HARVARD TRADITION NOW SEEMS DOOMED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 26—One of Harvard's choicest traditions seems doomed.

It has long been a custom at America's oldest University to lay board walks along all paths in the college yard at the start of each winter. The complicated webwork of board walks measures approximately six miles.

When these walks were removed at the end of the past winter it probably was for the last time. It is understood that before next winter all the gravel paths will have been macadamized, making the laying of the boards unnecessary.

TRUTH OF INDIAN LEGEND FEARED BY PENNSYLVANIAN

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 26—Fear that an Indian legend concerning Superstition mountain may be true was expressed here by W. John Rowley, Shennandoah, Pa., who came to Arizona to seek his brother James.

Five year ago James Rowley, then 25 and a fiction writer, left Pennsylvania to investigate the many legends of Superstition mountain. One of them is that those entering the range may never return.

One letter was written by Rowley just before leaving Phoenix for the mountain. That was the last ever heard of him and as a result his family is wondering if another tragic legend has been added to the many regarding Superstition range.

CANNED TOMATOES WILL BE CHIEF FOOD ON UNDER-THE-ICE TRIP

When Sir Hubert Wilkins sets forth in the Arctic submarine "Nautilus" in his expedition to the North Pole, the man in charge of meals for the entire personnel will be Harry Rothschild.

When asked what will be the most important item in the under-the-ice menu, Mr. Rothschild is quoted in a news despatch from Yonkers, N. Y., as responding: "Tomatoes."

Mr. Rothschild is insistent in his contention that "Tomatoes—canned, in catsup or in any other form—have an exceedingly invigorating effect upon people who are subjected to long confinement in stale air, as will be the case in this much-heralded under-the-seas expedition to the top of the world.

Side, Back, Arms Ached With Rheumatic Pain

Painful Experience Related by Resident of Goderich

Goderich, Ont., April 27.—From her home on Bennett Street comes word of the wonderful results of Nerviline achieved in Mrs. Levery's case. She suffered from shooting pains in the side, arms and back. These muscular pains caused intense distress. Ordinary measures failed. Then Nerviline was applied. It penetrated quickly. Its pain-relieving influence quickly brought ease and comfort. All pain disappeared—recovery was complete. "This all goes to prove what a powerful liniment Nerviline is. Every drop rubs in—and the pains of rheumatism come out. Get a large 35c bottle today."

...INSTITUTE WORK.—The St. Andrew's Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. J. P. MacIntyre for the April meeting with an attendance of eight members. The meeting opened with the "Creed" followed by the roll call which was answered with "Housecleaning Hints." The minutes of the previous meeting were read, adopted and signed by the president. Reports of the different committees were heard and a new sick committee appointed. The Secretary reported that the government grant was received. A letter was read from the Cable Head Institute, stating that they wished to come to St. Andrew's with a play. When the business for the evening concluded the program for the evening was then heard which consisted of two solos, namely, Springtime, the Rockies by the Misses Mary MacDonald and Winnie MacIntyre. Done in Argentina by Miss Mary MacDonald. On motion to adjourn the meeting closed with the National Anthem. A dainty lunch was then served by the hostess. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Frank MacIntyre.

China Studying Currency Reform

(Canadian Press)

NANKING, China, April 26—"The crisis in silver has thrown into clear relief the necessity of currency reform, which is engaging the earnest attention of the government," says Tse-Yung Soong, minister of finance in the National Government of China in the course of his financial statement for the year 1930, just issued.

"The price of silver" continues the report, "in terms of gold has fallen by more than half in the last two years, seriously affecting all those who are involved in foreign trade, as well as creating difficulties for the Government in consequence of decreasing imports and the growing cost of gold commitments. For trade, the consequences of the decline in the gold value of silver have fortunately not attained serious proportions, as the purchasing value of silver for commodities produced within the country has not depreciated much. However, should crops prove bad, and the wholesale importations of foodstuffs from gold-standard countries become necessary, the situation might easily turn critical. At the same time one consequence of this low price of silver is that exports will be greatly stimulated once the corner in the economic depression has been turned.

"In spite of the general depression and the low level to which silver has fallen, its production has not been substantially curtailed, as silver is being principally produced as a by-product of other metals. Furthermore, foreign governments have sold in late years a portion of their demonetized silver, and still possess large stocks on hand. The present limited foreign demand for Chinese produce also reduces the absorbing power of China, and although normally an importer of silver, China during part of the year 1930 actually had a net export balance of silver."

The deficit in the annual budget of the National Government presents a serious problem. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, the deficit amounted to $80,000,000, not including $20,000,000 borrowed for the capital of the Central Bank. In the last fiscal year the deficit amounted to $101,000,000. During the six months ending December 31, 1930, as a result of the civil wars, the deficit was even greater, and according to preliminary figures fresh indebtedness amounted to $96,000,000. In the first half of 1931 the deficit should be at a lower rate, even though the abolition of likin (provincial transit tax) before the new sources of revenue become fully effective weighs heavily on the Treasury. Given the absence of unforeseen events, it is possible that by united exertions budgetary equilibrium may be attained at some time during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930.

Expenditure in the past has been concentrated to a striking degree upon military purposes and debt repayments; and if equilibrium is to be reached, the lightening of these two burdens is unavoidable. The present amount of military expenditure as paid out directly from the Central Treasury is $23,000,000 a month. The Ministry of Finance recognizes that on account of the existing communist menace and the problems which attended the close of the severest civil war in modern Chinese history, military expenditures cannot safely be reduced overnight. But with the gradual liquidation of these troubles the ground will be clear for enforcing reasonable economy. The Ministry recommends that military expenditures be reduced so that the previously agreed figure of $216,000,000 annually for military purposes may finally be reached.

"We must not, however," say the minister "confine our efforts to mere attainment of budget equilibrium. The more one studies the problem of Chinese finance the clearer it becomes that mere equilibrium is not an adequate objective. The past seven years have witnessed the establishment of the National Government at Canton, the steady extension of its authority throughout the country, and the continual struggle for the maintenance and further consolidation of its authority. These have in the main been accomplished, but with the return of peace and order the people requires of the Government more than the mere suppression of militarism and communism. With the development of political consciousness, with the releasing of the productive energies of the nation through tariff autonomy and the abolition of likin, and above all with the sharp impingement of outside forces on China, such as the world-wide economic depression and the fall of silver, more is demanded of the Government than an abstract balanced budget."

The minister therefore strongly recommends the creation of a really effective planning organization which would guide the productive forces of the county, co-ordinate the activities of the ministries, and rigidly map out the essential ends which for a given course of years each of the different components is obliged to pursue. With such co-ordinated and purposeful activity within the Government, whereby it is made a unified and effective instrument to serve the nation, the financial resources available within the country itself for constructive development will prove to be greater than is ordinarily realized.

Intelligence Vital Factor For Nursing

PROF. WEIR URGES HIGHER PRELIMINARY EDUCATIONAL STANDARDS—NURSES' PRESIDENT DENIES SPEAKER CRITICIZED PROFESSION.

(Canadian Press)

TORONTO, Ont., April 13—According to Florence H. M. Emory, President of the Canadian Nurses Association, Professor G. E. Weir of the University of British Columbia, was not critical of the Canadian nursing profession when he addressed the Health Section of the Ontario Educational Association in Toronto on April 7 last, as stated in a report published in Toronto and distributed in the Canadian Press Service.

The story published April 7 said Prof. Weir criticized the standard of public and private nursing and the degrees of nurses' intelligence, adding the profession needed reorganization and the nurses better education. On the contrary, Miss Emory informed the Canadian Press, Prof. Weir's whole attitude in his address was one of helpfulness towards the profession.

"He most certainly did not criticize the standards of public and private nursing," Miss Emory said. "His whole plea, based on intelligence tests given to large numbers of students at present in training schools in Canada, was that higher preliminary educational standards should be required of applicants for all training schools for nurses, so that the unfit should not be allowed to enter. Canadian nurses, through their organizations, have been working for this very thing for years, but lacked statistical data, which Professor Weir has now supplied."

PRINCESS DOES IRISH JIG FOR ADMIRING CROWD TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

WINDSOR, England, April 26—A crowd which gathered outside Windsor Castle today saw Princess Elizabeth dance an Irish jig in celebration of her fifth birthday. The little girl had just wandered from the castle into the Grand Quadrangle when the Irish Guards entered. She waved to the crowd and then tried to keep step. Soon outdistanced, she skipped into the jig, while those outside roared their approval. Among the King's gifts was a terrestrial globe on which she traced the South American tour of her uncles, the Prince of Wales and Prince George.

Saint Joan Revival Pleases The Critics

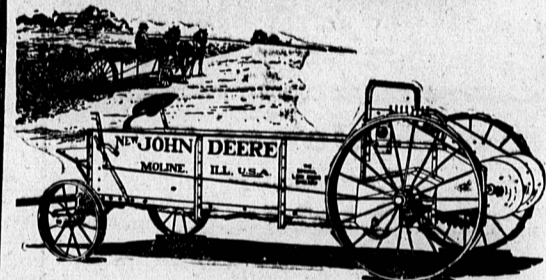

SYBIL THORNDIKE'S PORTRAYAL OF JOAN OF ARC STILL A COMPELLING PERFORMANCE.

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, April 26—"As fresh as compelling as on the night the play was first produced," says the Times theatre critic with regard to Miss Sybil Thorndike's portrayal of the role of Joan of Arc in George Bernard Shaw's play "Saint Joan," recently revived at His Majesty's Theatre here. "Miss Thorndike's performance whether or not as many-sided as the part requires, is at any rate one which we can see for the fourth time within a few years and yet wish to see it again," he continues.

"It is certainly as many-sided as the actress's own very strong personality permits. This personality emphasizes what is most human, amusing, and touching in the Maid; brings out the tragedy of a peasant girl betrayed by the forces that have made her their instrument; but some times seems to get in the way of that

Every User Likes the New John Deere

THE LIGHT-DRAFT SPREADER WITH THE BEATER ON THE AXLE AND THE BOX-ROLL TURN

Because of its distinctive features which permit better work, lighter draft and easier loading, the New John Deere 3-beater, tight-bottom spreader with the beater on the axle and box-roll turn appeals to everyone who has seen it.

The low down box does away with high pitching—the hard work in manure spreading. High drive wheels, roller bearings, large, non-wrapping four-bar upper beater, and fewer moving parts make it easier pulling for your horses.

The beaters are low down—manure is released close to ground for more uniform spreading—manure does not drift. Box-Roll Turn permits short turn-arounds without tipping.

You can make a one-man lime-spreading outfit out of the New John Deere by using the low-cost lime-spreading attachment which we can furnish.
