Island Officer Led Squadron Into Village

MAJ. E. K. KENNEDY

A delayed Canadian Press dispatch from Douz row, Associated Press War Correspondent with Montgomery's 8th Army...

The despatch continues: "There still was fighting at 9 o'clock but the village was cleared and today June 22, was being subjected to enemy shelling. The heavy opposition came from an enemy using lots of men and guns, and fighting in a way that made it necessary for the Canadians to blow up many buildings in both villages."

Both tanks and infantry reported killing many Germans and taking a considerable number of prisoners, a mixture of paratroopers and paratrooper guides, young Nazis zealous with cut-throat bayonets...
