A SPLENDID PRODUCTION

"The Sorrows of Satan," Marie Correll's famous novel, was presented by the Colonial Stock Company last evening in an excellent manner. Everyone who knows the play is conversant with the different characters and each one called forth the full abilities of each different actor. Frank Rimmer, the devoted friend of "Geoffrey Tempest," was never seen in stronger acting or made a firmer impression on his audience. Edith Warren, in her leading character, as "Lady Sybil Elton" and later the wife of "Geoffrey Tempest" acted her part as a finished artist and her death scene thrilled the audience and was one of the finest ever given on the stage in Charlottetown. The purity and simplicity of the character of Miss Maris Clare taken by Myra Crowe, endeared her to all and the happy ending in ideal love, after the influence of the Prince of Darkness had been withdrawn, was a charming conclusion to a well staged and strongly acted play, leaving a moral firmly impressed on the audience. The full cast was well sustained throughout and certainly the Colonial Stock Company have gained an enviable reputation in Charlottetown. Tonight's play will be the Brixton Burglary and as it is one of the best in the Company's repertoire should be greeted with a full house.

This Winnipeg firm was, five or six years ago, among the largest exporters of western beef cattle and sheep for the English markets and their winter shipments were sent through St. John. Now they are obliged to import Australian mutton for their western trade. The shipment also furnished an idea of what business may be done through this port when the Canadian-Australian steamship service becomes effective. The mutton shipped to the Winnipeg firm was sent from Australia to England and thence to Canada. With a direct service, this business would be capable of much development. Another Australian shipment on the Empress was 200 bales of picked wool consigned to firms in Montreal and Toronto.

Every woman will find something to suit her own individual wants among the generous varieties offered this spring. A great number of the hats are abundant in bloom as the old fashioned flower garden in grandmother's times, for some are composed altogether of flowers, and frail, sheeny stuffs classed as tulles and malines, but with an oriental richness and beauty about them which is superb. The shape of the hat depends much upon the contour of the face and neck, for the tilt which becomes each wearer is sure to be fashionable, no matter how it may be given. In some cases a becoming tilt reveals the face completely; then again the face is half revealed, and half concealed with the turning high on the one side and correspondingly low on the other. The turban has a prominent place, and will be the favorite for early spring wear; giving place to the large hat which is dressy as well as required for the sunny summer days. The season has also brought out several new shades which are very beautiful and dainty, the first ones being a new shade of blue named Royal, a new green bordering on the Reseda, and called Aero-Plane, as well as a rich Tan known as Mustard. The touches of Rose, Cerise, and Red which are correct give a distinctiveness to the spring hats which is most noticeable. Among the straws used, Leghorn is the favorite, and always has a black velvet facing, which brings into strong contrast the beauty of the straw and the richness of the trim-ming. Then there are rough, fancy straws, finished in satin gloss, and showing the shot effect which is the correcting this season. This shot effect extends to the materials as well, the tulles, nets, malines ribbons and silks showing it in beautiful combinations. Further information along the materials and modes for correct Millinery will be found in this column tomorrow, and the millinery opening which takes place at half past seven tomorrow evening will show fully that Moore & McLeod have made up models from Paris, London, New York and Toronto; the home ones from the hands of their own network ladies, Miss Wilson and Miss Steele, and all materials which go to make the spring Millinery the daintiest, the most attractive and the most suitable ever shown here.

THE EMPTY COT

Last night, as my dear babe lay dead, In agony I knelt and said: O God, what have I done, Or in what wise offended Thee, That Thou shouldst take away from me My little son? Upon the thousand useless lives, Upon the guilt that vanishing thrives, Thy wrath were better spent; Why shouldst Thou take my little son— Why shouldst Thou vent Thy wrath upon This innocent? Last night, as my dear babe lay dead, I am content— to Him I bow Who knoweth best.
