ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF P. E. I. FOX RANCHERS

Convention in Summerside Unanimously Endorsed the Silver Fox Fur Selling Association and Subscribed Generously Towards its Inauguration and Support. Thorough Organization of Fox Interests Effected.

In St. Paul's Hall, Summerside on Monday, two largely attended and fully representative meetings of ranchers and those interested in the fox industry of Prince Edward Island were held under the auspices of the Silver Fox Fur Selling Association, at the instance of Hon. A. E. Arsenault. The first meeting was called for 11 a. m. and the second for 3 p. m. and at these hours foxmen from various parts of the province assembled to discuss the advisability of establishing a central co-operative organization to dispose of pelts, and to advertise in a thorough, systematic way the qualities of the Silver Fox fur, especially of P. E. Island, and to trade mark all first-class pelts going out from the Association with a view to building up a reputation for the fox industry of this province and particularly for those who may join the organization such as co-operation and systematic advertising have made for the fruit-growing industry of the Pacific Coast. Although the day was one of the most favorable for farming purposes, a large number of men, in view of the importance of the meeting, made it convenient to attend. Mr. W. K. McGeoghan, on motion of Mr. W. K. Arsenault, was appointed chairman, and in opening the meeting in the forenoon he pointed out the importance of having a full expression of opinion from those present, representative of the views of the fox interests of the province. Mayor Campbell gave a short address of welcome. He commended the objects of the proposed organization and thought it needed no argument to show that the proposition was the only solution of the problem that now faces the fox industry. The dairy industry, he said, had been put on a sound basis by means of co-operative action such as is now proposed, and the fox industry be regarded as a parallel in so far as the necessity for co-operation was concerned. A few years ago purposes were obtained in the dairy industry because of the lack of individual effort, but today conditions were altogether different; the industry is prosperous and progressive. He thought that an organization such as the one proposed was as vital to the success and the perpetuation of the fox industry as the production of the foxes themselves. It was impossible to market successfully by individual effort; there must be a trained in the business of handling and selling foxes to dispose of the pelts produced.

Hon. A. E. Arsenault was then called upon to explain to the meeting the objects and purposes of the Silver Fox Fur Selling Association. He did so in a very explicit address in which he showed the advantages of co-operation and advertising, and before he had concluded, the audience was fully convinced that without an effective organization along the lines of the proposed association the industry must go to the wall. He read a telegram from Mr. Chester McLure excusing his absence on account of the death of a friend, and one from the ranchers of O'Leary endorsing the proposition and promising generous subscription. Those engaged in the fox industry, he said, had all along been taking all they could get out of the business but were not putting back anything, and if the industry were to continue as it had been exploited in the past, and nothing was done to promote its interest, then the time was soon at hand when it would yield no returns. In 1913-14 an attempt was made to bring together in the form of an association all the ranchers in the province with a view to co-operation, for even in those days it was felt that in order to ensure the future of the industry there was great need for co-operation. Such an Association was formed, and though it accomplished a great deal of good, as all fair-minded persons would concede, it failed. Notwithstanding the ability of those men who were charged with the conduct of it, it failed because it went without funds with which to do anything of real benefit. To show the advantages of advertising and co-operation, he referred to the fruit growers of the Pacific Coast. So far back as the year 1892, the fruit growers recognized the need for co-operation. They were all disunited; the growers were selling independently to the brokers and consequently the market was unstable. It was not in Russia Has Won Out Diplomatically in Poland Affair and Consents on her Own Terms to a Peace Conference.

(Special to The Guardian.)
LONDON, July 27.—Soviet Russia has won a great diplomatic victory as a result of the correspondence over the proposed peace between Russia and Poland. It has compelled the Western Allies to recognize her diplomatically and the next step undoubtedly will be negotiations for a general peace and recognition. The note from Russia was received late last night accepting the Allies' proposal for a Polish peace conference in London on condition that a general peace will be discussed. As soon as Mr. Lloyd-George read it he made plans for an immediate conference and he goes to Boulogne prepared to insist that French join British in accepting the Russian proposal.

The Oldest Man In Canada Dead

(Special to The Guardian.)

He was born on the banks of the Ottawa River not far from this city, and is survived by eight sons, one daughter, fifty-two grandchildren and thirty-six great-grandchildren. He was of Irish descent, and it is said he enjoyed remarkably good health through his long life. He was conversing with members of his family a few minutes before his death. His wife died about twenty-five years ago.

Mixed Farming Is Canada's Hope

(Special to The Guardian.)
REGINA, July 27.—Speaking before the Canadian Club here today, Dr. Tolmie, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, declared that $500,000,000, or one-fourth of Canada's national debt, would be added annually to the wealth of the country by adoption of more intelligent and enterprising methods of agriculture. The one crop system was doomed, said Dr. Tolmie, and mixed farming with stock-raising as its basis was destined to come into its own. While the acreage under crop in Canada had greatly increased during the last decade, there had been a marked falling off in the yield per acre. The whole tendency has been downhill, said Dr. Tolmie, and more intelligence and enterprise on the part of the farmers would be required to stay this downward progress.

May Modify Income Tax

(Special to The Guardian.)
OTTAWA, July 27.—Methods to obviate the duplication of income taxation are receiving some consideration from the Minister of Finance. The present system is admitted to involve considerable hardship in some provinces. The individual is called upon to pay three income taxes, Federal, Provincial and Municipal. Two sets of income taxes is an ordinary process. There are hopes that by means of negotiations with the different provinces some understanding may be reached, whereby one income tax may suffice, this tax being under the auspices of the federal authorities. Some compensating process for the provinces will be necessary and taxes on land values, open up one possible avenue. Investigations which have been made are not favorable to the land tax as a federal initiative, but as one operated by the provinces, if they are so disposed, the outlook is more favorable. Where the federal tax would be inevitably imposed by the provinces could be governed by local conditions.
