Anniversary Of Rev. Mr. Spriggs Is Commemorated

On the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination of Rev. G. T. Spriggs, the Mayor and citizens of Kensington and many people from the surrounding country, gathered at the King George Hall, Kensington, on April 14th at 8 p.m.

His Worship Mayor J. M. Laird, occupied the chair and requested the ministers and their wives and Mr. MacDonald the principal of Kensington High School to take seats on the platform.

After opening remarks by the chairman, the following program was then rendered:—Chorus, O Canada; Quartette, Messrs. G. R. Phillips, Russell McKay, Geo. E. Brown and Harry Brown; Solo, Mr. David Griffiths; Duet, Miss Miriam Proffitt and Russell McKay; Violin selection, Harry Mill; Solo, Mrs. Preston J. Kennedy; Reading, Mr. Norman MacDonald; Solo, Mr. Garnet W. Proffitt; Instrumental Music; Solo, Miss Olive Daisiel. The chairman then called on Rev. Geo. N. Somers who read the following address to Rev. G. T. Spriggs, while Rev. W. S. Loring presented him with a well filled purse, and Mrs. (Rev.) W. O. Rhoad presented Mrs. Spriggs with a beautiful bouquet of roses.

To the Rev. George T. Spriggs, Dear and Rev. Mr. Spriggs, We the citizens of Kensington and adjoining districts have learned with pleasure of your ordination to the Christian Ministry and rejoice that ten years of that ministry has been spent in our midst.

We have recognized your fine Christian Spirit which has manifested itself in humility and in your desire to serve your fellowman. You have shown to all a splendid example of Christian Charity and devotion. While you have been diligent in the work of your own parish you have given of your time and talent most generously to the common Christian interests and welfare of the province, as well as that of the provincial organizations of The Bible Society, Orphanage, Boy Scouts Association and Hospitals.

We trust that in the good providences of God you may be spared many years for service and it will be a further joy to your friends if

High Percentage Of Select Hogs

During the past six months Prince Edward Island hogs have been showing a very noticeable increase in quality and weight. Farmers are taking greater care in marketing their hogs within the Select weights. In past years practically every car load contained a large number of hogs under 180 lbs. These hogs graded Butchers on weight and thus kept our percentage of Selects lower than it should have been when we consider the superior type of our breeding stock. Since last fall light hogs have not been shipped. Farmers are holding their hogs till 200 lbs. or over, is reached. This improvement in weights is resulting in a very decided increase in the percentage of Selects, with a corresponding decrease in the percentage of Butchers.

As evidence of this improvement we may quote the grading results on some of the best lots shipped by Island Clubs during the week ending April 9th:—

	total	sel.	pe	sel.	cts
Millview Club	51	32	62.7
North Wilshire	51	27	62.7
Hunter River	57	28	49.1
Belfast	20	13	65.0
Misouche	20	9	45.0

Even in these shipments there were a number of hogs which would have graded Select if they had been held back till they weighed over 200 lbs. If all farmers would remember the following slogan, our average percentage of Selects could be practically doubled: "Ship no hogs under 200 lbs."

CHURCH SERVICES

ST. PAULS CHURCH

The services in St. Paul's Church yesterday were well attended. The Rector, the Rev. H. D. Raymond conducted both services and preached a splendid sermon in the morning. The Very Rev. Dean Holmes of Fredericton was the preacher at the evening service.

The choir, with Miss Lillian Earle at the organ did good work in the rendering of two anthems "I cried unto the Lord" and "I am alpha and Omega."

The Rector took as his text the verse "Who was delivered for our offences and raised for our justification." The speaker said Christ was not raised to vindicate us, but to accoster us worthy through Him. The Easter message of Christ's victory and the new power that is ours through that victory is still with us.

Sudden Death Of Mr. H. S. McLeod On Saturday

Citizens will be shocked to learn of the sudden death on Saturday evening of Mr. H. Stanhope McLeod, a much respected resident of the City.

Mr. McLeod, who was 52 years of age, had been ill for about two months, but for the past two weeks had been sufficiently recovered to return to work. About 10.30 Saturday evening, while at the City Club, he was seized with a paralytic stroke and passed away within half an hour.

The late Mr. McLeod was for the past fifteen years employed as accountant at the P. E. Island Telephone Co. Before that he worked with Bruce Stewart & Co. and the Charlottetown Steam Navigation Co.

He received his early education at West Kent School and afterwards attended Prince of Wales College for several years.

During his life he was an ardent supporter of sport, being one of the founders of the Arena Rink and the Victoria Hockey Club. During his college days he played football and during the later years of his life he was a member of the Charlottetown Golf Club.

He was a staunch Christian, being a devoted member of St. Paul's Church.

He was a member of the I.O.O.F. as well as an officer in the Masonic Lodge.

He leaves to mourn besides his mother, Mrs. E. S. McLeod one brother, Victor, of this City.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 3.15 to St. Paul's Church.

Had Eczema All Over Her Body

Mrs. Leo Warder, Springfield, Ont., writes:—"For a long while I was troubled with eczema all over my body. It would burn and itch so at night I could not rest.

I tried different remedies but of no avail. I was advised to take Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking five bottles my blood was completely cleared of the eczema."

REV. M. LEGATE ADDRESSES YOUNG PEOPLE

Following is the sermon delivered by Rev. R. Moorhead Legate in St. James Church last evening, it being one of his monthly talks to young people.

Daniel VI, 10—"Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day and prayed, as he did aforetime."

Dr. George Matheson has said: "The book of Daniel I regard as beyond all things the young man's guide book, the only book which has deliberately pointed out the quality which is essential to the formation of character. It has set itself to solve the problem, what is the secret of manliness. And the solution it gives is so original, so unconventional, and so confirmed by modern experience that we may well pause to study this phase of the picture." Daniel was, as we know, one of the ten thousand prisoners of war whom Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, brought back home with him from his victorious expeditions. And, having arrived at Babylon, Daniel established himself very quickly and very surely in the good graces of those who composed that powerful foreign court. His winsome and clever personality raised him step by step in the service of his royal master, so that one honor after another was bestowed on him; and he eventually became prime minister. Daniel's speedy preferment provoked the jealousy of the young native nobles. It was more than they could bear to stand by and see a foreigner, an outsider, and a despised Jew to boot, promoted over their heads. And so they put their heads together in a nefarious plan to destroy this foreign interloper, as they would regard him. But where were they to strike at him? Here. They had notice, indeed it would be common talk, that this young Jew was a devout man, and that even in this heathen country and surrounded by heathen customs, he had remained true to his Jewish religion and let no day pass without fulfilling the custom of his fathers and kneeling three times a day before his God in prayer. And so they cunningly, using their mighty influence with the weak governor, had a law passed to the effect that no man in the kingdom should say his prayers for the space of thirty days, the penalty for breaking this law being that the culprit should be thrown into a den of lions.

Just put yourself in Daniel's place when that decree was published. He knew it was aimed at him. He knew these courtiers were thirsting for his blood. He is commanded to give up his habit of daily prayer, which to him with his religious up-bringing was blasphemous. But the penalty of non-concurrence might well overcome the scruples of any man—to be cast alive into a den of hungry wild beasts.

If that emergency had to be faced by you and me would we not demand time to think the matter out? Would we not set ourselves to weigh the pros and cons? Would we not thrash our brains to devise some course of action which would enable us to escape the penalty without being false to ourselves? Watch Daniel. What does he do? "Now when Daniel learned that the decree was passed, he went to his house and kneeled before his God three times a day, as he had been wont to do." That is to say, Daniel did not show one moment's hesitation; he planned no bargain with anybody or anything; if he went forward according to his usual programme; if he reasoned the situation out at all, he did it in some such way as this—"Whether am I to obey the King of Babylon or God? Which of the two is my true God and King? And having settled the matter thus, he went home and said his prayers exactly in the same way as he had always said them, the lions and everything else notwithstanding.

This story is a sermon in itself. It really needs no amplifying at all. It gets its point home without the aid of the most powerful preacher. But there are one or two thoughts coming out of it which are very apropos to modern conditions, as young men and young women have to meet and deal with these conditions. Suppose any of you young men and women asked me what were the reasons why Daniel took that determined and courageous stand that day in Babylon. I should have no hesitation in saying that the first thing that contributed to his manly action was the fact that he had formed the habit of prayer. That prayer had found a real and definite place in his life, that prayer had become a part of himself. No man, or woman, can cultivate the habit of prayer in the way Daniel did without getting something out of it. Particularly does the habit of prayer come to one's help in a crisis. Spiritual and moral backbone and grit are only two of the qualities that the habit of prayer confers. Daniels habit of prayer made it possible for him to think more about his hour of prayer than about the threatened den of lions. Just think of Daniel in the midst of that heathen court, living among men who had no care for prayer, men who had probably jeered at him for praying, men who thought him odd or even cranky. Yet he persisted in his habit of prayer. Surely that proves that prayer was with him more than a mere custom, more than a religious ritual. Surely that proves that Daniel had found out by his own experience that prayer, religion, is worthwhile and goes to the making of a man. We should be quite safe in asserting that, if Daniel had found that the habit of prayer was useless he was too sensible a man to have persevered with his prayers in the way he did. He was loyal to his religion, to his church, to his habits of devotion simply because he was persuaded in his own mind that these things were worthwhile and more than worthwhile. I can imagine that Daniel would have been ready to admit that it was his habit of prayer that had knit him in loyalty to the best things a man can covet, and that among those things was the courage he showed in taking the stand he did against the threat of a violent death in a lion's cage. I suggest it would be a fine thing if our young men and young women just sat down quietly and gave some sustained thought to this aspect of the church, religion and the habit of prayer. There is so much superficial and therefore erroneous thinking about this thing. I do ask all you young people who are listening to me to take the matter up with yourselves and work it out to a definite conclusion.

Because, as we read this wonderful story, we cannot possibly avoid comparing ourselves with Daniel. All the world loves a hero, and in the same breath covets a hero's heroic qualities. I am positive that there is not a young man, or young woman for that matter, before me tonight but would give a great deal to be sure they would act as Daniel did in Daniel's circumstances. And I am just as positive that some of us, who know our faults and failings pretty well, would have to confess "I could never have done what Daniel did." Mind you, I am not insinuating for one moment that we have no loyalty to the church, and no admiration for religion, and no belief in the power of prayer—for I know I am addressing young souls who are sincere and keen to do the right. But, after all, we have a right and a duty to put these things to the test. Suppose we have attachment to the church, and esteem for religion, and belief in the

Pasteurization

In the descriptive article of our plant in Saturday's issue the following statement appeared: "Pasteurizing milk means heating it to from 142 to 145 degrees F. and holding it for thirty minutes. To heat milk over 145 degrees spoils it, and less than 142 degrees does not kill the germs.

Heating milk over 145 degrees F. does not spoil it but it is not necessary for efficient pasteurization.
