MR. E. T. HIGGS suggested that clause 5 should specify the amount of land to be exempted n connection with educational institutions as had been done in the matter of churches, an institution might acquire large properties and hold them without taxation.

HON. A. E. ARSENAULT thought the clause was all right If an institution acquires property to promote education there is no reason why a tax should be imposed.

MR. B. W. LEPAGE thought there should be a limit. An institution might acquire 1,000 or more acres of land and escape taxation on it. Church property was exempted up to five acres only.

MR. J. D. STEWART said that in a small province like this where there are no large estates and not likely to be, such a clause as this is unnecessary.

MR. E. T. HIGGS insisted that a limit should be set. The privilege of holding large properties exempt from taxation could easily be abused.

HON. J. J. JOHNSTON Why should we tax educational or charitable institutions? No country in the world taxes its educational institutions. He suggested that the provision might be added where such real or personal property and income are used and devoted wholly for the benefit of such institutions.

MR. E. T. HIGGS, The Hon Attoney General holds one opinion, I hold another. My opinion is that real estate should be taxed, and there should be a limit to the exemptions for educational as well as church properties.

HON. A. E. ARSENAULT referred to certain peculiarities with reference to clause 11. In many cases the city or municipal limits extend into the adjoining school districts, and there would be difficulty in determining the proportion of municipal and school taxes.

HON. J. J. JOHNSTON said it was a difficulty but there were not many such cases.

In reply to a question by Mr. B. W. LePages the real estate of soldiers, being held in trust for His Majesty is exempt from taxation by clause 1 of exemptions.

Some discussion arose on the provision at the end of the section, Mr. J. D. Stewart pointed out that as the discount is allowed on the first day of September on income, it might be risky for a person to swear to the income he would earn by the end of the year.

The section was agreed to with the amendment mentioned, except clause 13 which was held up.

HON. A. E. ARSENAULT claimed that the exemption of $500 on income meant nothing. It would impose a serious and iinjust burden upon the poor. There are few laborers upon whom this burden will not fall. He insisted that for the sake of the poor a greater exemption than $500 should be made.

HON. J. J. JOHNSTON said the tax was not high. To make further exemptions would be to reduce the revenue to a very small amount Everybody who is working or willing to work is taxed. We will be in a better position in a year or two to know what exemptions are possible, we would not be justified in extending the exemptions as pre sent.
