CANADIAN ATHLETES SHOW FORM IN EARLY WORKOUTS

Coaches Are Pleased With Sprinters.—Clifford Bricker Says Marathon Course Is Difficult To Run Over.

AMSTERDAM, July 24.—Canada's Olympic hopes were up early today. It has developed from the practices already held that the Canadian sprinters are in good shape but the quarter milers require some more work. The men today started practicing starts, the girls also doing their share.

Jack Ball of Winnipeg, showed good form in his 400 metre trial. D. Griffin of Hamilton, A. Doherty of Montreal, and the Walter brothers, Jack and Pete, from Hamilton, who are in the 1,500 metre race, rounded out a mile and a quarter in snappy time.

Bobby Kerr, of Hamilton, captain of the track men, commended Harry Warren, of Vancouver, for his sprinting this morning. Warren is a Rhode's student at Oxford and he has been training at the Queen's Club, London, joining the Canadians in the British capital.

Captain J. R. Cornelius, of Hamilton, was well pleased with today's practice of the 1,000 metre relay, worked out by Phil Edwards, dusky British Guianian, James Ball, W. A. Wilson, of Montreal, and F. W. Mallett, of Hamilton. The veteran Hamilton coach was also satisfied with the showing of Percy Williams, Vancouver, and Takih Adams, John Fitzpatrick and George Hester of Hamilton, in the 400 metre relay.

BRICKER DISLIKES

Cliff Bricker of Galt, the marathoner who preceded his fellow long distance racers by some months in Holland, described the marathon course to his fellow-countrymen as being cobblestone and brick like the first seven miles. The brick dyke is passed at the city limits, which is three miles from the stadium. "At the seventh mile you meet gravel where the running is hard," Cliff said.

"Then you go eleven miles around a square, doubling back to the brick and gravel roadway for the remaining eight miles of the marathon course." There will be relief stations at every five miles of the course, where the runners can get food and water.

The Australian team numbers twenty. Six of the men and the lone girl staged fast tryouts where the Canadians are training today, afterwards watching the Canadians. The Australians complain that the air is heavy and Watson, their star hurdler, says the Kangaroos apparently cannot obtain enough sleep or that is the impression the atmosphere makes on them.

SUZANNE LENGLEN RELATES SECRETS OF TENNIS SUCCESS

Mixed Doubles.—How The Modern Game Is Played.—French Girl Is Now A Professional.

The one thing which you must realize, right away is that the modern mixed doubles is even more different from the mixed doubles of last century than the present single game is in advance of the game played then.

Let us make the thing as practical as we can by imagining a game in which you and I, each with a partner, played then.

Suppose you win the toss, and elect to serve. I need not tell you that the old idea of "giving way to the lady" in the service is dead. If by any chance you happen to have a stronger or more difficult server than your partner he will be right to ask you to vice him, otherwise he should take the service. He will be serving to me, for I shall be occupying the right hand corner.

Mixed doubles today, you see, very often resolve themselves into a fight for the position at the net, just as men's doubles do. Once you and your partner are there, it will be difficult to shift you save by an extremely good passing shot or by a lob.

"POACHING"

Let us suppose for a minute that instead of deciding to drive straight at me you think it better to lob either over my head as I come in at the net, or over my partner's at the net. This may get us, in our turns, into difficulties. You will probably lob over my head, expecting me to run back. The ball is in my half of the court, and therefore I should play it. Should I play it? Should, perhaps, 15 years ago, I should, perhaps the men, folks off shots which they themselves could have turned into winners, just because the ball happened to drop in their partners' court. Today there is no such thing as poaching. That is, if I say, it is looked on as a virtue and not a vice, when it is not carried to too great lengths.

OUR OBJECT

My partner, then, has chased back into my right-hand corner, and having anticipated what you were going to do to some extent, he gets to the ball. Again it will depend on your position as to what stroke is played. Undoubtedly now you should have come up, and if you have not my partner is almost certain to try passing shot against your man. He will have all the net to aim at—the double court net, mind—with only one person to defend it. You are at the back, it is true, but with your partner dancing about ahead of you the chances are that you will find yourself in one straight line. That is certainly the object we have been aiming at, for it is almost impossible for you to defend the whole court between you from this position.

You will almost certainly begin at the back of the court, be left to retrieve that passing shot yourself.

CANADIAN TENNIS

TORONTO, July 24.—Players from all sections of Canada, ranging from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts, as well as from the United States, get into action this afternoon in the preliminary rounds of the Canadian tennis championships.

Jack Wright, of Montreal, the men's singles champion faces F. A. Schulman, of Toronto, and W. F. Crocker, of Montreal, Wright's Davis Cup partner, is drawn against J. Wardrop of Toronto. Both are favored to win easily.

Representatives of Winnipeg, Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax are numerous in the women's open singles, the draw including the following matches: Miss M. Currie, Halifax, vs. Mrs. O. E. Gray and Mrs. J. M. Skeaff, Toronto; Mrs. F. V. Woodbury, Halifax vs. Miss M. Long, Toronto; Miss D. Hawboldt, Halifax, vs. Miss V. Crossley, Toronto.

Several matches in the women's and men's open doubles are also scheduled on today's programme, which commences at 12 noon.

Looks Like Record Crowd

The Exhibition management this year has lowered the entrance fee at 25c, the lowest fee in Canada for an attraction of this kind—and better still—one may see and enjoy the entire show on race days for one dollar.

This looks as though all who can possibly attend this year will be there with bells on.

To those who cannot attend in the morning, the management requests that they come early in the afternoon so as to have ample time to visit the different exhibits and other attractions before going into the races.

Georgetown Races Today

All roads will lead to Georgetown today. A big day's entertainment is anticipated.

More Racing

Next Wednesday Marie will hold forth with an afternoon's racing, and on the following Wednesday Montague will stage their meet.

The Wednesday of August 8th, "Big" Jim Pendergast will have his inning at New Annan when he promises to go to bat this year with one of the biggest turnouts of trotters and pacers in the history of this popular track. With fine weather favouring New Annan is sure to break all its record attendances.

McKenna Wins Again

A Cleveland, Exchange has this to say:

"When irresistible force meets immovable object the logical outcome is a collision. McKenna's face is a seemingly invulnerable piece of humbug when he confronted Tubby Noble of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., at the Olympic Arena of Cleveland on July 17. McKenna weighed 154 and his opponent 165-1-2. He was at every conceivable disadvantage in height, weight and reach. But that indefinable something called CLASS asserted itself and after going through two nerve racking and dangerous rounds with a wild swinging and powerful punching opponent McKenna finally knocked him out with a terrific right hand smash to the chin after slowly weakening him with left and right body punches.

McKenna is a product of Nova Scotia. He captured the Canadian Middleweight Championship by knocking out George Pinfed. Among his other victims are Howard Bents, Wolcott Langford, Tony Ross and Johnny Gerardin. A consistent, two handed fighter, who releases 100% energy every time he enters the ring. Could you ask for anything more?"

THE KING DETHRONED

King William is no more. The monarch of American tennis, William T. Tilden has felt the hand of official action and after defying the powers that be with regular consistency for several years he has been dethroned. The cryptic despatches tell of his removal from the American team for violating the now famous "player-writer" rule, and of the effect that it has had on the

Exhibition Races

Everything this year points to one of the biggest and most successful race meets ever held in this province. Lovers of the "king of sports" will surely get their fill on the three big days, when the fastest array of horseflesh both local and foreign will match strides in the nine different classes for purses in the aggregate of $50,000. Scarcely if ever has there been such a program of racing offered the people of Prince Edward Island.

Grattan Bars $75.00 Now Worth $100.00

Grattan Bars, a Canadian bred pacer, winner of three consecutive stakes, and one of the finest in the world, for which it is reported $10,000 recently offered and refused, was purchased by his present owner, Fred Throver, Kerwood, Ont., farmer, for $75, a little over three years ago, according to a story in the Toronto Telegram last May.

As a matter of fact the animal cost less than $75 as a number of cattle were included in the sale. Mr. Throver made the purchase from a Middlesex farmer, two years ago he refused $17,500 for the horse and last year turned down an offer of $25,000.

McKenna Coming

In a letter to the writer, Jack McKenna, hard-bitten middleweight and one of the foremost of the class in the States, says that after his Chicago fight on July 20th he is coming on a visit to the Maritimes.

He is matched to fight Johnny Nemis in Sydney and Chicago Joe Brown in Halifax.

McKenna would like to perform in Charlottetown, the town he likes best in the world. At any rate he plans to spend a couple of weeks here with his Manager Eddie Mead and Mrs. Mead.

Why suffer from corns when they can be painlessly rooted out by using Holloway's Corn Remover.

It is pleasant to find real merit appreciated, whatever its particular walk in life may be.

Champion Batters Sparring Partners

and more so today, but the action that revealed the real Tunney last night about three seconds in his second round with Harold Mays, the Bayonne heavyweight.

Making his kindly face with a snarl and gritting his teeth, the champion drew Mays out of position with a left feint and then shot three stiff right-hooks to the sparring partner's jaw. These blows were fired with machine gun swiftness. Mays staggered under them, but the heavy training gloves had absorbed most of their force, Tunney then relaxed and continued his usual easy fashion through the remainder of the second and third rounds, with Mays and three more with Bill Vidabeck, the other member of the sparring stable.

This flare-up, many thought, revealed Tunney's plan to achieve his reported ambition to knock out Heeneey in one of the early heats of their 15-round bout. Jimmy Bronson, the champion's chief second, described this fistie outburst as the best bit of boxing Tunney has uncorkeed since the last Dempsey fight.

He proved this today when, before a thousand drenched spectators, he ignored the rain and went through the second of his three final workouts for the defence of his title against Tom Heeneey next Thursday night.

Ever since last May, when Tunney started extensive training, the champion has been boxing well, badly and indifferently, mostly the latter. He was impressive yesterday

LACOSTE WILL NOT DEFEND U.S.A. TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Impression Prevails That French Star's Announcement Is Slap Back At U. S. Association For Barring Of Tilden.

(Canadian Press) ago.

AUTEUIL, France, July 24.—Rene Lacoste has decided he will not defend his United States championship this year and will not proceed to the United States with the remainder of the French team next month he announced today. Lacoste insisted the decision was not prompted by the Franco-American controversy concerning the barring of Big Bill Tilden from the Davis cup challenge round. He said he was, in strongest conjunction, made up his mind several weeks ago.

Lacoste's father volunteered the information that Rene was greatly upset at the disqualification of Tilden which deprives the Frenchman of the chance to show his superiority over America's ranking players.

All Rene would say is "We would rather lose the Davis cup than retain it, when there may be some excuse in the absence of Tilden." The general interpretation of Lacoste's action at the stadium here where Lacoste and Jean Borotra were playing a match in the inter-zone championship was that France was taking a shot back at the United States Lawn Tennis Association for the disqualification of Tilden which the French consider has practically wrecked interest in the challenge round for the Davis Cup, held by France for the first time in history.

(Special to the Guardian) CHICAGO, July 24.—Stockholders of the Palmolive Peat Company have approved a merger with Colgate and Company creating a new corporation with combined annual sales of $100,000,000. Charles H. Pearce, President of the New Company, stated that increased authorization in the common stock will make possible a substantial stock dividend to the Palmolive Peat Company stockholders.
