Happenings Of The Week

Prime Minister Churchill brought his wife and youngest daughter, Mary, with him when he arrived in Quebec Tuesday for a war strategy conference, and it marked the first time either had accompanied him in one of his wartime Atlantic crossings. Mrs. Churchill, the former Miss Clemence Hozier, is the daughter of the late Sir Henry Montagu Hozier. She is a slender woman, formerly an excellent tennis player, and although her taste in clothing is not extravagant, she is regarded as being among Britain's well-dressed women. Like the King and Queen, she and her husband, Mr. Churchill, are having done much to keep up the morale of Londoners during the blitz days by their appearances in bombed areas and shelters. Considered one of Britain's ablest women speakers, Mrs. Churchill often hears her husband rehearse his speeches. This rhytm is not bait for flattery, for Mrs. Churchill is one of his most observant critics in matters of oratory. Their daughter, Mary, now is a subaltern in the Auxiliary Territorial Service. She joined the service as a private in 1941 and saw action with anti-aircraft batteries during raids in July, 1942. She seldom goes to night clubs, doesn't smoke and has said that it is not a good thing, although she sings well enough. She has shown a lively interest in public affairs, members of her family say, since she was six years old.

Dr. and Mrs. G. W. O'Brien of Amherst are among the visitors at Stanhope Beach, N.S.

Miss Jessie C. MacGibbon, director of physical training at the Protestant Schools in Shawville, Falls, Ont., who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Taylor in Keppoch, Ont., to Moncton this week to spend a few days with friends before going to her home, Moore's Mills, Charlotte County, where she will spend the remainder of her holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. MacGibbon.

Mrs. W. H. Worth of Halifax has arrived home to visit her parents Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Mutch.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cameron and daughter Ann left on return home by plane Monday after a pleasant visit here the guests of Mrs. Cameron's sister, Mrs. Ernest Lord and Mr. Lord.

Miss Constance MacFarlane entertained at a most enjoyable mixed-entertainment Wednesday evening honoring Mr. and Mrs. D. Anderson who, with their daughter have been on a very pleasant holiday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson and Mr. H. H. MacFarlane. The visitors left yesterday for their home in Montreal, West, accompanied by Miss MacFarlane.

Mrs. M. P. Harrington, accompanied by Miss Yvonne, superintendent of the Dawson Memorial Hospital, Bridgewater, N.S., arrived Thursday evening and plan on spending a vacation on the island.

Mrs. A. R. Wise left yesterday morning for a visit to her daughter Mrs. C. W. Donpierre in Saint John, N.B.

The tea hostesses at the Tennis Courts this afternoon will be Miss Margaret Martin and Mrs. McInnis.

Sergt. D. Ivan Sinclair and bride, the former Miss Marjory Read of Gagetown, N.B., returned to Saint John on Wednesday having spent their honeymoon at Daltry. The pretty wedding in Gagetown the previous week was attended by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Sinclair and sisters, Mrs. Gordon and Miss Ruth Sinclair. With the cordial welcome extended the happy young couple were hosts of good wishes.

Princess Irene of the Netherlands, daughter of Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard, was four years old last week. Born in the year dark clouds were already gathering over Europe, the baby princess was evacuated from Holland with her family after the invasion, when she was just ten months old. She was baptized in the chapel of Buckingham Palace. A Netherlands cruiser Crown Princess Juliana and her two children to Canada, where Ottawa has been their home ever since and the birthplace of a third little princess. The children are happy and healthy and too young to be weighed down by the terrors of war. Canadian hospitality has done much to make the Dutch royal family as happy here as the circumstances allow. Princess Juliana and her daughters are holidaying in the Lake of Bays district of Muskoka.

Dorothy Dix Says—

WAR WORKERS MAY FIND SEX NO SUBSTITUTE FOR PROFICIENCY

Meanwhile Tragedies, Heartaches Of Wives At Home Continue As Conflict's Price

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband works in a defense plant and has been infatuated with a woman who works there, too. We have been married for several years and this is the first time he has ever been unfaithful to me. I love my husband and would hate to see an end to my marriage, but since he has met this girl he has been inconsiderate of me and has taken the attitude that if I don't like it, I know what I can do. It seems to me a shame that all the good work that women are doing in the factories in taking the places of the men who had to go away to fight, should be undone by just such situations as this. Surely we all know that the majority of men now left in factories are married, and the women who work with them should conduct themselves accordingly.

I realize that all the women who are working in factories are not out to have a good time with some other woman's husband, but the ones who do are giving a bad name to all the women who work with them.

What should I do, Miss Dix? Should I just sit tight and hope he will get over it, or should I leave him and try to make a new life for myself?

—A PUZZLED AND UNHAPPY WIFE.

EVIL WOMEN BEGIN STEALTHY SEARCH

ANSWER—Isn't it tragic that good and evil are so inextricably mixed that it seems that we can never have the one without the other? One of the few glimpses of the silver lining of the black war cloud has been the narrow life to which they were bound and striking out into a world that was full of opportunities for them.

Women who had thought that they were doomed to a lifetime of household drudgery have found out that they have mechanical gifts they never suspected, and have been taught new skills. Women who had toiled for a meager wage found themselves earning unreamed of salaries. Women who had never had a decent dress in their lives are able to buy imported finery. So many frustrated ambitions realized, so many longings gratified. It seemed to many of them that they had entered a woman's heaven on earth.

And then the serpent crept into this Eden in the guise of sex. Where so many men and women were thrown together, trouble began. The evil woman, the man-hunter began their stealthy search for the men with the big pay envelopes. The wolves commenced prowling around among the lambs seeking whom they might devour. Good men began casting their eyes on pretty little girls who were half as old as their wives and weighed two-thirds less. Good girls who meant no harm fell in love with good-looking married men with a keen line. Women who had been faithful wives and good mothers were swept off their feet by husbando.

And homes are being broken up. And children half-orphaned, and girls started on the downward path. And hearts broken. And lives wrecked. And what seemed woman's opportunity, may be her undoing. And what's to be the end of it all, only God knows.

Maybe the matter will settle down to have done in the many factories and businesses in which men and women have worked together for years without any more than the usual amount of heart casualties. Maybe it is the nervousness of men and women, who have never worked together before that makes them peculiarly attractive to each other, as novelty always is, and that when a pretty girl going to work beside a man is just a matter of routine, he will be no more interested in her complexion and her figure than he would be in a boy helper. And maybe women will find out that in factories and offices they cannot substitute sex for good work, and that it pays better to know how to do their jobs than it does to try to vamp their bosses.

But if you can laugh the matter off, and the tragedies like yours, poor bewildered, unhappy wife, of having a good, reliable husband turn philanderer. That is a heartache you will never get over. But my advice to you is to be patient with him and wait for his infatuation for this girl to wear itself out, as it almost surely will. He will soon be in common with you, and come back to you a chastened and repentant sinner.

Yes, you consider it a joke. Don't cry. Don't nag. Don't reproach him. Just give him a chance to come to his senses.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a young man in my early twenties. I have a good job with good pay now, but I am not sure whether I will have it after the war is over because I think that the returning soldiers will get all the jobs.

ANSWER—Evidently you lack backbone. Perhaps your girl can surely tell you that you are a coward. Many a man has been driven to marry a very sweet girl whom I love very much, and she loves me, but I am afraid to marry on account of the uncertainty of the future, though she thinks this is silly. I know that if I once took the step everything would work out alright, but I don't have the courage to do that, would enable me to go through with it. Can you give me any encouragement?

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

LONDON, Eng. August 13—There is no serious difference in the medical profession on the question of pasteurization, the British minister of food was told by a high representative of the British Medical Association, when a delegation urged complete pasteurization of milk in the United Kingdom. The distinguished deputation which waited on the minister included representatives of the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, the British Paediatric Association, the Fife's League for Health, and other bodies.

The minister, in reply, said the Government had an obligation to assure a milk supply, and he would like to instruct the people how they might obtain a reasonable, security in milk consumption. He said he was investigating the matter.

Prof. L. F. Garrod informed the minister that tuberculosis was deplorably common among British dairy cattle and that one-third of the deaths from tuberculosis in children under 5 years of age were due to the bovine organism. This meant 2,000 deaths annually, and there was additionally a large percentage of invalidism and crippling.

Another disease of the cow transmitted to man was contagious abortion (which causes undulant fever in humans), and then there were the ordinary infections which might be transmitted, usually by contamination of the milk by the milk.

All bacteria concerned in these cases could be destroyed by moderate heat for a short time. Pasteurization did not alter the flavor of milk.

Dr. Alan Moncrieff, said child specialists were concerned about the possibilities of infections of the alimentary tract due to dangerous milk. Only pasteurization gave the guarantee of safety.

Dr. C. O. Hawthorne said the plan was made by such terms as

SMALL DAUGHTER NEEDS MUCH CARE

The average up-to-date young mother realizes that it's largely up to her—now, while her daughter is little—whether the child grows up to be attractive and contented with her appearance.

However, too few mothers know that the job is not done when the youngster is trained to wash her face and comb her hair prettily. That, for instance, something like the way she reads the funnies may be a stable factor in her health and beauty years hence.

Dr. Frederick A. Woll, Columbia University expert on eyes, says that the American child's favorite funnies reading position—with head hanging down—is responsible for a great deal of near-sightedness. That defect may be corrected by spectacles which, while no beauty bugaboo as they used to be before the glass was slanted to become the face, certainly are not inviting.

Healthy Eyes

Besides, a good keen, healthy eye is a pretty one, the characteristic of health will make up for an absence of the fashionable colour and contour of eye beauty; and seeing properly is one of the least-appreciated, really important spurs to good grooming.

Harnessing young children so that they cannot get to close to their work or pleasure-reading has proved effective—but a little drastic, says Dr. Woll. He suggests that the child have large print, instead, so she will naturally hold it away in order to be able to take it several words at a glance.

And for the sake of the sight of youngsters who stand below the level of the lampshade, be sure that lights are shielded from below by white shades or opaque bulbs.

OTTAWA, Aug. 12—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell and Munitions Minister Howe announced in a joint statement tonight that the National War Labor Board has agreed to review the question of cost-of-living bonus adjustments for employees of three strike-bound Montreal aircraft plants, and to receive a formal application from the workers for such a review after the men on strike have returned to their jobs.

WHICH?

An old farmer of a Worcester-shire village fell asleep in his wagon, and two other farm hands thought they would play a prank on him, and unhitched his horses from the wagon and took them home. Upon awakening some hours afterwards, rubbing his eyes and looking around the farmer said:

"Well, if my name be John Jones, I've lost my horses, but if it ain't I have found a cart."—Exchange.

FURS ARE SCARCER IS WORD FROM EAST

Almost all furs are scarcer this year. This is the word from trade headquarters.

Among those still reasonably available are Persian lamb, Alaska sealskin, mink, skunk, silver fox, and opossum.

Beaver, muskrat, nutria, lynx, leopard, ocelot are less plentiful even than before.

In the basement of one of London's ancestral homes in the heart of Mayfair, a doughnut school has been set up. Here pretty girls, newly arrived from the United States, learn how to turn out doughnuts for troops at the rate of about 840 an hour. They wear white overalls and are easily the loveliest army that has ever visited England. There are nearly 500 American girls now working for the American Red Cross, which runs the doughnut school. They are helped by more than 6,000 British volunteers. There are no beauty bars in this service, and all the girls look glamorous with their silk stockings, varnished

TIME TO STOP THIS GAINING!

Yes, getting fatter and fatter! Last year's suit won't go on unless a lot of weight comes off.

"But dieting takes so much will power!" No, it doesn't—not these days, with modern low-calory diets of three square meals a day with desserts!

Just see the tasty lunch we've pictured. On your diet you can eat such lunches and still lose two pounds a week... for they have few of those fat-making calories. Consomme, a delicious chicken sandwich, berries with cream: add up to only 350.

You have only to keep away from high-calory dishes. Imagine if you ate for lunch a club sandwich, oozing fattening mayonnaise. Why, that alone amounts to 609 calories.

Be syphilis again! Our 32-page booklet gives easy chart and 42 tasty reducing menus based on healthy protective foods. Has a 3-day liquid diet to start you off. Tells how to gain.
