AIR SERVICE INAUGURATION IS FORESEEN

Experimental Trans-Atlantic Passenger Flight May Be Made Within Next Six Months.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) MONTREAL, April 29—Provided satisfactory arrangements can be made for establishment of the necessary terminal aerodromes at Galway, Ireland and Newfoundland, experimental flights across the Atlantic will be carried out within the next six months in connection with the proposed Ireland-to-Newfoundland airmail and passenger service. C. H. Clendinning, who paused here today en route from Ottawa to New York in connection with the organization of the service, said large United States-built seaplanes will be used.

One of the giant seaplanes under consideration is a Glenn Martin monoplane which would carry 46 passengers, a crew of six, and a load of airmail across the 1,500 nautical miles separating Galway from Notre Dame Bay, Newfoundland, in eight hours 35 minutes. Mr. Clendinning also said a smaller seaplane constructed by Igor Sikorsky might be used.

It is proposed, said Mr. Clendinning, to establish a large base at either side of the Atlantic, with lines carrying mail and passengers to the trans-Atlantic terminals for transfer to the seaplanes. In consultation with the British Air Ministry, tentative services have been drawn up linking Galway with Moscow, with Amsterdam, with Berlin, with Belgrade and Vienna, and with Marseille, London, and Paris, Rome, Edinburgh and Belfast, with intermediate stops along each line.

Canadian and United States airlines would operate services connecting principal North American cities with the base at either Notre Dame Bay or Mortier Bay, said Mr. Clendinning.

In connection with the service proposed by Irish-Transatlantic Corporation, a Free State organization, Mr. Clendinning conferred with United States government officials at Washington, with U. S. airline companies, and with representatives of the Canadian Government at Ottawa.

Newfoundland authorities had marked out two areas on the Newfoundland coast usually free from ice and fog. Mr. Clendinning said. One was Notre Dame Bay, free from fog for the year around and ice-free for eight to nine months of the year. Mortier Bay was described as ice free the year around and fog-free from three to four months, corresponding to the time when Notre Dame Bay was ice-locked.

United States authorities, especially interested in the carriage of mails, considered the project quite practical, said Mr. Clendinning. The terminal project at Galway Bay has been favorably reported on by Sir Alan Cobham, noted British airman.

The trans-Atlantic pilots would probably be guided, said Mr. Clendinning, by wireless compass in preference to the wireless directional beam, since if adverse winds blew a plane off the path of the beam a plane might become lost.

Use of the wireless compass, Mr. Clendinning said he was told while at Washington, would necessitate two "radio lightships" being anchored several hundred miles apart in mid-Atlantic.

Extradition Proceedings Are Opened

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) SHERBROOKE, Que., April 29—Proceedings opened here today to prepare the Crown's request to United States authorities for extradition of Kenneth Brown, of Milton, Vt., to Sherbrooke so that he can stand trial for the murder of Willis Keith Baldwin, 78, former member of Parliament for Stanstead and wealthy realtor of Baldwin's Mills, Que.

A record of Crown evidence against Brown was made before the district magistrate and will be forwarded to United States authorities in Washington after being certified by the Attorney-General of the Province of Quebec, Hon. L. A. Taschereau.

Brown and Lucien "Red" Morin of Brompton, Que., face charges of murder in connection with the killing of Mr. Baldwin, beaten to death and robbed in his general store at Baldwin's Mills on April 18.

Afforded the protection of the court and told that nothing he would be used against him at his trial, Morin today repeated the story of an alleged plot between himself and Brown to rob Mr. Baldwin. He had previously related the story at the inquest.

King and Queen In India at Durbar

By Thomas T. Chapman, (Canadian Press Staff Writer) LONDON, April 29.—No reigning King of England had ever visited India before King George, with Queen Mary, held the Coronation Durbar at Delhi in December, 1911. The vessel on which their Majesties sailed for the occasion, a liner named for the occasion by naval ratings. Every detail of the visit was conducted with that gorgeous splendor to which both the climate of India and the temperament of its people are so amply adapted. The Imperial Camp covered an area of no less than 25 square miles. The troops of all arms on parade numbered 20,000, and outside the amphitheatre there was raised a mound to accommodate 50,000 natives.

It was at this Durbar that the King announced changes in the administration of his vast Eastern Empire which, within a few hours, were adopted. The capital of India was to be transferred from Calcutta to Delhi; a governorship was to be created for the presidency of Benares, and there were many other changes of high moment. Not a few of these constituted a distinct reversal of the policy of Lord Curzon, the previous Viceroy, who, back in London, made prompt and open display of his extreme displeasure.

Even at the time of the Durbar, raising his head in India, and his visit of their Majesties was unappreciated followed only a year later by the attempted assassination of the Viceroy, Lord Hardinge, in Peshawar. None of the changes may be taken as certain that the presence of the King-Emperor at the Durbar, coming so soon after his Majesty's accession to the throne of England, helped materially in bringing to naught anticipations in certain European quarters that British authority in the East would be re-litigated if and when Britain entered a European war. In August 1914 India astonished the world with its exuberant display of militant loyalty.

The future government of India is a question just now much before the eyes of the world. Attention need not be drawn here to the King's opening of the India Bound Table Conference at St. James' Palace in November 1930. This conference took place a month after the Imperial Conference, and the King's address on both occasions was broadcast throughout the Empire.

SYMPOSIUM AT THE HOLY REDEEMER HALL

"Flaming Youth" Subject of Interesting Debate.

The Girls' Catholic Guild of Holy Redeemer Parish at their meeting last night presented a symposium, in the form of a public debate, which proved an intellectual treat to all who were privileged to attend.

The subject of the discussion, "Flaming Youth," dealt with the problem of fixing the blame for the present-day irresponsibility of youth either on the young men or the young women of today.

Mr. E. Halpern, acting as chairman, introduced the subject, and in a few well-chosen remarks pointed out the necessity of facing the problem of modern youth and particularly the urgent need of doing away with the evil influence of unbridled modern youth in order to protect the stability of the home.

Firm in their belief that the modern girl is doing more than her share to save the situation, the young ladies had invited three speakers to state the case against them and at the same time defend the position of the modern boy.

Mr. P. Callaghan, C. Jenkins and A. Garrett, each in turn discussed the evils of our time and called upon the young ladies to shoulder the blame in what at first appeared to be incontrovertible arguments.

In their turn, Miss T. Smith, E. Curley, E. Richards, returned the attack with equal force of logic and sense.

Sparkling wit punctuated the discussion and rather served to strengthen the apt illustrations adduced by the speakers.

A general willingness to shoulder a fair share of the responsibility of flaming youth would seem to be in order for both sides after such a clear expose of the problem.

A little variety was added to the night's program by the introduction of a recitation, "My Operation," by Miss B. Proude, and vocal selections by Miss Yvonne Arsenault and the Girls' Glee Club under the direction of Miss M. Moran and accompanied by Miss F. Mallett.

Present at the meeting were His Excellency, Rt. Rev. J. A. O'Sullivan, and Rev. Dr. McMahon of the Basilica who both expressed their appreciation of the instructive character of the meeting.

GEORGETOWN

The large attendance at the funeral of the late Mr. Thomas Henry at Georgetown on Saturday the 27th inst., was an eloquent tribute to an old and honored citizen. The pall bearers were Messrs. Andrew Lavers, J. F. Johnson, J. J. Condon, Havelock Stewart, J. A. McKinnon and A. E. Jenkins. A brief ceremony at the house was followed by an impressive service conducted by Rev. C. U. McNevin at St. David's United Church. The following were the leading thoughts contained in the address delivered by Rev. Mr. McNevin. The fleetingness of life and the certainty of death urge us to live wisely and well and to follow the path of duty with a greater intensity of purpose. In the presence of bereavement and sorrow men become aware of the sin and folly of human bitterness and hatred, and find themselves impelled to yield to a spirit of reconciliation. The departure of our friends, too, causes us to meditate more about that mystic immortal sphere to which they have gone and to which we, also, are hastening.

Mr. Sullivan Henry, accompanied by his wife, arrived in Georgetown on Friday evening from Hamilton, Ont., to be present at the funeral of his father, Mr. Thomas Henry.

Mrs. (Rev.) D. M. McGowan was a weekend visitor at the home of Miss Alice Compton.

Davison-Palmatier Nuptials

Picton United Church was the setting of an interesting wedding last evening when Marjorie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Palmatier, Picton, became the bride of Mr. George Milton Davison, son of Mr. J. W. Davison, of Belleville. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a very large number of friends and acquaintances and the church was beautifully decorated with Spring blossoms. Rev. David Wren, M. A., B. D., officiated at the ceremony, which took place at eight-fifteen.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming gown of pale blue lace over tulle with pale pink accessories. Her hat was a urban model of pink satin with edging of tulle and she carried pink roses and lilies of the valley.

Little Miss Diane McCullough, Midland, as ring bearer, was the only attendant. She wore a dainty frock of pale yellow. Professor F. E. Waldron played wedding music and at the signing of the register Mrs. Dow sang a solo.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Andrew Palmatier, attired in a royal blue gown with matching hat, and Mrs. J. W. A resolution of sympathy was unanimously passed and will be tendered to the members of Mr. Donaldson's family.
