Gen. Blamey, in 1918, when only 34 years old, was chief of staff of the American 27th and 30th and Australian 1st and 4th Divisions which pierced the Hindenburg line. Until the present war that was the only time United States troops were brigaded with those of another country.

He previously had participated in the Gallipoli campaign and won the D.S.O in France in 1917.

Civic Borrowing Bill Goes Through

Mr. Barbour stages unsuccessful opposition to $6,000 relief item.

Legislation to authorize the issuing of debentures for expenditures by the City of Charlottetown encountered opposition in the Legislature yesterday from Mr. George H. Barbour, Second Prince, whose motion to delete this item from the bill was defeated by a standing vote, in which he found himself alone.

The House was moved into committee by Hon. Dr. MacMillan, with Mr. John R. MacLean, Souris, in the chair. Mr. K. M. Martin, City Recorder, was present by permission.

The bill authorizes the issue of twenty year debentures to the amount of $45,000 to cover expenditures incurred during the years 1940 and 1941, being $6,000 for unemployment relief, $29,000 for permanent works and $10,000 for plant and equipment.

Mr. Barbour asked the promoter whether he thought the Legislature should give authority to issue debentures for relief purposes.

Hon. Dr. MacMillan: "I suppose when the government stops doing the same thing, the City should be asked to follow suit."

Mr. Barbour: "The Sirois Report recommended something along this line. I would like to ask if the City of Charlottetown had a surplus last year."

Mr. Martin: "Their books are carried in terms of the current year and in the current year they had a surplus of $18,000, but by virtue of collecting back taxes which were not allowed to be included in the current year, they had a cash surplus of $68,000."

Mr. Barbour's Objection

Mr. Barbour: "It does not look sensible for the City of Charlottetown to have a surplus of $18,000 and have to come to this Legislature for authority to borrow $6,000 for relief." About the only relief given now is to unemployables. I don't think that with the increase in the tax rate from 2.50 last year to 2.85 they should do so. I understand the tax rate on motor vehicles is $14.50 regardless of the value of the car. That is a ridiculous thing on the face of it. A car might be only worth $100, another might be worth $1,000, but they are both valued the same. My

Cancellation of C.W.L. Conventions For war's duration

The following communication has been received by Mrs. A. MacInnis, Souris, Diocesan President, Charlottetown Diocesan Council, C. W. L. announcing cancellation of conventions for the duration of the war:

Dear Mrs. MacInnis:

On the advice of His Excellency Archbishop Vachon, National Chaplain, I have as National President, found it necessary to cancel the proposed holding of the 22nd. Annual National Convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, at Edmonton, July 8-12, 1942, and to substitute therefore a meeting of the National Executive Board at Montreal, July 10-12, 1942.

By reason of recent serious developments in the war situation, and the necessity of adopting a policy of stringent economy in conformance with the Government's request, and thereby to render every possible aid to the war effort, I have felt compelled to make the above decision. This decision has not been reached without regret at the inconvenience which must necessarily be caused to the members of Edmonton Diocesan Council, by reason of the cancellation of their convention plans. At the same time, I feel it is a voluntary sacrifice that must be made at this time.

In the urgency of these wartimes, and with the realization that this is a call to service, you are requested to make any sacrifice that may be involved in order to be present at the meeting of the National Board to be held in Montreal, July 10-12th, 1942. There will be a general session on Saturday afternoon open to all members of the Catholic Women's League, when the election of National officers will take place.

Yours Sincerely,
Almira Sims MacCabe
National President
The Catholic Womens League of Canada.

HOT POLITICAL

sign of lining up in two violently opposed camps. Most of the opposition to the 40-hour week law comes from the south.

A certain amount of background is necessary to any clear understanding of the issues involved. Before the United States entered the war and for a short time afterward, strikes plagued production in war industries and those closely associated with them although today they offer no serious threat to production.

Congressmen Angered

But during this period, particularly as a result of John L. Lewis tying up coal mining, Congressmen shouted their anger and threatened drastic legislative curbs which were blocked only by the insistence of Mr. Roosevelt that co-operative methods were preferable to compulsion.

The President's view prevailed but Congress remained unconvinced. Certainly men like Rep. Smith, who has a long record of anti-strike and anti-labor legislative attempts, was unconvinced.

To touch off this latent impatience—although that was the last thing he desired to do—Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, a short time ago demanded an immediate increase of 25 per cent in war production and frankly acknowledged things were not going well.

This speech was all that was required to touch off the fireworks because an immediate outburst developed against the 40-hour-week law. The statute, enacted several years ago, is the legislative basis for most, if not all, the wage-hour collective bargaining agreements now in operation in the United States and provides that time-and-a-half must be paid for all work in excess of 40 hours.

The law, inelastic and rigid as it is, does not limit production to 40 hours a week, although many of its opponents have sought to leave that impression. As a matter of fact, the work week in many war industries of the United States averages as high as 70 hours. Machine tool workers average 55 hours a week; aircraft, 48.7; ship building, 48.2 and aluminum, 45.9.

Hue and Cry

Meanwhile, a hue and cry against the 40-hour week law developed all over the United States, particularly in the south, leading to a hurry-up conference at the White House between the President and leaders of organized labor. As a result of this conference, Philip Murray, president of the C.I.O., and William Green, president of the A.F.L., volunteered to abandon premium pay for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays and to amend existing union agreements to that end.

This was done in reply to Nelson's insistence on seven-day production and despite the fact that in many industries like shipbuilding, automobile and electrical, time-and-a-half for Saturday and double pay for Sundays has been traditional for years.

It is believed the Smith bill may be amended in committee to provide for a 48-hour week with time-and-a-half for every hour in excess of that limit. This, in effect, would preserve the principle of the 40-hour-week with its overtime provisions but it certainly would result in reducing the pay of labor and, incidentally, the cost of war production.

Opponents of any change in labor laws meanwhile have been having a field day of their own pointing to examples of exorbitant profits and bonuses paid by many firms working on government contracts. Some of these examples have been startling and obviously were designed to dodge the excess profits tax.

Increased Interest In Sheep Industry

Farmers in this province are already showing an increased interest in the sheep industry, according to a statement in the annual report of the Department of Agriculture. Deputy Minister of Agriculture W. R. Shaw reviewing the industry said "renewed interest in this particular industry, in a large measure, can undoubtedly be attributed to an improved price for wool, together with the fact that market lamb prices remained at a reasonably satisfactory level during the late summer and fall months."

Men connected with the industry and questioned concerning the appeal for 1,000,000 more sheep on Canadian farms, made by G. E. O'Brien, general manager of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association said they believed Island farmers would do their part. They predicted a sharp increase would be noticed when the figures for 1942 sheep population were available.

The report of the Department of Agriculture indicated there were 29,500 sheep in the province in the adult age class at the end of 1941 and 4,300 under one year old. Number of adult sheep declined 1,400 from 1940 but the number of younger animals increased 100.

However, the interest in the industry was seen to be reviving rapidly towards the end of the year. Mr. Shaw noted there had been a declining interest in sheep for several years. It was expected it would take more than a year for the reversal in trend to become marked, since good quality breeding stock was not available immediately in large numbers.
