Take out a policy to-day

A policy in the Canada Life means insurance against poverty in old age, means support for your nearest relatives if you should die suddenly, means increased respect for your fellow-men, means insuring with a company that has the largest reserve fund on the continent, a company of Canadians—and means a large benefit at small premium cost. See us to-day about it.

The Test of Value is Demand

On this test the value of the Great West Life Policies is strikingly obvious.

For three successive years popular opinion has given first place to the Great West Policies. For three successive years the Great West has written the largest Canadian Business of all the Companies.

During eighteen successful years—and especially during the last three exceptionally successful years—there has been a steadily increasing appreciation of the low premium rates—the high profit returns and the liberal conditions that characterize the Policies of

ENORMOUS COST OF KEEPING THE PEACE

It is costing the nations of Europe over two billion of dollars every year to keep the peace. At least that is what the several chancelleries say they are spending the money for. It goes for ships and guns which in the course of a not very long time, find their way to the scrap heap, and for sailors and soldiers, who are just so many men taken from productive occupations.

A recent English writer urges the government to build even more Dreadnoughts that are now arranged for, and he gives as a reason for it that in 1914 British supremacy over Germany in these ships will be too small. He declines to take into consideration any vessels of the present Dreadnought type, because he says that in ten years all ships become unfit for the first line of battle. But unfortunately, in 1914, according to this view of things, or even shortly afterwards, the Dreadnoughts will begin to be unfit for the first line, and they will continue to drop out from that time on. The only consolation is in the fact that other people's Dreadnoughts will be getting into the same condition.

The single good feature of the case so far as the United Kingdom is concerned, is that all the money spent in this laborious and costly task of keeping the peace is expended in the country, or at least by very much the greatest part of it.

It seems as if we are driven to the conclusion that either this mad expansion of armaments must cease, or relief must be sought in war. Time was when the latter expedient would be resorted to without a moment's hesitation; but war in those days was a very different thing from what it would be today. International relations are so interwoven that a war between any two first class powers would have effects so disastrous, apart from the cost in money, and blood, that no government could justify itself in appealing to arms as long as they remained any other possible remedy, even in case of an actual affront. Much less could any government contemplate declaring war in cold blood simply because it thought another nation was becoming too strong. The only hope for improvement seems to lie in the possibility that the burden of maintaining the peace by extravagant preparations for war will grow so burdensome that some other means will have to be discovered. Meanwhile, there is some satisfaction in knowing that recent utterances of Mr. Asquith in respect to Germany have produced a very favorable impression in that country.—Victoria Colonist.

MISTAKES OF SCIENTISTS.

Sir Humphry Davy's dogmatic pronouncement against gas lighting is not the only instance of a clever scientist being hopelessly wrong. The early history of submarine cabling furnishes two striking examples. Consulted on the scientific side of the project, Faraday asserted that the first cables were made too small. Then he said that "the larger the wire, the more electricity would be required to charge it"; and in this quite wrong opinion he was supported by other eminent electricians. As a result of this dictum the current was increased until the operation literally "electrocuted" the wire, and the cable broke down. It was Lord Kelvin who, by sending messages through heavy cables with incredibly weak electric currents, proved that Faraday was mistaken.

Sir G. B. Airy submitted the project to mathematics, and arrived at the conclusion that a cable would not be submerged to the necessary depth, and that if it could no recognizable signal could ever travel from Ireland to Nova Scotia. In aviation, Prof Newcomb, one of the cleverest mathematicians America has produced, who died last year, declared that he had mathematically investigated all the conditions operating against the heavier-than-air machine, and was convinced that the aeroplane would never be more than a scientific toy; and the possibility of an aeroplane motor being reliable in the reduced atmospheric pressure above 3,000 feet was by several experts said to be out of the question a few months ago. Drexel's carbureter was certainly a bit erratic above the clouds last week, but he rose to an altitude of 6,750 feet.—London News.

CLUB IN SUNDAY RIOT IN QUINCY.

QUINCY, Mass., Sept. 12—Over indulgence in enthusiasm by members of a Boston political club holding an outing in a Quincy grove today brought about a clash with the Quincy police reserve in which several officers were injured, one badly, sixteen rioters were arrested, while several more escaped homewards with broken heads and other hurts, and one trolley car was wrecked.

In the police station with the sixteen prisoners tonight were several half kegs of that which the police claim caused the outburst of enthusiasm, and chief Burrell says that he intends to swear out warrants for the head of the political club and for the proprietor of the grove. While the automobile was speeding to the lockup with its load of prisoners, a mob consisting, it is said, of the vanguard of rioting rioters, was encountered surrounding a street car. On complaint of the car crew three of its occupants were arrested for disturbance and crowded into the already overburdened patrol, which then continued on its way.

As soon as the police had gone the mob turned on the car crew again, ringing in fares and causing considerable damage to the car. They then advanced on the protesting conductor who drew a revolver and threatened to shoot the first man that touched him. His determined manner kept the crowd away and after completing the practical wreckage of the car they departed, keeping the sections of the city through which they passed in a turmoil until the last of them had left for Boston. The case of the lockup remaining behind in the riot will be heard in court tomorrow.

ADMISSION TICKETS AT REDUCED RATES TO THE HALIFAX EXHIBITION

An advertisement in another column calls attention to the low rates that will prevail on the Railways for the forthcoming exhibition at Halifax. There are three different rates to the Exhibition—those by the Excursions on Special Trains on Special days; Excursions on Regular Trains also Special dates; and the ticket at one first class fare for return trip to Halifax prevailing all through the Exhibition, all of which have admission tickets attached. The Ticket Agent at the nearest Railway Station will furnish the public with the date on which Excursion trains will run and he will quote rates.

The attention of the intending visitors to the Exhibition is called to the fact that in advance strips of six tickets for one dollar will be sold. This gives an admission ticket at the rate of 16 2-3 cents. These will be forwarded on application to the Exhibition Office, Halifax, and should be sent for at once.
