Are Your Glasses Right

Vision changes as all things do with the years and the glasses that were just right a few years ago may be all wrong today. If they have outlived their usefulness, you are doing your eyes an injury by wearing them and bring on headaches and nervous disorders. Better let us test your eyes and see whether your present glasses are suited to them.

THE THREATENED UPRISING IN ULSTER.

Every one has read that Ulster will not consent to home rule in Ireland, and reports have been cabled to this country setting forth that preparations are being made for armed resistance to any taxation which may be hereafter laid on by an Irish Parliament. It is said that tenders have been asked for rifles and ammunition in Germany and that a scheme for calling the men of Ulster to arms by commandoes after the Boer method is in evidence. These reports need not cause much alarm. They are intended to excite political feeling.

Ulster is one of the four Provinces into which Ireland is divided, and contains about one-third of the population and one-fourth of the area of the Emerald Isle. It contains the bulk of the Orange and Protestant population of Ireland, but the total population of Ulster is by no means one-way of thinking either in politics or religion. A number of its counties have a preponderance of Roman Catholic people while others have a strong Catholic minority.

Ulster, and in fact all Ireland is considerably over-represented in the Imperial Parliament, owing to the fact that since the present distribution of representation was made the country has lost nearly half its population by emigration, so that at present Ulster has thirty-five representatives in the House of Commons. And it so happens that these are divided in the proportion of 17 Conservatives and 18 Nationalists, the latter being all Home Rulers. The fact is that many of the Protestants of Ulster are ardent Home Rulers and the Catholics nearly all so.

If majorities are to rule, and this principle is basic to all free representative institutions, then Ulster itself stands for Home Rule by the voice

FARMERS AND MANUFACTURERS.

A local evening paper, apparently desirous to get free advertising by making contradictions without any sufficient authority and asking sometimes silly and sometimes quite pertinent questions, gives prominence to a protectionist article written by one James Merrill which appeared in the Busy Man's Magazine. Among other things Mr. Merrill says: "The Canadian manufacturer is as much a patriot as the Canadian farmer. What hurts one hurts the other and what helps one will help the other." Neither of these statements is wholly true. The second statement is very largely untrue.

The Canadian farmer is almost invariably a worker, and his wife and family are also workers. The manufacturer is an employer of labor. As a rule he lives by exploiting the labor of others, lives in luxury, which is shared by his wife and family, and resorts to methods which are not patriotic in order to secure unfair advantages against the farmers and the entire class of consumers. Among his methods are the combination of manufacturers and their capital to control Parliament and secure tariff legislation giving himself an unfair advantage.

Another unpatriotic thing which the manufacturers have done is to "water their stock," that is to increase the capital by watering it, and paying themselves dividends on this merely nominal capital, which is from three to ten times the amount of the actual capital invested. Still another thing is that the manufacturers combine to maintain the prices of what they produce, far beyond the actual cost of production and without regard thereto, up to the last cent they can compel the consumer to pay under the high tariff on imports. All these things are unpatriotic, and as the farmer has not done any of these things we maintain that the two classes are not equally patriotic. Now take the other statement that "what hurts one hurts the other and what helps one will help the other." This, as we have said, is very largely untrue. It hurts the P. E. Island farmer to pay to the Ontario manufacturer 20 per cent. on his agricultural implements, the tools of the farmer's trade, but it helps the manufacturer. The combines, the watered stock of the manufacturers, help them to grow rapidly rich, but they hurt the farmer and the general consumer as well. These truths may be held to be self-evident. There are no combines among the farmers or consumers for the purpose of obtaining unfair advantages over others. The farmer has nothing to do with inflated capital.

There is a further fallacy in Mr. Merrill's contention that the manufacturers have created the home market. In the first place the farmers themselves, with their families and hired folk form a large majority of the people of the country and are the largest class of consumers of their own products. The lumbermen, the fishermen, the railway employees—an army in themselves—the ten thousands of coal and metal miners, the mercantile, banking and shipping classes, the employees of street railways, telegraphs and telephones, the thousands of the professional classes—all these together make up the bulk of the consumers of the country, and constitute the home market. Those employed in manufacturing are but a fraction of the whole. And yet Mr. Merrill would have us believe that the manufacturers have created the home market! The contention is too silly for serious refutation. The fact is that the high tariff framed for and by our selfish and unpatriotic manufacturers furnishes the means by which they may exploit the great mass of consumers in Canada, and the people of Prince Edward Island the worst of all. For here we have but very few factories, protected or otherwise, and the money exacted from us under the tariff goes to build up and enrich the manufacturers, and build up towns and cities outside of this Province.

The valued Patriot intimates that this winter has every appearance of being a repetition of last winter as a mild and open season. But it is a very precarious business making weather predictions. The weather is about as uncertain as politics and the politicians.

We desire to support the revived proposition for the construction of a bridge at Brighton for the accommodation of the large section of people who can now only reach the city by a very circuitous route in fall and spring. The claim for a bridge is made stronger by the absence of railway communication for the communities concerned. The bridge would be for the advantage of both town and country.

of the majority of its electors, and the other Provinces of Leinster, Munster and Connaught are overwhelmingly that way. Such being the case we cannot conceive of the members of the Loyal Orange Association going to the extreme of disloyalty by offering forcible opposition to the principle of responsible local self-government.

It is most improbable that any such armed resistance will be offered, or that it is now seriously contemplated by any considerable portion of the people of Ulster. Meanwhile there is doubtless here, and there enough of the spirit of the old faction fights remaining to call forth threats of terrible things on one side or the other. In the end the principle of "government according to the well-understood wishes of the people" will be established and must prevail, in Ireland as in England and Scotland. That is what Home Rule means, simply that and nothing more.

Here in Canada, under the federal system we have nine Provinces in one of which, Quebec, the Roman Catholic people are in a very large majority, and they have the same right to rule the affairs of the Province as has the Protestant majority in the other Provinces. Behind it all is the principle of civil and religious liberty and the equal rights of all under the law. These principles give us the harmony and mutual respect which subsist between those of differing faiths, in the Canadian Dominion, and will, we trust, yet bring about like conditions in Ireland. In any case self-government for Ireland is coming in the near future, and we believe it will be loyally accepted by the people of Ulster and prove a blessing to them and to the entire Irish people.

A PROVINCIALIST'S GENEROSITY

When the little ones of some 25 North End families crept out of bed early this morning anxious to take a peep into their stockings they found them well filled. Their kind Santa Claus was a woman and the gifts that filled their stockings and the Christmas dinners which these families will enjoy were sent by Mrs. M. A. Tennyson of 106 Huntington ave.

She provided Christmas cheer for others, too, and this afternoon from 1 until later in the day passers-by along Commercial st., are likely to see a steady stream of longshoremen helping for No. 276, where a feast will be enjoyed.

Mrs. Tennyson was once a resident of the North End and is well known for her many charities. She spends a great deal of her time looking up the needy. For years she has given a Christmas feast to the men of the waterfront and it has become a sort of institution. Longshoremen drifting to other ports have told of the good things that await every water front man at 276 Commercial St., Boston, on Christmas day and there are always many to enjoy it.

This year Mrs. Tennyson conceived the idea of making a number of the poorer families of the district partakers in her distribution of holiday joy. With big baskets of eatables, toys and envelopes containing money, she personally made visits to many homes throughout the district. Her efforts were not directed solely to the North End. She has sought to aid any unfortunate that she heard of. She helped, too, several churches and organizations of the district.—Boston Globe, Dec. 25th.

(Mrs. Tennyson is a native of Newton, Belfast, and was Miss Annie Griffin, before her marriage, being the daughter of Dennis Griffin and a sister of Capt. Philip Griffin of Charlottetown. Mrs. Tennyson is a very wealthy widow and every Christmas for some years past she has given a dinner to the poor of the North End. She has also sent jail Mrs. Tennyson visited Charlottetown last summer, and will return next year also. She is a lady of great business ability and by her own efforts has accumulated considerable property in Boston. For a number of years she has been conducting lodging houses in the Hub. About six years ago she retired with a large fortune, and has now a large income arising from real estate and other investments. She left the Island thirty years ago a poor girl, and has been residing in Boston ever since.)

Our first year in business has just closed and we are delighted with the showing made. We have to thank all our friends in town and country for the very generous way they have helped us. In 1911 we will hope for your continued favors and will do all in our power to furnish a first class drug service. The MacKinnon Drug Co., Cor. Gt. Geo. and Kent Sts.

SOME WORDS FROM PROWSE BROS., LTD.

To Their Customers on the Change of Business.

Inaugurated the First of this Year.

To Our Customers—It was not without due thought and preparation that we decided on putting our business the first of this year, 1911, on a strictly cash basis.

The losses entailed, through long credits—the additional expense of an office staff—the many prices which were necessary for the different classes of patrons—the time lost in bargaining over discounts—everything combined prompted us to make an effort—and establish our business on the only safe footing—strictly cash.

We have done so—and even though time and all as it has been forced—see the benefit of it.

There are several points which we wish to make clear to our patrons—and one especially is this—ABOUT GOODS ON APPROBATION.

To each and every customer alike—goods will be sent on approbation. To the richest and the poorest—to the working man and the professional man—but goods are sent on these conditions—

They must be returned when decided upon, or will be called for the next day—if not settled within forty-eight hours our approbation man will call for the money. This is positive—there will be no distinction of persons—and we respectfully ask all of our patrons not to feel hurt—and deem it a personal matter.

There is a tendency in a change like this—for some customers to fidget—that they are getting the worst treatment to be accorded—when prompt payments looked for—and goods taken away if not settled for. But there will be simply no distinction of persons in this rule—all goods out will be called for next day. We also desire to impress upon our patrons—that they can send any one to do their shopping—provided they know just what they want. A child will get the same price as a grown-up—and just as courteous treatment too.

Our goods are marked at a very low margin of profit—but at a big saving for you.

Our prices are uniform to everybody. Our store is filled with up-to-date goods—marked at the lowest figures goods have ever been offered for in this city; and it is certainly up to the customer to see if what we say is true.

Nothing proves like proving—nothing convinces like seeing—We therefore cordially invite your comparison of our goods and prices—and guarantee you satisfaction at The Store of Satisfaction.

Truly, Prowse Bros. Ltd.

SWINDLER ARRESTED IN U. S.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—The United States Government officials took action yesterday to stop a scheme by which the farmers' lumber handlers since have lost thousands of dollars.

They arrested Wm. W. Wheatley, of Winchester, who, under a name of W. Wheatley & Co., had a desk in the St. Lawrence Blacksmith Shop.

The authorities alleged that he has been writing to many people inducing them to ship produce, lumber, etc. in railroad lots, then informing them the shipments were not received in good condition and refusing to pay for them.

It is alleged that he sold merchandise. Wheatley formerly lived in Halifax.

BODY FOUND IN WRECKED MINE.

SYDNEY MINES, Jan. 6.—Searchers in the mine of the Nova Scotia company who worked hard for the recovery of the bodies of Purchase and Ferguson, were rewarded by finding the body of Purchase.

The colliery plant is not so much damaged as was supposed.

Bodies of four of the victims were forwarded to Newfoundland by steamer.

PATON'S

The extra egg is laid always by the same hen or all of the colony take turns in laying it. The strangest part of Mr. Cooney's experiment, however, lies in the influence of the plants and flowers that surround them on all sides. The eggs from the chickens used in the experiment after the first few days of their confinement began to have a peculiar and especially dainty flavor. The shells were more or less tinted. He observed that when not engaged in scratching for food and even on their nests, the birds would stand or lie in rapt admiration of the flowers. Some would pace for several minutes at American Beauty roses, while others would find pleasure in viewing the carnations or violets. Others were wont to case their eyes on geraniums that flanked one number of the enclosure. The eggs, according to Mr. Cooney, seemed to take on distinctive flavors and distinctive tints of the flowers most admired by the hens. The demand for geranium flavored, rose colored and other tinted eggs is likely to be such, Mr. Cooney hopes, that the price he may demand will be higher than the present rate of sixty cents a dozen.
