TO SAFEGUARD TRADE.

We have been shown some correspondence which recently passed between Joseph Read & Co., Limited, of Summerside, and the Intercolonial Railway relative to refrigerator and heater cars for potatoes. The former represented that as winter is approaching and potatoes are going forward in large quantities, the risk to the shippers should be eliminated by the management of the I. C. R., providing heater cars. They had previously wired for refrigerators for Cobalt and other Ontario points and although they had a quantity of potatoes stored at Point Du Chene in common box cars, no reply had been received.

To this telegram they received the following reply:—Your telegram to T. P. Brady relative to refrigerator cars received. We cannot undertake to guarantee to supply refrigerator cars for potatoes as the supply is very limited. Instructions have been issued to the Island Railway and to the Charlottetown Steam Navigation Company that no receipts calling for refrigerator cars for potatoes must be issued until they are advised as to whether refrigerator cars can be supplied or not. Sgd. E. Tiffin. This is a somewhat serious condition of affairs for this province.

Trade in perishable products, particularly in potatoes, has been extending westward for some years and at this season of the year when this commodity is moving it is of the utmost importance that every safeguard should be thrown around it.

We have no doubt that if our Boards of Trade would busy themselves and represent the matter strongly to their representatives at Ottawa the government, whose policy it is to create an interprovincial trade, would be induced to supply the necessary means for carrying it on.

The Maritime Board of Trade at a session held in Truro last August passed a strong resolution in favor of the I. C. R. providing frost cars for perishable goods and we would be greatly surprised that their answer to their resolution would be a notice that there are no refrigerator cars available, if the conditions were placed before them.

This is a most important matter for Prince Edward Island, it is Prince Edward Island's business and Prince Edward Island should look after it, through its Boards of Trade and its representatives.

WINTER COMING.

In a community in Prince Edward Island, the other day, a little girl, six or seven years of age, was seen carrying a dustpan in which she had gathered a few lumps of coal off the street. On entering the door of her home she was overheard saying, sorrowfully, "That's all I could find, mother."

The pathos behind this little incident will never be known. "Desiring to be fed with the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table," she gathered the meagre, pitiful scraps from the street. Fortunately in this blessed country of ours there are few poor. Fortunately, also, those who are not poor are charitable enough to help those who are and probably we have less actual destitution here than anywhere else in the civilized world. But we have our poor and winter is coming, the season of hardship and want for the poor. In this City of Charlottetown with its many evidences of comfort and even of luxury, its few evidences of want, we still have the few poor.

Some of them are poor through the drunkenness and worthlessness of parents. The innocent and helpless children suffer for their neglect and their sin. These are real objects of pity and their case should be considered by those who have enough and to spare. "The poor ye shall always have with you." And let us not forget the "inasmuch."

IN DIFFERENT FORM.

"Plaze mum, the new neighbors want to know if ye'll lend them the loan av the lawnmower today."

"What! lend them the lawnmower on the Sabbath Day!—Tell them, we haven't one."

Her conscientious soul shuddered at the thought of using or even lending the lawnmower on the Sabbath, but she had no hesitation about telling a lie. And this leads to the natural conclusion that there are different ways of encroaching upon the commandments.

A lawn-mower is not easily operated on the Sabbath Day without being found out. A lie can be told with comparative safety on any day, anyway there is a chance of its not being found out. And so in this age of shrewdness we avoid the lawnmower type of transgression and glide easily and logically into the less demonstrative varieties—that is we avoid being found out rather than avoid the transgression.

This may be an evidence of shrewdness but is not conducive to the highest type of morality. And the world is largely guided by shrewdness. It is quite possible that many generations will have come and gone before we learn that transgression is not in the discovery but in the commission. "What would they say?" is often a more powerful factor than "what is the right thing to do?" We hold up to our children, as an example to follow, the man who has made a financial success in life. His wealth is the thing emphasized. The manner in which he amassed it, the oppression, the sneaking methods are not taken account of. He made money and therefore he is a success, and an example to follow. We would not be guilty of countenancing any one of the methods by which he gained his wealth, if it were standing alone and apart from its crowning achievement the amassing of wealth. We would not have the neighbors hear the lawnmower go from our door on the Sabbath but we would not mind covering that fact by a false excuse. Will the world ever learn to do

The skin will chap during the raw, chilly winds of fall and winter, but cannot remain long after using Carnation Cream. Heals chaps and cracks over night. A delightful toilet article. Price 25c. Sold only by J. G. Jamieson, Druggist. 11-7mtf.

THE PROSPECT SILVER FOX COMPANY'S RANCH.

Staying over at Kensington between trains the writer visited the new ranch of the Prospect Silver Fox Company, Ltd. It is admirably located on elevated ground in a young grove of spruce and maple on the farm of the late Archibald Carruthers, about a quarter mile west of the railway station. There are 14 acres within the enclosure of the strong board fence and the inner enclosure of wire contains six roomy pens. The ranch structure with house for caretaker are modern and complete. The Company owns three pairs of first class foxes, including the Charles Dalton and Frank Tuplin stock, all healthy, fine looking animals. Company is capitalised at $50,000 in hundred dollar shares of which the greater part is subscribed and paid up and includes a number of the leading business and professional men and farmers of Kensington and the surrounding districts. W. G. Simpson of Kensington is caretaker of the ranch. I learn that the Company are willing to take in a limited number of good foxes to be born on very reasonable terms. It seems an ideal place for foxes and the ranch has an inviting and prosperous appearance.—M. 11-27MTL.

right for right's sake, regardless of whether the neighbors hear the noise or not?

NOTES.

Says an exchange,—Christmas is a delightful season; it is still our finest festival. It's a pity we have to spoil it every year by painful calculations and by balancing loss against gain. It's a pity, in other words, that we have to pay so much for our fun. We have learned to organize almost every kind of public movement; here is a movement which can triumph only by organized effort. Custom is custom. The man who stands out against it is as black a rogue as Scrooge while he stands alone. But let him make a principle of his revolt and associate others with him and he is helping on progress and enjoys the gratitude of his fellows.

The powers that be owe their existence to the free will of the majority. The majority has an undisputed and indisputable right to rule. Therefore the powers that be have the necessary sanction from the people to rule the people as they see fit. This right to rule is the inalienable prerogative of the people. It is also their prerogative to use their wills commercially, to set a value upon them and to accept that value in cash or its equivalent in any form of emolument that the fortunes of political war may place within their reach. The right to rule, then, is contingent upon the ability to corner those wills in the market. Therefore the powers that be have the necessary sanction from the people to rule the people, when they have the necessary means to control the wills of the people.

SALEM, Mass.—"Not Guilty" is the verdict in the case of Ettore Giovanni and Caruro in the Lawrence Mill strike murder case.

TOP OF MOUNTAIN COLLAPSES.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 26.—The top of a section of Jackass Mountain on C. P. R. line has collapsed, hurling in to the Fraser River hundreds of thousands of cubic yards of rock and ruining the 249 foot tunnel of the C. P. R. No lives were lost.

$1,000,000,000.00 For Fires

It is estimated conservatively that nearly $1,000,000,000.00 is lost through fire in the United States each year.

The men who experience the greatest loss are those who neglect to insure their property. It's all right to cut down your fixed expenditure but it's a very unwise policy to leave valuable property unprotected and neglected—an open invitation to the ravaging element of fire.

Don't run the risk any longer. Call in today and see how a strong fire insurance policy will protect you. No obligations whatever.
