Chinese Detective Solves Another
Baffling Mystery

Warner Oland, known to moviegoers the world over as the impersonator of that bland Chinese detective, Charlie Chan, once again assumes the role he so intelligently interprets in Fox Film's latest mystery release, "Charlie Chan's Courage," which opened at the Prince Edward Theatre yesterday. The film, which was adapted to the screen from Earl Derr Biggers' novel, "The Chinese Parrot," abounds in thrills, blood-chilling mystery and drama.

So thoroughly baffling is the film that it would be impossible to expand all of its thrilling details in so limited a space.

Charlie Chan (Warner Oland) is entrusted with a string of valuable pearls to be delivered to the buyer at his ranch at El Dorado. Oland is accompanied by the jeweler's son, Bob Crawford (Donald Woods). Unidentified persons have attempted to learn the identity of the man bringing the pearls. When Oland and Woods arrive at the ranch, their suspicions are aroused by a series of mysterious events. A Chinese talking picture screams "Help! Murder!" then dies from poison in his food. That gives Oland an important clue to the mystery's solution. Bloodstains are found, indicating a murder, but Chan can't find the body.

Autumn Vacations To Southern Seas

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 4.—Intending vacationists who have postponed their holidays until the Autumn will find delightful vacation offerings in the twenty-one-day popular Autumn cruises commencing with the month of October being arranged by the Canadian National Steamships to southern seas. These cruises are operated at very low all-inclusive vacation rates and are conducted on the white yacht-like ships comprising the West Indies fleet, with all first-class outside rooms combining all the comforts found on the most modern ocean liners, and including the finest cuisine. Nine of the cruises take in the St. Lawrence River and Gulf. Other cruises leave from Halifax and Boston taking in Bermuda, the eastern group of the British West Indies and British Guiana. "In organizing these twenty-one cruises for the Fall vacationist, we feel we are offering to the public an unequalled opportunity for a most enjoyable ocean journey to many delightful areas in southern seas at a time of the year when weather and scenery combine to produce a perfect holiday, plus the utmost in comfort, service and cuisine" stated Mr. Eke, Passenger Traffic Manager of the steamship line. "Judging by September sailings, which have been exceptionally good, there is every indication that these Fall cruises will be well patronized and everyone is assured of a good time."

At Capitol

The frontier town of Tombstone, Arizona, makes its last stand against the onrush of civilization in "Frontier Marshall," the latest Fox Film release which comes to the Capitol Theatre today. Tombstone is the town that was overrun by lawlessness and banditry, until that famous peace officer, Wyatt Earp, made his appearance on the frontier and brought it law and order. The screen play was adapted from incidents in the life of Wyatt Earp, and George O'Brien plays the title part.

It is reported that "Frontier Marshall" is real, true and convincing, its characters having stepped to the screen from life itself. The people you see, the motives that guide them and their heroic actions have all actually happened.

The story concerns a young man and a girl who fall in love after they meet in the stage coach bound for Tombstone. His attempts to bring law and order to the town become all the more difficult when he discovers that the Mayor is in league with the outlaws. But he finally succeeds. The climax of the story is heralded as being one of the most stirring of Western epics.

George O'Brien, who was last seen in "The Last Trail," has the leading masculine role, while Irene Bentley, who will be remembered for her splendid performance in "Smoky," plays opposite O'Brien. Other members of the cast are George E. Stone, Alan Edwards, Ruth Gillette, Berton Churchill, Frank Conroy, Ward Bond, Edward LeSaint, Russell Simpson and Jerry Foster.

250,000 HEIRESS MARRIES

A $500,000 heiress, wearing a simple blue dress and a brown hat instead of the usual white and orange blossom, was married at the little twelfth-century village church in Wilcombe, England recently.

She was Miss Lettice Mary Talbot, of Lyptall Park, Stroud, who four years ago was left half a million pounds by her great-uncle Colonel W. B. Brookhurst, a silk manufacturer, of Macclesfield, Cheshire.

A condition of the will was that Miss Talbot should obtain the permission of her grandmother before marrying. The grandmother died after the will was proved, and it was provided in the will that in such a case Miss Talbot should secure the consent of the trustees or of the majority of them.

The bridegroom was Mr. George Butt Miller, the twenty-three-year-old son of the late Mr. Thomas Butt Miller and Mrs. Miller, of Kingswood Park, Tetbury, Gloucestershire. He is a former subaltern in the Grenadier Guards.

The Bishop of Gloucester married them.

Only a small number of relatives and friends were present at the wedding. The bride and bridegroom afterwards left by motor car for a honeymoon in Scotland.

Miss Talbot is a pretty girl with soft brown hair, she is a racing enthusiast and owns racehorses.

Lighthouses Lure Migratory Birds To Death In N. S.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., Oct. 4.—(CP)—Nova Scotia's 300 light-houses, monuments of safety of the men who go down to the sea in ships, are becoming death to thousands of migratory birds now journeying southward for the winter months.

Attracted by the flashing lights, like moths to a candle, the feathered creatures dash themselves against the tall keepers of the seas.

Almost every morning at this time of the year and in the springtime the coaginess of the Maritime Provinces, Newfoundland and Labrador are strewn with dead and wounded birds, that have hurled themselves against the rounded stone walls of the lighthouses.

Fractured skulls, broken bills, crushed and fractured wings and other serious injuries bring the migratory birds down into the pounding surf, where they are swept against the rocky shore to their doom.

Even wild geese, strongest and least tame of all migratory feathered creatures passing through these straits, have been known to hurt themselves at lighthouses, and so perished, shattering the well back of the strong glass.

Only a few years ago the keeper of the light at Cape Anguille Newfoundland, recounted how more than a thousand land birds of all sizes and species, tossed away their lives, driven to a frenzy by the tantalizing, glittering light, "on a clear, dark night."

Seven rare specimens of migratory birds were found wedged in between the rocks surrounding Hope Lighthouse Island, off Port Joli Harbor in Queens County, Nova Scotia, recently, and they have been forwarded to R. W. Tufts, Chief Federal Migratory Bird Officer, for identification and preservation.

Hope Light towers more than 100 feet above the surrounding rocks and waters and the light, which flashes its warning signal to fishermen in danger of a foggy night once every 10 seconds, is so powerful that it is visible for a distance of 15 miles or more out to sea.

The largest bird of the seven found at the foot of Hope Light was a Florida Gallinule, a bird about the size of a crow, belonging to the Rall family.

They are comparatively unknown in the Maritime Provinces being shy and furtive. Our swamps provide the necessary rushes for them when passing north or south, and the winter is spent along the coastwaters of the Gulf of Mexico, as its name would indicate.

Mr. Tufts is investigating the problem, which has puzzled man ever since he went down to the sea. When a solution is forthcoming it will mean the salvation annually of tens of thousands of wild bird life.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. G. F. HART

Many people in Charlottetown will learn with regret of the death of Mr. G. F. Hart, who passed away suddenly on Thursday, September 20, at his home at 124 Brighton Road.

Mr. Hart, who was born in London, England, was a son of the late George and Esther Hart. He spoke French fluently, having received his education in London and Paris. He inherited from his mother a keen love of flowers and music. Six years ago, after having resided in Canada for some years, he visited his mother, who passed away in 1932.

The Rev. H. D. Raymond conducted the funeral service on Saturday at St. Paul's Anglican Church. The interment followed in the Peoples Cemetery.

He leaves to mourn his wife, three children, Gladys, Esther and George, one sister and brother, both of London, England; and a cousin, Miss Alice M. Walker of Bogor Regis, England.

Card Of Thanks

Mrs. G. F. Hart and family wish in this way to express their gratitude to the many friends who sent loving messages of sympathy, in their recent sad bereavement. L-944-10-5-11.

Veteran Horse
Trainer Dies

(A.P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N. Y., Oct. 4.—George W. ("Sandy") McNaughton, veteran trainer of thoroughbred race-horses, died today of heart trouble following a brief illness at his home here.

He was born in Watertown, N. Y., 62 years ago. McNaughton raced Judge Denny, one of the greatest long distance horses of the century. His best horse, however, was Audacious, on which he was reported to have won a small fortune. Several years ago he retired from active training. He is survived by his widow.

Good Roads Bring Big Tourist Trade

(C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
KENTVILLE, N.S., Oct. 4.—Nova Scotia will have 200 miles of hard surfaced roads laid before the autumn of 1935. P. W. Holdsworth, President of the Land of Evangeline Tourist Association, told that organization today at its annual meeting. He said he had the assurance of Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Minister of Highways, that this mileage would be laid, and that 25 to 30 miles of permanent highway would be ready for use this winter.

"Our country can hope to attract the tourist trade to any extent unless they have hard surfaced roads," D. Leo Dolan, direct of publicity, Ottawa told the association. He urged that all tourist associations get away from political interference and pull together to build up a great industry for Canada.

The tourist trade was spread out to all parts of the community, he said, claiming that the tourist industry had supplanted wheat as Canada's most important industry. Advertising and publicity costing $66,000 would be expended by the Dominion Travel Bureau in attracting Americans to Canada, he said. The Bureau would also promote inter-provincial tourist travel.

COLONEL DREW IS FIRED BY HEPBURN GOVT.

Noted Canadian Soldier Charges Political Interference in His Department.

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—(CP)—Lieut. Col. George A. Drew closed his office this evening within a couple of hours of notification that he had been dismissed by a special order issued at the head of the Ontario Securities Commission.

The 40-year-old soldier, lawyer and author received late this afternoon a copy of the order providing for his dismissal which had been passed by a special cabinet council meeting. There was no official reason given for his dismissal which culminated in a long verbal dispute between Colonel Drew and Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck, attorney-general.

At conclusion of the council meeting Mr. Roebuck said Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial secretary, who is acting premier in the absence of Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, would make a formal statement later. Shortly after, however, the attorney-general disclosed the action of the meeting and Mr. Nixon said there would be no need for any further announcement.

Colonel Drew issued a reply to surviving statements of the attorney-general.

"The attorney-general, however, said he had no further comment to make in the controversy and did not wish to be interviewed in this respect. When reporters pressed him to announce officially the reason for Colonel Drew's dismissal, Mr. Roebuck suggested they look back over the statements issued by himself and the commissioner.

Alleges Inefficiency

"My first letter to him," said the attorney-general, "says the resignation was requested because of inefficiency in the department. I have nothing else to say, and he can have the last word as far as I'm concerned. I'm not going to issue any further statements."

Ira A. Humphries K.C., deputy attorney-general, was appointed temporary head of the securities department, and it was suggested by a head of the attorney-general's office that his system would continue "for the next several months," when it was intimated legislation might be passed to place the commission directly under control of the department.

Colonel Drew, in his statement this afternoon, denied Mr. Roebuck's statement that the commissioner had appealed for reconsideration of the demand for his resignation.

"I merely asked for an explanation of the thus-veiled insinuation in his vague suggestion that my work had not been efficient," said Colonel Drew.

Charges Interference

The commissioner also expressed doubt of Mr. Roebuck's claim that "he knows absolutely nothing of the disappearance from my files of the document to which I refer to." He went on to express satisfaction that that attorney-general knows quite well the case to which I refer. On two occasions I was asked to reconsider refusal of registration, something that has never occurred before in the time I have been in this position.

It was discovery that files in reference to this case had disappeared from his records, said Colonel Drew which precipitated his action in making public a letter he had written the attorney-general last Friday.

Col. Drew's Exposure

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—(CP)—Col. George A. Drew, dismissed Ontario securities commissioner, tonight made public correspondence which he claimed showed attorney-general Arthur Roebuck sought his resignation after he had refused the applications of a certain securities salesman.

Col. Drew charged his resignation was demanded after he had failed to heed the attorney-general's "command" to reconsider the application of this salesman claimed by the former commissioner to have 12 criminal convictions.

Col. Drew declared this salesman admitted, W.H. Price, attorney-general in the former conservative government, had refused him an interview. The former securities commissioner also declared the salesman had said he believed that "now the liberal government is in power" he would have "justice" granted.

Rarely Seen

White men who have lived practically all their lives in the jungle confess they have never seen a bushmaster. But perhaps that is because those who do see the snake never live to tell the tale. For the bushmaster is one of the few snakes which will attack a human being every time, whether or not a chance of escape is offered. And an attack by a bushmaster usually spells death for the victim.

Natives speak its name in a whisper. And among them there is one thing only to be done when a bushmaster is sighted, no matter how far away—run for the nearest tree and climb as high as you can get.

Today's shooting of the bushmaster was told in a wireless message from a boundary commission 500 miles deep in the British Guiana jungle, which is demarcating the border between this country and Brazil. Men in camp heard screams and rushed out to see Eustace Wastley, a boatbuilder with the expedition gripped firmly by the trousers as the snake made ready to kill him. Near collapse after the ferocious reptile had been killed, Nassy said the monster had caught him as he raced for the camp after sighting

Huge Bushmaster "King of the Jungle," Slain When About to Strike Victim.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Oct. 3.—(C. P. Cable)—A great bushmaster—the snake that South American natives call the "King of the Jungle"—was slain today in British Guiana's wild hinterland while he held a man by the slack of the pants and tossed him about in preparation for the kill.

A rifle bullet that struck squarely between the eyes despatched the thrashing 35-foot monster and saved the life of his screaming victim. It was the first authenticated killing of a bushmaster in British Guiana's history.

DECREASE IN WHEAT EXPORT

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—Export clearances of Canadian wheat for the week ending Sept. 28 amounted to 3,036,333 bushels a decrease of 330,363 bushels from the clearances of 3,402,691 bushels for the previous week. A still greater decrease is shown in comparison with the clearances of 3,813,376 for the corresponding week in 1933.

Clearances by ports for the week ending September 28 with those for corresponding week last year in brackets follow: Montreal 849,340 (1,763,364); Quebec 862,500 (959,370); United States ports 736,000 (517,000); Vancouver-New Westminster 776,993 (654,992); Churchill 675,000 (none); total 3,036,333 (3,813,376).

Export clearances since the beginning of the current crop year with those for the same period last year in brackets follow: Montreal 3,077,326 (14,578,793); Quebec 862,500 (1,322,558); Sorel 1,187,177 (1,423,133); Halifax none (18,697); United States ports 6,483,000 (3,517,000); Churchill 3,687,477 (2,401,881); Vancouver-New Westminster 6,159,876 (4,837,530); total 26,887,418 (19,100,267).
