—CRAIG-LEARD WEDDING— A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, June 30 at 7.30 a. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Leard of Central Bedeque when their only daughter, Muriel Katherine, became the bride of Mr. Chesley Archibald Craig, son of Mrs. Colin C. Craig and the late Mr. Craig of Middleton. The marriage took place under a beautifully decorated arch of roses and ferns. Rev. Arthur Organ of Bedeque performed the ceremony. The bride entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrins Bridal Chorus played by Mr. Alden Leard, cousin of the bride. The bride looked charming in a white angora ensemble with white accessories and carried a corsage bouquet of pink roses and maiden hair fern. During the signing of the register, Miss Verna Schurman sang 'I love you Truly", accompanied by Mrs. Arthur Organ, violin, and Mr. Alden Leard, piano. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful travelling bag, to the accompanist, a Waterman's set and gold tie pin; to the soloist a pearl bracelet, and to the violinist a pearl dress clip. After the ceremony about thirty guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast. Those assisting in serving were Miss Jean Callbeck, Miss Marion Frizzell, Miss Verna Schurman, Mrs. Fred Moyse, Mrs. Fred Horne, and Mrs. Wright Leard. After the wedding breakfast the happy young couple left for a two week's honeymoon trip in the Maritimes. The brides travelling costume was a rose swagger suit, with brown accessories. The bride, prior to her marriage was tendered several miscellaneous showers, and received many beautiful gifts. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Craig will reside in Middleton. Their many friends wish them many years of married bliss.

flights across the Atlantic for this year, the former with the six-engined flying boat Lieutenant de Voisseau Paris and Germany with two catapult seaplanes, Nordmeer and Nordwind. The German company, Lufthansa, conducted flights last year by way of the Azores.

The British survey route is Southampton to Foynes to Botwood, Montreal and New York. That of Pan American is Port Washington, N. Y., to Shediac, N. B., to Botwood, to Foynes and Southampton.

Pan American may, on the return trip, explore the southern route by way of the Azores and Bermuda, it was learned in New York.

The South Atlantic is being flown regularly with mail and cargo but without passengers. Until the Hindenburg airship disaster, Germany maintained an air route over the North Atlantic during the spring, and early fall months.

FRESH RADIO

Coast Guard said it might mean radio transmission from the ship was being "shut off" by failing batteries.

George Palmer Putnam, Miss Earhart's husband, said in Oakland he believed the words "above water" indicated certainly the plane had landed on a reef, that the gasoline, required to turn the right motor to provide radio transmission, was being exhausted, and that his wife and Noonan were somewhere north of Howland.

From San Diego, Calif., swinging down the great arc toward the tropic waters, the navy's fastest vessels hastened to the Howland Island area. The rescue fleet was led by the airplane carrier Lexington, mothering 57 pursuit planes. Accompanying the carrier were the destroyers Drayton, Lamson and Cushing.

From Honolulu the battleship Colorado, bearing three navy planes with great cruising range, was speeding southward.

As the vessels draw near the search area, planes will leave the decks to take up their own pursuit of clues.

At Paris, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was quoted as predicting Miss Earhart would be found. A Ce Soir reporter asked him: "Do you believe she is lost?" and his answer was "How should I know? Nevertheless, I should say no".

LEGION

ion held in Vancouver in March 1936, the following resolution was adopted:—

"That existing regulations be so amended as to provide for free medical treatment for all men who have served in the Canadian forces in an actual Theatre of War, or were pre-war residents and served in the British Army, whether pensioners or not, if such men are in need of medical assistance and have no money to provide the same, except by resort to charity."

Therefore resolved that this Convention of the Prince Edward Island Command of the Canadian Legion, B. E. S. L. assembled at Charlottetown not only approves of the principle involved but would urge upon the authorities the necessity of implementing such medical assistance.

Urge Law Enforcement

Whereas, according to information from various sources as well as from statistics there undoubtedly appears to be a growing disrespect and disregard not only for the law relating to Traffic but for other of our laws which are in accordance with British principles.

And whereas there is an increasing loss of life and limb on our highways which cannot but be viewed with concern and alarm.

Therefore resolved that this Convention of the Prince Edward Island Command of the Canadian Legion, B. E. S. L. assembled at Charlottetown urges upon those in authority the necessity of making it possible for our police officers to spend more of their time in an endeavour to improve the conditions which now exist and bring to justice those offending without fear or favour.

Further resolved that this Convention urge upon the Educational authorities the necessity of instituting an intensive campaign for the instruction of the young with a view of teaching observance of law and the avoiding of accidents in so far as possible.

War Statistics

Whereas, according to recent Press reports the Official statistics about to be deposited in the Memorial Chamber at Ottawa indicate no enlistments from the Province of Prince Edward Island, although figures showing the enlistments from all the sister Provinces are set forth.

And whereas, even if, as has been locally suggested, the cause of this omission is due to the fact that Prince Edward Island enlistments are credited to Nova Scotia, with which Province the Island is associated as Military District No. 6, the omission is very unfair to the Island, which sent probably as large a percentage of its sons and daughters to serve in the Great War as any of its sister Provinces.

Therefore resolved, that this Convention of the Prince Edward Island Command of the Canadain Legon, B. E. S. L. assembled at Charlottetown do protest against such an omission, if true, and do urge upon the proper authorities that steps be taken to assure some explanation of the enlistments from Prince Edward Island being recorded in the Memorial Chamber at Ottawa, which will for all time reflect proper credit for the Island Province.

Further resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Minister of National Defence, The Premier of the Province and to the members representing the Island in the Dominion Parliament.

Lady Borden

Resolved, that whereas the death of Sir Robert Laird Borden, P. C., Prime Minister of Canada during the Great War has recently taken place, this Prince Edward Island Command of the Canadian Legion, B. E. S. L. in Convention assembled at Charlottetown, desires to extend its sympathy to Lady Borden and her family in the great loss they have sustained.

Cash Bonus

Whereas, the Dominion Executive Council of the Canadian Legion, B. E. S. L. assembled at Ottawa in January last adopted the following resolution.—

"That the Dominion Executive Council of The Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, having learned that a movement is afoot with a view to requesting that Parliament should provide for a cash bonus to veterans of the Great War, declares that it is unalterably opposed to the principle of any bonus for services rendered in the Great War, conceiving it to be the responsbility of the Government of Canada to adequately provide only for those disabled as a result of war service, their dependents, and the dependants of the fallen, and to ensure adequate assistance for those who saw service in a theatre of war and who are now, by reason of economic conditions, combined with their disabilities—tangible and intangible, resulting from war service—unable, through no fault of their own, to secure employment."

Therefore resolved, that this Prince Edward Island Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion, B. E. S. L. assembled at Charlottetown, desires to place on record its one hundred per cent approval of the sentiments expressed by the Dominion Executive Council as set forth in the above quoted resolution.

great Tower of London. The Tower itself is like an old gray castle steeped in tradition and circumstances which have remained unchanged for hundreds of years. The Beefeaters with their imposing seventeenth century uniforms are one of the many striking features which immediately meets the eye of the visitors.

The House of Commons

"Our next visit of importance was to the House of Commons. There we spent a very enjoyable afternoon listening to the brilliant speeches of Dr. Burgin, Mr. H. G. Williams, Mr. Dinglefoot, Mr. L.L. Lees-Smith, Mr. Runciman, Sir William Davison and other notables. The debate to which we were privileged to listen was the more interesting by reason of the fact that it dealt with the Ottawa Agreements. The figures quoted by Mr. Runciman were important and of great interest. They were as follows: In 1932 Great Britain purchased from Canada forty-three millions of dollars worth of goods; whereas, in the same year Canada purchased from Great Britain sixteen millions. Four years later, that is in 1936, Great Britain's imports from Canada had grown to seventy-five million dollars and Canada's imports from Great Britain had increased to twenty-three million dollars. Mr. Runciman who is the president of the Board of Trade in opening his speech paid a high tribute to the representatives of the Canadian Government with whom negotiations had been carried on. He paid a particularly eulogistic compliment to the Honourable Charles A. Dunniing for the tremendous amount of work and effort this gentleman had so nobly and generously expended in connection with the said Agreements. As I listened not only to the oratory but more especially to the forceful common sense expressed by the various speakers I was not a little proud to think that we as Canadians were members of the same family whose common tongue is English. Yes, and may I say I was again reminded of this fact when we visited Hyde Park, the resort of the famous 'soap box' orator. Quite contrary to what I expected I found that many of these speakers not only had an enviable command of the English language but some of them expressed that command in thoughts which must often have given rise to serious reflection on the part of their listeners. I know, in my case, I find myself quite frequently recalling the various statements made by some of the speakers, but what amazed me more than anything else was the fact that they are allowed to speak in unfettered freedom so that they may say precisely that which they think without fear of criminal prosecution ensuing. I believe such a situation is unparalleled in the whole world. Does it not, if proof were wanting, prove abundantly that England is indeed a country of freedom and of free people?

"During our stay in London we visited many theatres and saw some good plays. Unlike that of other countries the theatre in England is a very definite social activity. It has maintained a high standard of histrionic ability. Consequently, it is well patronized.

An Enjoyable Function

"On May the fourth we were honoured by an invitation to a Coronation dinner given by the Canadian Club at the Savoy Hotel. It was a decided success, and if not one of the most important functions which we attended during our visit certainly it was one of the most pleasing. Four hundred and fifty guests were present. Lord Greenwood was in the chair, and we were privileged to hear a particularly instructive and inspiring address by the Honourable W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada who, in the course of his speech, referred to the fact that the change in the King's Oath now meant that His Majesty occupied an immediate and direct relationship with each and all the Dominions not hitherto expressed, and that King George the Sixth was today as much the King of Canada as he was the King of England but more than that, he went on to say, His Majesty was the head of the great family of the British Commonwealth of Nations. The Prime Minister concluded by extending to His Majesty, on behalf of all visiting and resident Canadians loyal greetings and sincere wishes for a long and illustrious reign. Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary of State for the Colonies, replied to the toast 'Our Guests' so ably and eloquently proposed by the Honourable Vincent Massey, High Commissioner for Canada. Honourable Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, proposed the health of the chairman, mentioning that all true Canadians feel at home with their English friends because England and Canada were linked together by a common bond of citizenship, and under the same bond and the same Crown they would continue their destinies and policies according to their own needs. He concluded by saying that the freedom they enjoyed was the best factor in the relations which would lead to a still greater freedom. Among the many prominent Canadians I had the pleasure of meeting at that banquet were two Prince Edward Islanders of whom we may well be proud—Mr. Evelyn C. MacLeod, Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in London, a position he has occupied for seventeen years. Mr. MacLeod was born in New London in this province. Another was Mr. Edward Pope, Manager of the Bank of Montreal in London. Mr. Pope is a son of the late Sir Joseph Pope who for many years was the Under Secretary of State for Canada. The message of His Majesty the King to the guests assembled was read by Lord Greenwood and was received with great enthusiasm by all present. It read:

"'The Queen and I greatly appreciate the loyal assurances which you have conveyed to us from the members of the Canada Club and their distinguished guests among whom is included the Prime Minister of Canada. Please express to them our sincere thanks together with our best wishes for the success of your Coronation banquet'.

Next, we attended the reception given by the Speaker and Mrs. Fitzroy. It was an unqualified success. Among the distinguished guests present to whom we were privileged to be presented were the Duke and Duchess of Kent, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, Princess Royal and the Earl of Harewood. Many Princes of India and other notable Lords and Ladies of the realm were also present. The floral decorations were very choice and beautiful and in some of the rooms they were massed almost to the ceiling.

At Buckingham Palace

"On Thursday, May the sixth, the Court Presentation at Buckingham Palace was something that can never be forgotten by those privileged to be present. The whole arrangement and setting was beautifully carried out with all the traditional richness and dignity of the ages. The magnificent gowns of the ladies and the youthful attractiveness of the debutantes together with the bright uniforms of the distinguished officers and guests and the exquisite music of the orchestra left nothing to be desired. Over six hundred ladies were presented on that evening, but the large number did not deter Their Majesties from greeting each one with a happy and gracious smile.

"Here I would like to digress for a few moments to pay a well merited tribute to the High Commissioner for Canada, the Honourable Vincent Massey, and to Mrs. Massey upon the dignified and gracious manner the manifold duties of their important office are carried out. Both are eminently fitted for the high position they occupy. They not only were most anxious to extend boundless hospitality but they were at all times most anxious to anticipate every wish of their fellow Canadian visitors.

"On the morning preceding Their Majesties Coronation I was invited to a reception given at Buckingham Palace in honour of the Dominion Prime Ministers and other representatives and guests of the Overseas Empire. At this solemn function addresses of loyalty and devotion were presented to His Majesty by the Prime Ministers and representatives of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, South Africa and Southern Rhodesia. His Majesty in reply said:—

"'Today I stand on the threshold of a new life. Heavy are the responsibilities that have so suddenly and unexpectedly come upon me, but it gives me courage to know that I can count upon your unfailing help and affection. For my part I shall do my utmost to carry on my father's work for the welfare of our great Empire. Only two years ago at a gathering like this my dear father received his Prime Ministers and other representatives of the Overseas Empire and India. That was his Silver Jubilee, a time when the peoples of our Empire united to acknowledge with boundless generosity the achievements of his great reign. In moving words my father spoke of welcoming you home. He has since gone home and it has pleased Almighty God to call me to be the head of this great family'.

After the King had spoken these moving words, and I can assure you they were very moving, those present were presented to Their Majesties. The occasion was one which I personally shall never forget. There beside me stood representatives of every creed, race and colour from the four outposts of the earth all uniting in a beautiful fraternity to one end, namely to assure their King, your King and my King—our beloved King, of a devoted loyalty to him and to her before whom we stood. It made one realize more than ever what a great and mighty Empire we are and what a privilege to be a member of this great family of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Such, my friends, was the thought that must have prevailed amongst all those present at this very notable and memorable gathering.

"The Day of Days"

"I now arrive at the day of days. That great day on which Their Majesties King George the Sixth and Queen Elizabeth were crowned in the ancient Abbey of Westminster with all the beautiful pageantry, ceremonial splendour and rich ritual of the centuries, and which could nowhere else in the whole world be found. They were crowned by His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury who was assisted by the Archbishop of York and many of the Bishops of the leading dioceses of the land. London was a veritable paradise. Multi-coloured lights and streams of bunting decorated the streets of this great metropolis. Frankly, the city seemed to be swept off its feet by waves of unparalleled jubilation and rejoicing. The high, the low, the rich and the poor all seemed to be filled with the same desire and ambition, namely, to give homage to their beloved King and Queen. I am proud to say that the part played by the Canadian contingent and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was magnificent. Their fine appearance and the manner in which they conducted themselves calls for words of unstinted praise and admiration.

"Within the Abbey itself were gathered over seven thousand people from all parts of the earth. Theirs was the privilege to participate in the ceremony, an experience which it is not likely will ever again occur in their or our life time. The Coronation service has not changed much in a thousand years. First is the King's oath; then occurs the anointing of the King three times on the hand, on the breast and on the head. The anointing signifies the unction and grace of the Holy Spirit. Then follows the investitures and presentation which are all sacraments and which are outward signs of an inward spiritual grace. Then is the sword girded. This symbolizes the King's willingness to defend the cause of God; the ring the symbol of Kingly dignity; the sceptre representing justice tempered with mercy; the orb set under the cross indicates the King's willingness to subject himself to the power and will of Christ —the King of Kings, and lastly the Bible is handed to His Majesty by the Archbishop who in making the presentation says — 'Our Gracious King, we present you with this book, the most valuable thing that this world affords. Here is wisdom; this is the Royal Law; these are the lively oracles of God'. Here the Archbishops, the Bishops, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal do their homage unto the King. I have to confess that I am unable to find language to give any adequate description of that scene which we were privileged to witness in the Abbey of Westminster on that never-to-be-forgotten day. May I just say this: It was a scene of exquisite and unparalleled beauty in the midst of which one felt, but could not describe, the unseen presence of an all-seeing God who saw fit to let the sun shine at the most dramatic moment of the ceremony. All was very still at that moment; suddenly there rang out a blast from the gorgeously dressed King's Trumpeters and then through the beautiful stained glass windows of the Abbey a beam of sun shone down on the King's bowed head. It seemed to me as though some greater force than the temporal was determined to express His pleasure at the important event then taking place before our eyes. That is the appeal it made to me and I feel sure many of those who were present interpreted it in like manner.

Other Functions

"The State Ball and banquet at Buckingham Palace which we were privileged to attend were both brilliant social affairs.

"Other delightful functions attended by our party were the receptions given by the Earl and Countess of Bessborough, the Honourable Vincent Massey and Mrs Massey, and the banquet of the Mayor and Mayoress of the City of Westminster.

"Next we visited Winchester, an old city some sixty miles from London. Here we spent many pleasant hours strolling through its ancient streets. Apart from the beautiful architecture of the buildings, Winchester possessed more than an ordinary interest for me for here it was my ancestor Bishop Henry DeBlois resided many generations ago. He founded the St. Cross Hospital. This hospital was originally erected for the care of the poor and sick, and I may say that until this very day it continues to minister to those in sickness and distress. Any passing wayfarer may, on presenting himself at the door, receive a glass of ale and a piece of bread without charge. In the ancient Cathedral close by we found a statue erected to his memory Consequently, I was privileged to stand on the original stone in the chancel of this great Cathedral where that much revered and loved Bishop pronounced the benediction to the congregation assembled Sunday after Sunday. There were many unusual inscriptions on the tombstones in the cemetery nearby. Here is one:

In Memory Of
THOMAS THETCHER
A Grenadier in the North Reg. of Hants Militia who died of a violent fever contracted by drinking Small Beer when hot the 12th of May, 1764, aged 26 years.

In grateful remembrance of one whose universal good-will towards his comrades this stone is placed here at their expense as a small testimony of their regard and concern.

Here sleeps in peace a Hampshire Grenadier,
Who caught his death by drinking cold Small Beer,
Soldiers be wise from his untimely fall
And when you are hot drink strong or none at all.

An honest soldier never is forgot
Whether he die by musket or by pot.

"Time will not permit me to make any extended reference to our visit to Canterbury, to the great naval review at Spithead, to Battle Abbey and to France and many other places of historic interest. But, in conclusion may I say that during my visit to the battlefields in France and the numerous war cemeteries and as I viewed the magnificent Canadian Memorial at Vimy an indescribable feeling of humility and reverence came over me, and as I bowed my head in silent prayer my eyes fell on the inscription on one of the little white crosses standing before me which read: 'He died that you might live. May you be worthy of his sacrifice' Surely such an inspiring message as contained in those words inscribed on that sacred little cross should arouse us, soldiers and civilians alike to make a determined effort to stand together in presenting a united front in driving from our midst seeds of disloyalty, seeds of selfishness, of lawlessness and greed, and all the other undesirable vices that cause war and trouble, and to do all in our power in bringing about permanent peace, happiness and contentment throughout the great British Empire and throughout the world".
