Interpreting the War News

By Kirk L. Simpson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Amid a hubbub of predictions on the side of the Atlantic that the Nazis will launch a gigantic attack on Great Britain within months, Prime Minister Churchill sounded a significant note to Parliament. He made it abundantly clear that Britain is being geared for a offensive of her own in 1941; not merely for defence. He radiated supreme confidence in Britain's ability to withstand any blow Germany may strike by land, sea or air, and to hit back effectively.

Mr. Churchill confirmed the impression of this writer that Britons expect an early offensive against Britain because they figure Hitler's need is desperate. The disasters suffered by his Italian AXS mate in Albania and Egypt and the squeeze of the British blockade are forcing him to a final supreme effort. Indications that the United States policy of total aid for Britain short of war will become effective in 1941 is another factor bearing heavily on Berlin, according to the British view.

The Prime Minister warned that "the mortal dangers of invasion or a prolonged deadlock" are not past. He set the main theme of his address to Parliament, keyed to ever-growing British victory over Italy in Egypt and Libya, was preparation for attack, not defence.

Mr. Churchill recalled having said to Parliament recently that Britain's war effort was geared for a struggle that might last into 1943 or 1944. He corrected that to deny that he expects the war to last that long, adding that he meant merely the effort must be great enough to meet any eventuality.

The address also confirmed a new impression that the British offensive in Egypt and Libya was planned months ago, as far back as July. Although Britain was not in far greater danger of a Nazi blitzkrieg invasion than she is now, she began to ship troops, tanks and guns eastward, he said.

That means that the British eastern victories were not a by-product of Italian defeat by Greece; but planned in view of the early outset of the battle of Britain six months ago.

WESTERN FEED GRAIN

Sir:—This morning's issue of your paper carries a letter signed "Farmer" in which he asks why the Charlottetown Board of Trade is not devoting its efforts toward having the government build a deep water terminal at Charlottetown, and mentions Mr. Hemming as stating that this would permit the delivery of Western oats to Charlottetown at 14c per bushel. I have not seen Mr. Hemming's statement to this effect but it may be that he made it, but both Farmer and Mr. Hemming forgot that the oats would have to be paid for as well as the 14c transportation charge to Charlottetown. The closing price on Western oats in Winnipeg for December delivery on December 17th was 32 5/8c per bushel.

When the transportation charge which Farmer on the authority of Mr. Hemming placed at 14c per bushel is added what use would the deep water terminal serve when Island oats are available at 34c per bushel. How the 14c transport charge is arrived at is not explained, in other words is it the water rate from the Lake Ports, or does it include the rail rates to the Lake Ports, in any case it does not matter very much because the whole thing is a pipe dream and based on the assumption that the Western farmer is going to grow, harvest, thresh, clean and deliver at shipping point the oats we need for feeding and present our people with the grain free of charge. Why not include with the proposal the suggestion that he come down with the grain and assist in attending to the pigs?

Our North Tryon "Farmer" has a car ferry at his door and evidently fails to see why the Eastern section of the province should be given a boat for the docks al-

Another stimulates and refreshes. The third induces a beneficial laxation of the bowels. A fourth ingredient—Oil of Cinnamon—has long been a standby in Europe for fighting grippe and similar maladies. Be Prepared. Get these two dependable Buckley remedies NOW. If this treatment does not bring prompt relief call your doctor.

The car ferry route by Wood Islands will put us within a few hours trucking distance with what is fast becoming one of the greatest ports on the Atlantic coast. Our best bet is to make plans that will permit this province making use of the facilities this offered instead of trying to set up a competitive Atlantic seaport to which it is very doubtful that we could attract more than a ship or two each year and then to no advantage to the ship owners and little or no advantage to ourselves.

The question of low priced stock feeds is important to us, but a deep water terminal at Charlottetown will be a long way from solving the problem. All that this would provide is already available at Halifax and with a ferry carrying this produce without charge there would be little extra cost in distributing to Island farmers from either point especially in view of the fact that our trucks would be busy carrying our products to the mainland and in need of return freight.

Trusting I have not imposed on your valued space.
