PREMIER KING SPEAKS IN THE BUDGET DEBATE

(From Our Own Correspondent) OTTAWA, April 9.—In a two and a half hours speech this afternoon the prime minister addressed himself to the budget, at first rather heavily and somewhat tringly in the matter of statistics, but towards the end waxed more and more controversial in a manner that has marked him as a special and highly qualified special pleader.

From the outset his speech was a reply to the Hon. Hugh Guthrie, who was acting leader in the absence of the Hon. R. B. Bennett. His first note sounded was that of "prosperity" and upon that he rang the changes for at least three quarters of his time.

He claimed that reduction of duties on everything that entered into production and reduction in taxes had been large factors in that prosperity, but the policies and activities of various of his ministers had also much to do with it.

The Prime Minister described the era of union gov't. as one of deficits, of enormous increase of debt, of burdensome taxation, and as one of constructive policy, and that of the succeeding Liberal gov't. as one of surplus, of decrease in taxation, reduction of national debt and highly enlightened policies.

In connection with finances, he intimated that "one of these days there would be a sinking fund" as advocated by Conservatives, a statement that brought applause from opposition benches.

Enthusiastic references were made to the various legations in other countries established by the gov't, especially to the one at Washington and he averred that Canada owed a debt of gratitude to the Hon. Vincent Massey who had spent largely of his private fortune, that it could never repay.

He depreciated the attitude of the Hon. Hugh Guthrie on improvements made in the city of Ottawa, as the capital of the country. It was one of the questions that should be taken out of the arena of partisan debate and regarded as a great national enterprise, and he ventured the remark that there was much more pride in the back concessions over the achievements of the government in this respect in endeavoring to make Ottawa worthy of a great country, than had been exhibited by "gentlemen opposite."

Have you entered the Kodak Company's $30,000 Prize Contest?

One of the 1223 cash awards can easily be yours

PROBABLY you have already heard of this big event for amateur picture-takers. But have you made any pictures for it yet?

If you have said to yourself, "What's the use of entering? I can't win. I'm no expert with the camera," you're making a big mistake.

Look at No. 12 of the conditions down below. You'll see that technical skill is a minor factor in this contest. What the judges are looking for are interesting pictures.

GRAND PRIZE $2,500—for the best picture of any type in the following classifications.

PROVINCIAL AND STATE PRIZES—For Child and Baby Pictures—$11,400 will be awarded for the pictures showing the most interesting children. $100 is being given for the best child picture from each province of Canada and each state of the United States.

The Maritime Provinces of Canada count as one province. British Columbia and the Yukon count as one province. District of Columbia counts as one state; Hawaii, Alaska and all other U.S. dependencies combined count as one state.

Every picture of children that you submit stands a chance of winning the Grand Prize; or any of the 103 prizes in each of four other awards. And even if you don't come in for a share of the prize money, you will, at least, have made an attractive picture to add to your collection.
