You'll Have More Fun If You Share Your Pleasures

(Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

Yvonne holds tight to the teddy bear her Quint sister Annette would like to give her to show you how the teddy bear can be used before she learned to share her pleasures.

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

... is the best thing in the whole wide world to let other people enjoy our things. And if we expect them to be kind and share their joys with us, we have to do it, too. That is fair, don't you think so?

One time a little girl wanted to play with her sister's Teddy Bear. And her sister said, "No, that is my bear. I need him myself." So the other little girl went off and played with her dolly. And after a while her sister said, "I wish I could play with your dolly. She looks so smily and sweet. May I play with her?" ...

The Dolly Girl said, "Of course. Here she is. I am glad you like her." Which was being generous. And then suddenly the Teddy Bear Girl thought, "I can't be selfish when my sister is so good." So she went and got her Teddy and said, "Here, you can play with him whenever you want." Everyone feels so much better when she is kind. Besides it makes people like us. And that is the way to make friends.

Brighten Rooms With Quickly Made Curtains

"Cornice" Style Clever, Easy

Delightful are these sheer, dainty curtains topped with a "cornice" which is really just a straight piece of goods shirred on two drapery rods and perkily trimmed with ribbons.

Simple to make the curtains, do a neat job by following professional tips. If using net or gauze cut with pencil marks as a guide. With other materials pull threads to keep your cutting straight. How to adjust your material according to your window width, how to sew, finish, hang?

YOUR INDIVIDUAL HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section your birthday comes in, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. (Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate Inc.)

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra)—Let your good sense of balance and natural affability take charge today and you'll not only enjoy it but be better fit for tomorrow's work, alert to possible changes and improvements.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio)—Attention to personal requirements—music, literature, relaxation; engagements, weddings, church and social affairs rank first under good rays.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 22 (Sagittarius)—A.M. very stimulating and encouraging for wholesome matters, mental work, planning, children's interests. P. M. friendly for serious problems. Care suggested in travel, especially when driving.

DECEMBER 23 to JANUARY 21 (Capricorn)—If you're out for a big or quick money returns, think and act soundly. Unnecessary work and business deals may meet better success tomorrow. Be prudent.

JANUARY 22 to FEBRUARY 20 (Aquarius)—Some pleasant news surprise happenings indicated and favored. Good day for home affairs, club meetings and patriotic nature; sports, entertainment.

FEBRUARY 21 to MARCH 20 (Pisces)—Opportunity for personal ambitions and expansion. Keep pessimism behind you. Express yourself; read travel, broaden your outlook; try new ideas, make new friends.

A CHILD BORN TODAY will be self-reliant, persistent in its efforts to accomplish. Ability to improve upon others' ideas and inventions more apparent than moving artistry. This sensitive, tender and sympathetic child will need very thoughtful ministrations and guidance. It will keep hurts and sorrows to itself. Parents should help it to develop its unusually fine talents and capability.

For Monday May 15th

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries)—Until close to 8 o'clock this evening, seven beneficent aspects favor. What a Sunday! All of us should start the day with a prayer of thanksgiving to God for His many blessings and for the privilege of living in these Dominion of ours.

APRIL 21 to MAY 20 (Taurus)—A full and stimulating day for you, too, Capricorn! A.M. especially responsive to educational, religious and charitable interests; also writing. While day favorable for most activities, including health-giving sports, romance, travel.

MAY 21 to JUNE 21 (Gemini)—Day can be one of personal achievement and happiness if you will avoid being a party to unpleasant argument and sarcasm. Utilize your keen mind in projects or undertakings that will help uplift others, add to your talents. No extremes or recklessness!

JUNE 22 to JULY 21 (Cancer)—Made to order for the pursuits and personal likes of you Cancer natives! Only one admonition: be careful of health by shunning needless worry and busying over non-essentials. Be busy, cheerful.

JULY 22 to AUGUST 21 (Leo)—Your personal reaction to influences (mostly friendly today) will determine how you profit or lose by activities. The more hopeful you are and the bigger your viewpoint, the better the results!

AUGUST 22 to SEPTEMBER 21 (Virgo)—Plenty of unctious, genial associates, healthy plans and doings should be your schedule. You who may be shut-ins, let your bright imagination and innate faith in God's wisdom carry you into the peace of mind not known or limited by the physical.

THE COOK'S CORNER

Macaroni Loaf

2 cups cooked macaroni
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup grated cheese
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1-2 cup melted butter
1 cup scalded milk
3 eggs, beaten
1 pint tomato sauce
1/2 cup pepper, chopped
Method: Measure the macaroni after it has been cooked in boiling salted water. Mix with the bread crumbs and make sure that you measure a good, full cup of these. Add the grated cheese, parsley and minced onion. Pour the melted butter and scalded milk over all and mix thoroughly.

Sauce
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1-1/4 cups milk
1 small tin lobster
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons capers (optional)
Method: Melt the butter and blend in the flour. Add the milk gradually and cook until the sauce is thick and smooth. Open the lobster and drain. Pick it apart, removing any bits of that thin, bony membrane that you sometimes find. Sprinkle the lemon juice over it and add to the sauce just before removing from the fire. Add the capers, if you are using them, at this time also. Serve over the macaroni loaf.

Modern Etiquette

By ROBERTA LEE

Q. What are the superstitions concerning the various days of the week for a wedding?
A. Wed on Monday, always poor; Tuesday, wed once more; Wednesday, happy match; Thursday, match; Friday, poorly mated; Saturday, better mated; Sunday, Cupid's wooing; and wed in the morning, quick undoing.

Q. Is it the proper gesture, in company, when eating or drinking, to keep the little finger prominent if crooked?
A. No, this is an affected mannerism that one should avoid.

Q. What is the birth stone for May, and its significance?
A. The emerald, which signifies success in love and immortality.

Q. When introducing two men would it be proper to say, "Mr. Baker, this is my friend, Mr. Harris."
A. No; this would imply that Mr. Baker is not a friend.

Too Many Wives Have the Mistaken Idea That Their Husbands' Secretaries Are Trying to Steal Them Away—These Office Girls Have Other Ideas

Most wives, though wild horses couldn't drag the admission from them, are subconsciously jealous of their husbands' secretaries unless their age and looks are such as to be equivalent to a certificate of virtue. Of course, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred there is no reason for the wife to get green-eyed. But nothing can ever remove from the average domestic woman the belief that the wife's secretary is just an ally with men for getting away from home and from under a wife's eyes; that they spend most of their time in their offices, telling each other good stories and flirting with platinum blond stenographers.

It is a fixed idea, as is their unshakable conviction that every office girl falls madly in love with her employer, no matter how old and bald, fat and paunchy he may be, and employs all her arts and wiles to trying to steal him away from his lawfully wedded spouse.

In vain do you tell wives that of all places in the world a business office is the least adapted for fostering sentiment and romance. It is office life which a man strains every faculty of mind and body in order to meet the competition of his rivals, and he is so busy chasing the lady on the dollar that he has no time even to look at the one at the typewriter. In the great majority of cases, he could not give a personal description of her great beauty, and a shopping ticket at the best, which would enable the police to identify her if she should suddenly get lost.

Nor, as a general thing, is the private secretary any more enamored of her boss than he is of her. She has to put up with his temper and nerves and crankiness even as his wife does, without the wife's amenities of houses and cars and shopping tickets at the best stores, and while the wife can't.

So to those wives who are worrying about their husbands' pretty secretaries who are about twenty years younger and forty pounds lighter than they are, I offer the following letter from one of them as a comfort.

She says: "Why in the world do wives think that every girl in the office with their husbands is trying to lure them? Just because her husband is Prince Charming to a wife is no reason why it is that way to us. We are hired to work and not just to sit around and look pretty. All day long we have to work as hard as some women seem to think. And we have our troubles, believe me. When husbands come into the office in the morning with a grouse after a row with Friend Wife at the breakfast table, or when business is bad and a deal is a shooey, they get mad with one of us—B-R-R-R—the things they say, and we have to take it."

"Of course, now and then an office girl is out to get her man, but there are plenty of husband-stealers among society girls and the intimate friends of wives. Most of us office girls step high, wide and handsome around the husbands whose wives don't understand them and who think it is part of a secretary's job to comfort them."

"It is no fun when you have to work to keep dodging your boss who thinks he is entitled to a good-morning kiss, or making up excuses for not making dates so you can keep your job. So why don't wives realize that if they have to have a boy friend whom we expect to marry some day, wouldn't we have their husbands on a bet, and quit looking down their noses at us?"

All of which is the truth, so help me. But you will never make the majority of wives believe it, because the average woman who loves her husband thinks that he is such a fascinator that even girl children cry for him and that every other woman in the world is trying to take him away from her.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a young lady 20 years old and considered attractive. It has always been my experience with young men who have dated me that they expect a line necking and a good-night kiss. Now in my attractive young man whose company I enjoy greatly has taken me out four or five times and has not even attempted to kiss me. He doesn't even hold my hand at the movies. This attitude baffles me exceedingly, and I wonder if you could help me to decide whether he is bashful or just isn't interested. PERPLEXED.

Answer:
No wonder you are baffled because you have met a gentleman, and that is a species of the human fauna with which the modern girl is so unacquainted that she does not recognize it at all. The strange conduct which bewilders you so greatly is called chivalry, and it springs from a man's desire to protect a girl and to treat her with reverence as being merely barter with which she paid for her good times.

Of course, you rarely see a man who treats a woman with chivalry now. The species is almost extinct. Some say that the girls killed them off themselves with being too free and easy and not demanding respect of them. I wouldn't know. But if you have encountered one of the few, don't let him get away from you. Marry him. He makes the nicest household pet in the world.

Dear Miss Dix—What do you think of a fifteen-year engagement? Will it end satisfactorily. UNCLE JOE.

Answer:
I think all long engagements are a mistake. Love wears out in time. Men and women change and they seldom want what they had when the time comes to marry if they have waited too long. Wedding cake gets stale if kept on the shelf too long. DOROTHY DIX.

LONGING

Why don't you write as you once did? Could you but know how much I miss The friendly lines that always cheered. And set a right plans gone amiss. The postman's step no longer thrills, As, up and down, he serves his beats; Whom once I watched for eagerly, And at the door with joy would greet.

When, yesterday, I saw him come, Within my heart hope flamed once more, But died again; he did not leave Your Easter greeting at my door. (By H. M. R.)

To make a very small room appear more spacious, avoid using large-patterned wallpapers. Light backgrounds and neat designs give an illusion of space.

The worship of meteorites is a most natural one. Since the stones fall from the sky, a feeling of fear and superstition surrounds them.

FORGET-ME-NOT

There are many legends about the flowers and how they got their names. There are also many different stories about the same flower, because in the beginning of time each country had its own ideas about things, and they made their tales to suit their climate and their surroundings. Take, for instance, the forget-me-not. It is small as it is, it has many stories as to the origin of its name, but perhaps the prettiest one is this:

Many thousands of years ago the fairies all assembled early in spring to select the flowers names. The stately rose lifted its head a trifle higher as the Queen of the Fairies waved her wand over it and said: "We will call you Rose." The modest violet hung its head to receive the blessing from the Fairy, and the pure white Lily bowed its head in appreciation. Then came the Pansy with her laughing eyes and she danced with her name, and the Tulip lipped her thanks to the Queen for her gift.

"Away," cried the Fairies, "and be merry these beautiful spring days!"

"I am called Rose," sang the rose as it tripped along. "My name is Lily. I think it is the purest name in the world," cried that delicate flower as she went to tell it to her children. "Won't the children love me?" said the dainty Pansy to the Violet as they walked arm in arm to their flowerbeds. The Tulip waited kisses to all the others, as she hastened along. One little blue blossom fairly flew to its kind to tell them the good news. She kept repeating her name so often to herself that by the time she came near the silvery rivulet where her sisters were eagerly waiting for her, she had entirely forgotten it. Down she sat and wept, but her name had fled from her memory. The other flowers came in answer to her call, and really tried to help her remember, but they were all so excited with

TIMELY TIPS FOR THE HOME SEWER

A bolero jacket top, makes this summer playtime ensemble, just irresistible. You'll be proud to wear it anywhere ... anytime of the day. It's so easy to discard the jacket and step in and out of the skirt. There you are already in a sun-back halter skirt and shorts costume for tennis or sunning on the beach. The smartly flared shorts look appealing like a skirt. White sharkskin or plique with scarlet red jacket is a dashing scheme. Cottons as chambray, percale prints, broadcloth prints, hosiery, shantung prints, etc., are all mediums. You can use the pattern for separate halter, shorts, skirts or jackets.
