Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Matter of Life and Death
"The Imperial Government had to advance into France by the quickest and easiest way, so as to be able to get well ahead with the operations and endeavor to strike some decisive blow as early as possible. It was a matter of life and death with them, as if they had gone by the more southern route they could not have hoped, in view of the paucity of roads and the strength of the fortresses, to have got through without formidable opposition, entailing great loss of time. This loss of time would have meant time gained by the Russians for bringing up their troops to the German frontier. Rapidity of action was the great German asset, while that of Russia was an inexhaustible supply of troops."
Deliberate Violation
"In the Reichstag, too, on the fourth of August, 1914, the German Chancellor stated in referring to the violation of the neutrality of Belgium and Luxembourg:
"The wrong, I speak openly, the wrong we thereby commit we will try to make good as soon as our military aims have been attained."
"The violation of Belgian neutrality, therefore, was deliberate, although Germany had actually guaranteed that neutrality; and surely there has been nothing more despicable than that to justify it, ex post facto, by bringing against the innocent, inoffensive Belgian Government and people the totally false charge of having plotted against Germany."
Was Afraid of War
"The German Chancellor does not emphasize, in his latest speech, that charge, which has been spread broadcast against Belgium. Is it withdrawn; and if so will Germany make reparation for the cruel wrong done to Belgium?

"The two negotiations for an Anglo-German agreement in 1912, referred to by the German Chancellor, were brought to a point at which it was clear they could have no success unless we, in effect, gave a promise of absolute neutrality while Germany remained free, under her alliances, to take part in a European war. This can and shall be explained by publishing an account of the negotiations taken from the records in the Foreign Office.
"The Chancellor quotes an isolated sentence of my speech of the third of August, 1914, to prove that we were the words of a man who had desired and planned a European war, or of one who had labored to avert it. The extent of the German Chancellor's misapprehension of the isolated sentence which he quotes will be obvious to any one who reads the full context of the speech.
"As to the other statement attributed to me, not even when we were perfectly free, when Japan, who was our ally, had not entered the war, and when we were not pledged to the other allies, as we are now by the agreement of the 5th of September, 1914, did I say anything so ridiculous or untrue as that it was in the interest of Germany that we had gone to war, and with the object of restraining Russia.
"The war would have been avoided if the conference had been agreed to, Germany, on the flimsiest pretext, shut the door against it. I would regret nothing on the point of form, and expressed myself ready to acquiesce in any method of mediation that Germany could suggest, if mine were not acceptable. I say I was ready to cooperate in any method that Germany thought possible if only Germany would press the button in the interest of peace.
He Desired War
"The German Chancellor, according to his speech, encouraged nothing, except direct discussion between Vienna and Petrograd. But what chance had that success when, as we heard afterwards, the German Ambassador at Vienna was expressing the opinion that Russia would stand aside, and was conveying to his colleagues the impression that he desired war from the first, and that his strong personal bias probably colored his action there.
"Some days perhaps, the world will know what really passed between Germany and Austria respecting the ultimatum to Serbia and its consequences. It has become only too apparent that in the proposal for the conference, which we made and which Russia, Italy and France, agreed to and which Germany vetoed, lay the only hope of peace. And it was such a good hope.
Germans Responsible
"Serbia had accepted nearly all the Austrian ultimatum, severe and violent as it was. The points outstanding could have been settled honorably and fairly in conference in a week. Germany ought to have known, and must have known, that she should take the same straight and honorable part in it that she herself recognized we had taken in the Balkan conference, working not for a diplomatic victory of the group but for a fair settlement, and ready to side against any attempt to exploit the conference unfairly to the disadvantage of Germany and Austria.
"The refusal of the conference by Germany, though it did not decide British participation in the war, did, in fact, decide the question of peace for Europe, and signed the death warrant of the many hundreds of thousands who have been killed in this war.
"Nor must it be forgotten that the Emperor of Russia proposed to the German Emperor that the Austro-Serb dispute should be settled by the Hague tribunal. Is there one candid soul in Germany and Austria-Hungary, who, looking back on the past year, does not regret that neither the British nor the Russian proposal was accepted?
Under Prussian Shield
"And what is the German programme as we gather it from the speech of the Chancellor and the public utterances in Germany now?—Germany to control the destiny of all other nations, to be the shield of peace and freedom of big and small nations. Those are the Chancellor's words— an iron peace and a freedom under the Prussian shield, under German supremacy. Germany supreme.
"Germany alone would be free—free to break international treaties, free to crush when it pleased her, free to refuse all mediation, free to go to war when it suited her, free when she did go to war to break again all rules of civilization and humanity on land and sea; and while she may act thus all her commerce at sea is to remain as free in time of war as all commerce is in time of peace.
"Freedom of the sea may be a very reasonable subject for discussion, definition and agreement between the nations after this war, but not by itself alone; not while there is no freedom

Belgium's Position Towards Germany
LONDON, Aug. 25.—Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, tonight sent a letter to the press replying to a speech delivered in the German Reichstag last week by Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Chancellor.
In the letter Sir Edward deals at length with the charge that Belgium had trafficked her neutrality with Great Britain and the Allies.
"There are some points in the speech the German Chancellor made last week," the letter says, "which may, I think, be suitably dealt with in a letter to the press, pending a fuller review of the situation, which may be appropriate in some other method and at some other time."
"I will state the facts and reflections they suggest as briefly and as clearly as I can, and I ask you to be good enough to make them public."
No Agreement Existed
"One Belgian record, a conversation with the British military attaché, was published by Germany last autumn to prove that Belgium had trafficked her neutrality with us, and was, in effect, in a plot with us against Germany."
The conversation, of which the most use has been made, never was reported to the Foreign Office nor, as far as the records show, to the War Office at the same time, and we saw a record of it the first time when Germany published the Belgian record.
"But behind the face of it that it referred only to the contingency of Belgium being attacked, that the entry of the British into Belgium would take place only after the violation of Belgian territory by Germany, and that it did not commit the British Government. No convention or agreement existed between the British and Belgian Governments.
The True Story
"Why does the German Chancellor mention these informal conversations of 1906, and ignore entirely that of April, 1912? The answer is simple. The minister most emphatically that what we desired in the case of Belgium, as with other neutral countries, was that their neutrality should be respected, and that so long as it was not violated by any other power we should certainly not send troops into their territory."
"Let it be remembered that the first use made by Germany of the Belgian document was to charge Belgium with bad faith to Germany. What is the true story? On the 29th of July, 1914, the German Chancellor tried to bring in by a promise of future Belgian independence to become a party to the violation of Belgian neutrality by Germany. On the outbreak of the war he described the Belgian treaty as a scrap of paper, and the German Foreign Secretary explained that Germany must go through Belgium to attack France because she could not afford the time to do otherwise. The statement of Herr von Jagow is worth noting again:

Hot Dinners; Hot Dinners;
The meal tables this year will be in charge of the ladies of Montague and vicinity, and all the proceeds derived from the tables will go to "THE ISLAND SOLDIERS' SUPPLEMENTARY FUND."
They will give you the best dinner in town, and we trust that you will be patriotic enough to give them your hearty support as they well deserve.
LOOK! Just the price of your dinner will mean many comforts to "Our Soldier Boys" in the trenches. You won't forget them, will you?
There will be well stocked Ice Cream and Refreshment Saloons, Dancing Booths, etc.
The following train arrangements have been made, carrying horses as well as people:—
