Paint House in One Hour

Can you paint a house in an hour? The answer is yes; because it was done yesterday in Kensington. Kensington is one of Prince Edward Island's busiest and most progressive towns but yesterday about thirty members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce quit their regular business for an hour to paint a house in one hour. Promptly at two o'clock, Mayor Wilfred Taylor was on hand to fire the opening gun and by three o'clock the group of business men had transformed a drab structure into a beautiful house. When the Kensington Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsors a project they get behind it to a man. Since the formation of this organization in February of this year they have been quite busy for the betterment of the community. They decided to sponsor a clean-up week in Kensington and asked citizens not only to clean up but to paint up as well. One citizen had put a new foundation under his house and improved it otherwise. His house was then chosen by the Junior Chamber of Commerce as the one that they would paint to demonstrate in a tangible way the purpose of their campaign. The firm of Tibbetts Paints of Nova Scotia donated the paint and yesterday practically all of the thirty members of the Chamber of Commerce assembled ready for action with brushes, paint cans and ladders. There was a carpenter, a painter, two town councillors, merchants, farmers, fox ranchers, plumbers, electricians, lobster packers, a potato inspector, a feed manufacturer, a lumber and building contractor, a director of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders Association and others, all led by one trained painter. They painted the house in one hour. They made a good job of it too, using a cream paint with light green for the trimming. Such an accomplishment and display of cooperative spirit is unusual and much to be commended.
