"TEXAS PANHANDLE" AT CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

The Durango Kid rides again today... and the screen echoes to the roar of banking guns and blasting shrapnel. Charles Starrett's latest adventure as the mysterious masked rider, Columbia Pictures' "Texas Panhandle," came to the Capitol Theatre yesterday.

The film features Tex Harding, Dub Taylor, Nanelle Parks and Spade Cooley, the King of Western Swing, and once again Columbia has combined plenty of action, suspense, comedy and musical ballads of the range to turn out one of the most entertaining features of this very excellent Western series.

The plot, has Steve Buckner (Starrett) suspended from the Secret Service pending investigation of his rumored activities as the Durango Kid. He heads West to the Texas Panhandle, and soon finds himself mixing it up with land-grabbing, quick-shooting outlaws, assuming the identity of the Kid, he quickly gets at the bottom of the swindles. Then, Steve, aided by his pal, Tex Harding, organizes the decent citizens of the town and breaks up the gang. He is reinstated as a Secret Service agent.
