An AIRCRAFT Picture

Bill Hart in an entirely new role, as "Hairpin Harry Dutton, The Convict Burglar," dreaming in his cell of a happy home, which was swept away by the conduct of the faithless wife for whose sake he endured solitary confinement.

She was as bright and beautiful as the Poppy she was named after, but her heart distilled a more terrible poison than the deadly plant.

ISLAND AVIATOR HOME—Among latest arrivals from overseas is Lieutenant Stephen Sherren of Crapaud who has been spending a few days in Charlottetown, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Acorn, Brighton. Lieutenant Sherren went overseas as a private with the 85th Battalion and transferred to the Air Force early in 1917. He was seriously broken up in a crash in France and has since then had a long siege of the hospitals. He is now wonderfully improved and is being warmly welcomed home by many friends. He is a brother of Major Percy Sherren also of the Air Force.

TONIGHT'S HOSPITAL CONCERT—The interesting concert to be given in the P. W. C. Hall tonight by the nurses of the P. E. Island Hospital is to secure funds for a piano for their Nurses Home. Those interested have prepared a nicely varied program in which new talent will take part and it is hoped they will receive a big audience. The Hospital has a claim upon the people of this province which should not be ignored. The nursing staff are endeavored to such comforts as can be given them and the small gift of a piano by the public would be greatly appreciated. It is hoped that generous patronage will be extended on this their first call.

AT THE STRAND

WILLIAM S. HART IN AN ENTIRELY NEW ROLE

Casting aside his famous "hat" and cowboy outfit, William S. Hart essays a new role, that of convict. The Story, Hairpin Harry Dutton, in the tenth year of a fourteen-year sentence for burglary, is paroled, and released from jail where he has been confined because of a fighting belief in the faithfulness of his wife who, before her marriage, was Polly the Poppy Girl. Dutton, discovers on the way back to San Francisco that his wife had secured a divorce a year after he had been sent up, and was now married to Big Mike McCafferty the detective who had forged his case. The Montano Kid, his in the gang, of ex-convict, enlists straight for the sake of his boy with whom he plays "Indian" in the park, unknown to his mother of his stepfather the detective. Dutton learns that his former wife is afraid of him and is planning to have her husband "frame" him. He makes a brand, picturing a woman pushing a cart into his grave, and is almost on the point of taking his revenge, when his boy's sobs detain him. The end of the picture shows father and son enjoying outdoor life far up by the mountain lakes. Scenic views of the Sunny South of England, and cartoons by the celebrated English cartoonist Captain Bairnsfather, complete this excellent program.
