some dangerous tricks on Bill in mid-air.

Matters come to a dramatic head when an airplane crashes into a towering skyscraper, loosening giant girders that hover precariously above a terror-stricken populace. An urgent call for steeplejacks goes out. With Bill hiding from the police, Pop undertakes a dangerous assignment on his own and is pinned beneath part of the structure. Risking capture and his own destruction, Bill goes to the rescue. Not only does he fasten the loosened girder and bring Pop safely down to earth, but at the height of the excitement he manages to clear himself of the murder charges in a way that should have fans sitting suspense-bound to the edge of their seats. William H. Pine directed.

Perseid Meteors Putting On Annual Display

OTTAWA, Aug. 13 (CP)—The Perseid Meteors are putting on their annual display, showering the sky with shooting stars that appear to originate near the northern constellation of Perseus.

The showers have been going on for at least 1,500 years, but astronomers—amateur and professional—have not lost interest in the display because their appearance is so regular and spectacular.

Members of the Dominion Observatory and of the National Research Council began recording the display last night and they will continue their work tonight and tomorrow night. They are making visual, photographic and radar observations and expect that tonight's show, starting about midnight, may be one of the best, unless an overcast appears.

The observations by the observatory and the N.R.C. are part of an international program aimed at increasing knowledge of conditions in the upper atmosphere. Scientists have yet to trace the origin of the shooting stars, but some believe they are the wreckage of a comet which blew itself apart.

The shooting stars are some times called the "Tears of St. Lawrence" because their appearance closely coincides with the feast of St. Lawrence on Aug. 10.

Are You a Good Provider?

The time during which wild creatures must provide for their families is brief. With human beings the reverse is true. No man can be sure that his family responsibilities will not outlast his lifetime.

In providing for today it is easy to neglect provision against this uncertainty of tomorrow. Yet there is an easy, sure way to make it.

Life Insurance can be planned to meet individual family needs... to provide a guaranteed monthly income that is proof against mischance.

children I concede her actions and mode of living, but we are getting to the breaking point. What can we do?

ANSWER: Of course, you are in the right, but being right doesn't avail much when you have to deal with a pleasure-mad woman who is intent only on the gratification of herself.

The trouble about arguing such a case as yours with a woman and trying to show her how wrong she is in neglecting her duties to her family is that before either party knows it they have lost their tempers and are in a hot fight, which is generally ended by the woman dissolving in tears and the man putting on his hat and slamming the front door behind him.

So my suggestion to you is that you write out a calm and dispassionate statement of the case to her in a letter and give it to her to be read in quiet. Tell her that you love her, and how lonely you are without her. Then tell her what a wrong she is doing her children.

Then offer her a compromise of two evenings a week out. If she refuses to agree to this, the only thing you can do is to make the best of a bad bargain for the sake of the children. But remember, it is better for the children to have no home at all, or one parent, than it is to have a home of strife and two parents who are always quarrelling with each other.
