Ancient Needlework

The earliest example of needlework known to exist, according to a recently published book on old embroidery, comes from the tomb of a Pharaoh fifteen hundred years before the Christian era, and there are specimens of Greek work dating from twelve centuries later. The well known Bayeux tapestries, commemorating the Norman conquest, may have been wrought by English hands, though their origin is uncertain, but there is a remarkable example of Anglo-Saxon needle work, done just a thousand years ago, in some church vestments in Durham Cathedral. English embroidery of the thirteenth century was much in favor and in demand throughout Europe. A great quantity of needlework was done in the times of Queen Elizabeth and James I. Considering that the population was only one-eighth of the number of the present time, the quantity known to be produced shows that this beautiful and elaborate work must have been diligently practiced in most houses.

Tommy and the Baroness
During the Allied occupation of Germany, an amusing encounter took place between a British soldier and a German baroness. The baroness, writes Miss Violet R. Markham in "Watching on the Rhine," told a British officer that one of his men insulted her. In deed, she declared, she had never been so insulted in her life. The officer at once began inquiries and finally learned that the lady had found two British soldiers whistling and sliding down the banisters of her back stairs. She had told them sharply that whistling and sliding down the banisters were prohibited. Whereupon Thomas Atkins, genial and undefeated, had turned to her and remarked pleasantly, "Ay, missus, but ye should have won the war, and then yer could have come and slid down our back stairs and whistled."

Mixed Peers
Sir Arthur Balfour is now Earl Balfour of Whittingehame and the list of mixed peers has been extended. There is already a Lord Balfour of Burleigh. There are two Lords Morley—the well-known, viscount, and the less-known earl—two Lords Cobham, and two Lords Ashton in the House of Lords. There is a Lord Curzon in the Upper House and another in the Lower House; the latter's is a courtesy title. Lord Middleton with two have occasionally been mixed up by some people, and others with names that clash are Lords Lindsay and Lindsay, Longford and Langford and Torrington and Torrington.

WHEAT CROP OF WEST WILL EQUAL THE BUMPER HARVEST OF 1915

WINNIPEG, Man., July 22.—The Union Bank crops report, issued today, indicates that the West is now pretty well assured of a good crop, particularly in Manitoba. The yield per acre may not be as great as 1915, Canada's last bumper year, but the increased acreage is expected, materially to offset any shrinkage in the yield. Weather conditions have continued favorable, rains and dull weather sending the grain growth forward. Alberta is uneven, but should harvest a good average crop. Generally there is sufficient moisture; grain is heading and of good height. Southern Alberta, particularly, has improved, and in the irrigated districts the outlook continues distinctly favorable. Rye cutting has started and will be general in all three provinces this week. Conditions generally are satisfactory in Southern Saskatchewan; wheat has made splendid progress, at some points being 40 to 50 per cent in head. In Manitoba the crop is reported good, with plenty of moisture. Damage from any source has been slight. Taken as a whole, and considering the immense territory covered, the report is decidedly satisfactory, and it is noticeable that conditions in Western Canada are already showing signs of improvement.

CANADA WILL GET ONLY $1,000,000 OF WAR SERVICE CANTEEN PROFITS

LONDON, July 21.—A British White Paper issued today concerning the war service canteen profits makes it appear that Canada's share will be considerably less than the most pessimistic estimate. The High Commissioner's Office has so far been unable to secure the exact amount of the bill. The White Paper, however, indicates that the total amount which has been or will be permitted for the overseas forces is $1,093,000. In this, apparently India Australia New Zealand and South Africa will also participate so that Canada's share of the profits will probably not be more than $1,000,000. The White Paper says that over £700,000 of the total of £1,093,000 has already been paid, and mentions that £133,000 has been paid to Canada since August of 1920. Further allocations to be made to the Dominion total £363,000, so that any further sums which Canada will receive will be a share of this—probably about $100,000.

A Faithful Friend
A family residing near the railroad allowed their little girl, aged five years, to play about the yard of their residence on pleasant days with a Newfoundland dog. One day the child ran away—all children do so—and in her wanderings about was accompanied by the dog, who apparently fell in duty to see that no harm befell her. When the two came to a railroad crossing, a train was coming, and it looked a little dangerous. The dog saw the danger, and quickly seized the little miss by the skirts of her dress, and being stronger of the two pulled her back and the less-known earl—two Lords Cobham, and two Lords Ashton in the House of Lords. There is a Lord Curzon in the Upper House and another in the Lower House; the latter's is a courtesy title. Lord Middleton with two have occasionally been mixed up by some people, and others with names that clash are Lords Lindsay and Lindsay, Longford and Langford and Torrington and Torrington.

Our Shoulders
To the majority of persons the statement that their shoulders are not of the same height will come as a surprise, but tallors know that almost invariably the left shoulder is higher than the right. If a baby's shoulders are measured it will be found that they are exactly even. That they do not remain so is blamed upon parents, who as it were lead their young and growing children by the left hand. This is a natural manner of leading the child, as it shields it from bumps of persons met in its walks, but the muscles and bones are thus continually raised and in the end drawn permanently out of position, although the change is so slight that it is not noticeable unless accurate measurements are taken.

Superstition Among French People
That superstition and belief in witchcraft and sorcery are not dead in France was shown the other day in the case of a young Parisian girl, who, acting on the advice of a fortune teller, buried a call's heart in a woman's grave in order to recover the affection of her faithless lover. In the provinces such cases are common. There are villagers who are popularly believed to cast spells over their neighbors; magicians and sorcerers in the back valleys of the Loire and on the lonely Landes of Brittany who wield mysterious power and call up infernal forces of good or evil to smother of terrorize the peasants. Frequently French superstition finds comfort in "good spirits" in the form of magicians who are learned in the art of discovering buried treasure or of healing the sick. They are reputed to hold converse with the spirits of the departed and are consulted by their neighbors on family affairs, like wills or marriages just as the Oracles were consulted in ancient times.

Gaze Lower and Be Safe
The president of the Baldwin Locomotive works would have us keep young men by "gazing into the faces of the young around us." We knew of one fellow who did that and got jabbed with a haptin.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Said and Done
The speedometer said 60 miles an hour. The constable said it was 90. The natives said it was a crime. He said it was the life. His friends said it. With flowers.—Wayside Tales.

Was a Good Ananias.
The new Controller-General of Civil Aviation, Major-Gen. Sir W. A. Brancker, has had a remarkable career as a British pilot. He joined the Air Force immediately after war broke out, and soon gained a reputation as a daring pilot. Although he is still well on the right side of fifty, he has held most of the important posts in the flying world. An amusing incident happened to him when he went up to be medically examined for his pilot's certificate. "Will be a danger to himself and everybody else." As a matter of fact, the general has never had a "crash" in all the thousands of miles which he has flown.

NO NEWLY RICH NEED APPLY
GENEVA, Switzerland, July 21.—Two royal princesses, sisters aged 23 and 26, desire friendship and eventually marriage, after mutual tests with English or American gentlemen, who must be young, wealthy and handsome, especially not upstarts or newly rich," reads an advertisement in an Innsbruck newspaper. "The princesses, who belong to the old royalty, are accomplished but very poor. The gentlemen must give full details and references." A meeting could be arranged.

PREYS WITH PRAYERS
"Don't you think it's wrong to fish on Sunday Bruders Jones?" "Not to me, deacon, kase ah does it religiously. Ah alius prays for a nible an' gives thanks when ah lands a fish."

HIS PRIZE-WINNING MEMORY
"How are you getting on in school asked Willie's uncle. "Fine," said the boy. "Get any prizes?" "Two." "What did you get taem for?" "One was for good memory, and other—" Willie halted and scratched his head a moment—"I forget what I got the other for."

CROWDS JAM BROADWAY TO SEE RUTH'S STUNT
NEW YORK, July 21.—"Babe" Ruth drew another capacity crowd today, but this time they were not cash customers for the New York club. Twenty thousand saw "Babe" free of charge in front of the Coban Theatre, Broadway, near Forty-third street, when he caught a ball thrown from the roof of the theatre by Bob Meusel, also the New York American League team. "Police reserves had their hands full with the crowd that filled Longacre Square to watch the performance. The first ball went wide, landing on the car tracks. The second landed in the glove of the famous home-run hitter, but it fell right out again. A third was held. The "Babe's" fielding average thus was .333. The exhibition was to attract attention to the performance at the theatre to aid the New York Police Widows' Pension Fund.

VERY OBLIGING
The dandy sauntered into the village shop and asked, with a supercilious air: "Do you sell puppy biscuits in this rotten little shop?" "Yes, sir, certainly," said the shopman suavely. "Shall I put them in a bag for you to take home, or will you eat them here?"
