Mrs. Shaw Lunn, Falmouth, N.S., writes: "I am dropping you a line to let you know what Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has done for us. Last summer my little girl had diarrhoea so bad she passed blood. A friend told me of the Extract, so I sent and got a bottle of it, and six doses cured her. In December, 1911, my brother came home from the woods very bad with cramps and diarrhoea, and thought he would have to call the doctor. I thought of the bottle of "Dr. Fowler's" I had in the house, and gave it to him, and in three days he was as well as ever and went back to his work again. I would not be without it in the house if it cost twice as much."

A few hours later he was awakened by the barks of his dog and rushed out of the room to find the house in flames. Blinded by smoke he at last reached the fresh air in time to see his home burned to the ground. Dr. Delaney thinks that the forgotten lantern must have exploded and set fire to the wall. There was no insurance and the loss is estimated at $5,000. Mrs. Delaney and children are at present visiting in the Magdalen Islands and so escaped all danger.—J.

(Special by Phone.) GEORGETOWN, July 19—The case of trespass, Duncan McDonald of Newport, now of Calgary, Alta., vs. Ernest McMaster, defendant, came up before the Supreme Court this afternoon. Gilbert Gaudet appeared for the prosecution; McKinnon and Johnson for the defence.

Witnesses for the prosecution were examined and the following jury impanelled: John Aitken, foreman, Malcolm McDonald, Alex Buchanan, John J. Bruce, Daniel Fisher, Peter McLeod and James M. Hughes.

At the conclusion of the case which will be tomorrow morning court will adjourn until Monday when the trial case of Smith vs Acorn will come up.

GEORGETOWN, July 20—Dr. Duncan A. Stewart, Georgetown, today succeeded in obtaining from Mrs. McGee the confession of the commission of the crime for which she was yesterday found guilty.

It was brief, the signed statement procured reading much as follows: "I, Minnie McGee, confess to having administered the ends of matches containing sulphur and phosphorus to my children in April last. I gave it to them in sugar and water. I was feeling bad at the time I did it." Minnie McGee.

This statement was filed in the court today and is expected to have an influence in shaping the fate of the unfortunate woman.

Professor Rutnan was especially anxious that, if possible, a confession should be got from the woman. The whole case will make an exceedingly interesting addition to medico legal happenings.

(Special by Phone.) GEORGETOWN, July 22—When Supreme Court resumed this morning the Attorney General moved that sentence be pronounced on Minnie McGee, who has been indicted and found guilty of the murder of her son John.

The prisoner when asked if she had anything to say, spoke brokenly and at intervals as follows: "Have mercy on me. I have had a hard time all my life. My head has been so bad the last four months! The pain was dreadful. It was hard in January and grew worse during February, March and April. I am going to do away with my own life. Before I would get sick Patrick McGee would beat me and when he would get me in bed he would beat me—and not give me drink or anything, and told me to lie there till I would rot. I can't bear this pain. Just as I was going to take my own life, Tom McCarron that is the constable took me here. If he had left me, I would be dead now and would be a bother to no one!"

Pat McGee knew I was this way and he had four months warning. He should have taken the children away. It was his fault. He should have tied me or taken me to the asylum I do not know what I am doing when I get this way. I loved my children. I dearly loved them, the quicker they leave me the better and get me out of this misery if they cannot cure the pain."

Justice Fitzgerald, in pronouncing sentence upon the unfortunate woman delivered a brief but excellent and well timed address. Some of his strictures are particularly pertinent on the conduct of some Prince Edward Island jurors. He highly praised the King's County Jury for their fearlessness the strict adherence to duty and answering action on the adduced evidence.

In the name of the Crown he thanked them for the verdict they had brought down. His Lordship made special and well timed reference to the conduct of the jury on the present case as contrasted with the detestable conduct of other weak individuals, sitting on similar cases, who, because of various influences, had been blind to duty.

The verdict in this case will show those, who are studying the development of this country, that the plea of insanity is not to be juggled with and that the laws of the land, safeguarding life, cannot be ignored with impunity. He said that his duty was plain but that the recommendation for mercy brought down with the verdict would be forwarded to the Secretary of State, and that it would receive full consideration;—and along with consideration of the prisoner's sex, her conditions of life etc, etc, might materially modify her ultimate fate.

mate fate. In deliberate tones the prisoner was sentenced to be hanged on Oct. 10 between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. at Georgetown Jail.

The prisoner on hearing sentence, cried "Hanged! Hanged! Hanged, hanged, hang me now and be done with it!"

When taken outside the Court on return to the jail she grew especially violent, threw off her hat and tore her garments. She was eventually quieted to some degree.

ROME, July 20—Following the Pope's participation to-day in the ceremonial of the ninth anniversary of Leo XIII's death, his doctors ordered Pius to suspend all public audiences, and as much other work as possible during the rest of the summer. His condition is not alarming, but the physicians say he must have rest if he is to survive long.

NEILSON, B. C., July 22—Several persons are said to have been drowned, the city weigh scale buildings were levelled to the ground, hearings were picked up bodily and carried scores of feet, street cars and houses were struck by lightning, and gardens and glass houses were damaged by a terrific rain and hail storm, punctuated by frequent flashes of lightning, which swept over Nelson about 8 o'clock Sunday evening, and a similar, but less severe storm on Saturday.

GRANDIDGE, Kent Co., N. B., July 23—One of the worst storms for years is now raging along the shore here. This morning about five o'clock, Albert Cassie, aged 21 years, son of W. A. Cassie, of Cassie Cape, saw that a large boat belonging to O. M. Melanson's lobster industry was sinking. He and another young man named Thomas Gallant went out to save the boat, but as the boat was capsized by the storm, Young Cassie must have been struck as he sank to the bottom. His companion, Gallant, clung to the boat which drifted to the shore. Cassie's body has been recovered having been washed ashore by the storm. The fatality has thrown a gloom over the neighborhood, as he was a highly esteemed young man.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 22—The statement that Captain E. J. Smith, commander of the ill-fated Titanic, was not drowned, but was seen Friday morning in Baltimore, is made by Peter Pryal, a retired mariner of this city, who was quartermaster on the steamship Majestic of the White Star line thirty years ago when Captain Smith commanded the vessel. Pryal said that he had not only seen the captain, but talked with him. Pryal also said that he saw Captain Smith last Wednesday morning but was skeptical as to his identity, and to confirm his belief that the captain was alive went to the same spot on Friday morning and again saw the captain and walking up to him, he said, "Captain Smith, how are you?" Then according to Pryal, the man answered "Very well, Pryal, but please don't detain me, I am on business."

Without realizing what he was doing, Pryal followed the man, who later bought a ticket to Washington.

BOMBAY, July 23 (Special)—Bombay, a modern city of telephones and electric trams, has been the scene of a remarkable Mahometan religious "revival," set in an atmosphere that vividly recalls the Arabian nights.

This stir of religious inspiration was the result of the visit to the city of the Pir Saheb of Bagdad, the High Priest of the Faithful, a leader who is to the Moslem what the Pope is to the Roman Catholic. He is looked upon with the utmost veneration by the followers of the Prophet, and they flocked daily to the bungalow where he took up his quarters in order that their eyes might look on the blessed face of the saint (for as such he is regarded), or that they might perhaps be allowed to kiss his feet. The Mahometans in this city alone number many thousands, and their numbers were reinforced by every train that arrived from the country districts during the visit, to such an extent, in fact, that his Holiness was compelled to appoint certain hours of the day on which to appear to the people, in order to give himself even a minimum of leisure and privacy. Special services were held in all the mosque, and all over the town itinerant preachers seized the opportunity of exhorting street-corner crowds to faithfulness and fervor.

The culminating point of the ceremony was reached when the Pir consented to drive through the streets of the native quarters of the town so that even the poorest and busiest might see him. The Mahometan community rose nobly to the occasion. A "firman" went forth that the Faithful should contribute according to their means to a fund for decorating the streets, and for several days beforehand preparations were made on a most elaborate scale. The narrow, dirty streets were transformed into gardens of flowers, with festoons of greenery and bunting, and lit up with fairy lamps and lanterns, till the miserable slums were like fairyland. When driven along the route half a dozen cavalrymen from the body-guard led the way, followed by a carriage with the Police Commissioner; then came an open victoria with his Holiness, a pale-faced, bearded, intellectual-looking man, younger than one would have expected; and another body of cavalrymen brought up the rear. There was no speech-making, no chattering, nothing but profound salaams and eager, reverent looks. It was certainly an Arabian Night.

LONDON, July 23—The Right Hon. R. L. Borden came to town from Hatfield house this morning to resume the naval negotiations at the admiralty. The Canadian premier made his third public utterance this evening at a dinner given by the London chamber of commerce, when he responded to the toast of "Our Guests," which was proposed by the Earl of Desborough. To the Hon. L. P. Pelletier was assigned the toast "The Imperial Forces of the Crown," to which Lord Charles Beresford responded. Other important functions of the week will include the imperial government dinner on Wednesday night and a dinner at Lord Strathcona's on Thursday night. Premier Borden follows the Hon. L. P. Pelletier and the Hon. C. J. Doherty to Paris on Saturday. While there the Canadian ministers will be entertained by President Fallieres, the French American society and the Paris British chamber of commerce.
