

Removal Notice!

MacDougal & MacAlay & Walker have removed their shops and offices from 236 Kent Street to 185 Grafton St., where they will be pleased to see all their old customers and as many new ones as wish to patronize them.

See them for your carpenter work and painting.
121-8461.

Legislative Assembly

Prince Edward Island
Rules Relating to Private Bills

36. All petitions for Private Bills must be presented within fourteen days after the commencement of the session exclusive of adjournment.

37. No Private Bill shall be brought into the House, but upon a petition first presented, truly stating the case at the peril of the petitioners for such Bill and such petition must be signed by the said parties.

38. A committee shall be appointed at the commencement of every Session consisting of five members of whom three shall be a quorum, to be denominated the Private Bills Committee to whom shall be referred every Private Bill and no proceedings after the first reading shall be had upon such Bill until such Committee has reported thereon to the House.

39. So soon as the Committee has reported any Bill, such Bill together with any amendments that may be suggested by the Committee, shall be printed at the expense of the parties who are petitioners for such Bill and printed copies thereof delivered to the members before the second reading if deemed necessary by the Committee.

40. No Bill for the particular interests of any person or persons Corporation or Corporations or body or bodies of people shall be read a second time until all fees be paid for the same into the hands of the Clerk of the House.

41. No bill having for its object the vesting in or conferring upon any person or persons, Municipality or Body corporate the title to any tract of land shall be received or read in the House unless at least four weeks notice containing a full description of the land in question has been published in the Royal Gazette and one other newspaper in this province of the intention of such person or persons Municipality or Body Corporate to apply for such Bill.

H. E. DAWSON,
Clerk Legislative Assembly
November 20th, 1923
102-11-22 Thurs.

Notice to Creditors of First Meeting Where Assignment Made

The Bankruptcy Act

In the Estate of Harold R. Weeks, of Fredericton, in Queens County, Prince Edward Island, Authorized Assignor.

Notice is hereby given that Harold R. Weeks, of Fredericton, P. E. Island, did on the 21st day of November, A. D. 1923, make an authorized assignment of all his property for the benefit of his creditors, and that Mr. H. L. Palmer, Official Receiver, has appointed us to be Custodians of the Estate of the Debtor, until the Creditors at their first meeting shall elect a Trustee to administer the Estate of the Debtor.

Notice is further given that the first meeting of Creditors in the above Estate will be held at the Law Library in the Law Courts Building at Charlottetown, P. E. Island, on the 10th day of December, A. D. 1923, at 11.30 o'clock in the forenoon.

To entitle you to vote thereat, proof of your claim must be lodged with me before the meeting is held.

Proxies to be used at the meeting must be lodged with me prior thereto.

And further take notice that if you have any claim against the debtor, for which you are entitled to rank, proof of such claim must be filed with me within thirty days from the date of this notice for from and after the expiration of the time fixed by sub-section 8 of section 37 of the said Act, I shall distribute the proceeds of the Debtor's Estate among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which I have then notice.

Dated at Summerside, P. E. Island, this 26th day of November, A. D. 1923.

THE CANADIAN CREDIT MEN'S TRUST ASSOCIATION, LTD.
(Maritime Division)
Per F. J. E. Wright,
Representative for Prince Edward Island, Custodians
576-11-29-th21.

RED RASH ON HANDS AND BODY

Itching and Burning Terrible. Cuticura Heals.

"I was troubled with eczema on my hands and body. It broke out in red rash and later formed sore eruptions containing water. The itching and burning were terrible. My hands had to be bandaged, and my clothing aggravated the breaking out on my body. The trouble lasted about three months.

"A friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I did and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Russell, Hensbee, Sand Point, Nova Scotia.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Tablets are all you need for every-day toilet and nursery purposes.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura, Limited, 546 St. Paul St., Montreal." Sold every-where. Soap, 25¢. Ointment, 25¢. Tablets, 50¢. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

Canadian National Railways

CHANGE IN TRAIN SERVICE BETWEEN SUMMERSIDE & TIGNISH.

Effective Monday, Dec. 3rd, No. 4 train shown in Time table as leaving Tignish at 10. a. m. will leave at 7.30 a. m. and arrive at Summerside at 10.40 a. m. instead of 1.10 p. m.

Train No. 211 will leave Summerside at 1.00 p. m. instead of 12.30 and arrive at Tignish at 6.40 p. m. instead of 6.10.

DISTRICT PASSENGER AGENT'S OFFICE.
517-11-27-101.

DESIRABLE PROPERTY For Sale or To Let

Property situated at St. Avards, consisting of dwelling house, barn, and orchard. Must be disposed of at once. No reasonable offer refused. Apply 227 Grafton St.
116-12-6-61.

REWARD!

$5.00 will be given for the return of 1.200 ft. Oxygen cylinder No. 16768 and 1—Prest-O-Lite Tank No. 23226, these cylinders were last used by Rev. Fred M. Clay for operating a lantern at a lecture some where near Mt. Stewart.

DOMINION OF CANADA PROVINCE OF PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

In The Probate Court

14th George V. A. D., 1923

In Re Estate Plus A. McDonald late of St. George's in Kings County in said Province deceased testator.

By the Honorable A. Bannerman Warburton, Surrogate, Judge of probate &c., &c.

To the Sheriff of Kings County or any constable or literate person within said County.

GREETING:

Whereas upon reading the Petition on file of Gregory J. McLellan of Tignish in Prince Edward Island, Clergyman, one of the executors of the above named estate, praying that a citation may be issued for the purpose hereinafter set forth, you are therefore hereby required to cite all persons interested in the said estate to be and appear before me at a Probate Court to be held in the Court House in Charlottetown in the County of Kings, in the said Province on Tuesday the eighth day of January next coming at the hour of three o'clock in the afternoon of the same day to show cause if any they can why the accounts of the said estate should not be passed and the estate closed as prayed for in said Petition and on motion of H. F. MacPhee, Esq., Proctor for said Petitioner. And I do hereby order that a copy hereof be forthwith published in some newspaper published in Charlottetown aforesaid, once in each week for at least four consecutive weeks from the date hereof and that a true copy hereof be forthwith posted in the following public places respectively, namely in the Hall of the Court House in Georgetown in King's County aforesaid, in front of the Schoolhouse at St. George's aforesaid, and in front of the Town Hall at Cardigan in King's County aforesaid so that all persons interested in the said estate as aforesaid may have due notice thereof.

Given under my hand and the seal of the said Court this third day of December, A.D., 1923 and in the Fourteenth year of His Majesty's reign.

(Sgd.) A. B. WARBURTON,
Judge of Probate.
224-12-6-4Thurs.

BLACK OXEN

Published by arrangement with Associated First National Pictures, Inc. Watch for the screen version produced by Frank Lloyd with Corinne Griffith as Countess Zattiany.

SYNOPSIS

At a first night performance in New York a beautiful young woman attracts attention by rising and leisurely surveying the audience through her glasses. Clavering, a newspaper columnist, and his cousin, Dinwiddie, are particularly interested. Dinwiddie declares she is the image of Mary Ogden, a belle of thirty years ago, who had married a Count Zattiany. He is convinced that this is Mary's daughter, but all efforts to establish her identity prove futile.

Clavering finally manages to meet her, and she tells him she is the Countess Josef Zattiany, a cousin of Mary Ogden's and had married a relative of Mary's husband. Clavering does not believe her story and tells her so.

As time goes on Clavering realizes that he is in love with the mysterious Madame Zattiany, whose first name, he learns, is Mary. He declares his passion and draws from her the admission of a reciprocal warmth of feeling.

Mrs. Oglethorpe, having offered her box, Clavering invites Mary to attend the opera with him one evening. Her appearance there in the Oglethorpe box, regally gowned and the syncope of all eyes, is so great that the forbidding Society which had she realizes the time has come to question her credentials, and clear up the mystery. She promises Clavering she will reveal her secret to him the following Saturday night.

Continued

"Well—are you always to be driven to death? I read your column religiously and it runs so smoothly and spontaneously that it doesn't seem possible it can take you more than an hour to write it."

"An hour! Little you know, and subjects don't drop out of the clouds, dear Anne. I have to go through all the newspapers, read an endless number of books—not all fiction by a long sight—glance through the magazines, reviews, weekly publications and foreign newspapers, read my rivals' columns, go about among the Sophisticates, attend first-nights, prize-fights, and even see the best of the movies. I assure you it's a dog's life."

"It sounds tremendously interesting. Far more so than my own. I am so tired of that! I—that is one thing I wanted to talk to you about—I meant to bring it up at my dinner—I wish you would introduce me to some of your Sophisticates. Uncle Din says they are the most interesting people in New York and that he always feels

XXVII (Continued)

"They will go to your house if you invite them, no doubt of that; and they may conceive an enthusiastic liking for you. But after all, you would not be one of them. Even though they genuinely appreciated your accomplishments, still you would be little more than an interesting incident. They are workers, engaged in doing the things they think most worth while—which is the worth while because they furnish what the intelligent public is demanding just now, and upon which the current market places a high value. And you are merely an intellectual young woman of leisure. They might think it a pity you didn't have to work, but secretly, no matter what their regard, they'd consider you negligible because you belong to a class that is content to be, not to do. I assure you they consider themselves the most important group in New York—in America—at present: the life-giving group of suns round which far-off planets humbly revolve."

"I see, you mean that my novelty would wear thin long before theirs. Heaven knows I have little to give them. I should feel rather ashamed sitting at the head of my table offering nothing but terranin and Gobelins. But don't you think I could make real friends of some of them? Surely we would find much in common to talk about—and they certainly take time to play, according to Uncle Din."

"I think there would always be a barrier . . . Ah! I have an idea. Why don't you set up a studio and take your painting seriously? Cut yourself off from the life and join the ranks of the real workers. Then, by degrees, they would accept you as a matter of course. You could return their hospitality in your studio, which could be one of the largest—there is no danger of overwhelming them; they are too successful themselves. Think it over."

Mrs. Goodrich's face, which had looked rather gloomy, brightened, lit up again. Her red mouth lifted at the corners, light seemed to pour into her hazel eyes. "I'll do it!" she exclaimed. "I did a portrait of father last month and it really is good. He is delighted with it, and you know how easy he is to please! I wonder I never thought of it before. You certainly are the most resourceful man in the world, less—by the way, I hear there is a party at the wonderful Gora Dwight's tonight. Do take me."

"Oh! I'm so sorry . . . it's quite impossible, Anne. I wish I could. . . I'll take you to one next week. And meanwhile get to work. Be ready to meet them in the outer court at least. You'll find it an immense advantage—rob your advent of any suggestion of curiosity."

"I'll look for a studio tomorrow. This is the way I do things—my father's daughter, you see."

She spoke with gay determination, but her face had fallen again. In a moment she began to draw on her gloves. "Now I'll have to run Westbury for dinner at eight. Thank you so much. Let me write you a goodnight. If I were a writer instead of a mere dabbler in paints, I'd dedicate my first book to you. I'm so sorry I haven't time to drive you down to Muldon Square."

Clavering, drawing a long breath as if he had escaped from imminent danger, saw her into her car and then walked briskly home. He had in a moment he had forgotten Anne Goodrich as completely as he had forgotten Janet Oglethorpe.

"Come, now! You can spare me an hour."

young again when he is at one of the parties. Will you take me to one?"

"Of course I will. The novelty might amuse you—"

"It is not only novelty I want; I want really to know people whose minds are constantly at work, who are doing the things we get the benefit of when we are intelligent."

"I paint more or less and read a great deal—still on the lines you laid down. But one cannot paint and read and walk and motor and dance all the time. Even if I had not gone to France I should have become as bored and disgusted as I am now. You know that I have a

Relieve Piles Do It Now

Write for Free Trial or Send to Nearest Drugist for a 60 Cent Box of Pyramid Pile Suppositories—Their Soothing Influence is Remarkable.

If you are one of those unfortunate nates struggling with the pain and distress of itching, bleeding, protruding piles or hemorrhoids, ask any druggist for a 60 cent box of Pyramid Pile Suppositories. Take no substitute. Relief should come quickly you will wonder why any one should continue to suffer for the pain of such distressing condition. For a free trial package, send name and address on coupon.

FREE SAMPLE COUPON

PYRAMID DRUG COMPANY,
Box 52, Marshall, Mich.

Kindly send me a Free sample of Pyramid Pile Suppositories, in plain wrapper.

Name _____
Street _____
City _____ State _____

mind. What has it to feed on? I don't mean, of course, that all the women I know are fools. Some of them no doubt are cleverer than I am. But all the girls of my set—except Marian Lawrence, and we don't get on very well—are married; and some have babies, some have lovers, some are mad about bridge, a few have gone in for politics, which don't interest me, and those that the war made permanently serious devote themselves to charities and reform movements. The war spelt me for mere Charity work—although I give a charity I founded one afternoon a week—and mother does enough for one family anyhow. I see no prospect of marrying—I don't know a young man who wants to talk of anything but sport and prohibition—you are an oasis. There you are! The Sophisticates are an inspiration. I am sure they will save my life."

"But have you reflected—"

Clavering was embarrassed. She had controlled her tones and spoken with her usual crisp deliberateness, but he knew that the words came from some profound emotional reaction. For Anne Goodrich it was an outburst. "You see—it is quite possible that when the novelty wears off than you would not be much better off than you are now. All these people are intensely interested in their particular jobs. They are specialists. You—"

"You mean, what have I to give them?"

"Not exactly. You could give them a good deal. To say nothing of your own high intelligence, they are by no means averse from taking an occasional flyer into the realm of fashion. Curiosity, partly, natural human snobbishness, perhaps."

"Well—are you always to be driven to death? I read your column religiously and it runs so smoothly and spontaneously that it doesn't seem possible it can take you more than an hour to write it."

"An hour! Little you know, and subjects don't drop out of the clouds, dear Anne. I have to go through all the newspapers, read an endless number of books—not all fiction by a long sight—glance through the magazines, reviews, weekly publications and foreign newspapers, read my rivals' columns, go about among the Sophisticates, attend first-nights, prize-fights, and even see the best of the movies. I assure you it's a dog's life."

"It sounds tremendously interesting. Far more so than my own. I am so tired of that! I—that is one thing I wanted to talk to you about—I meant to bring it up at my dinner—I wish you would introduce me to some of your Sophisticates. Uncle Din says they are the most interesting people in New York and that he always feels

XXVII (Continued)

"They will go to your house if you invite them, no doubt of that; and they may conceive an enthusiastic liking for you. But after all, you would not be one of them. Even though they genuinely appreciated your accomplishments, still you would be little more than an interesting incident. They are workers, engaged in doing the things they think most worth while—which is the worth while because they furnish what the intelligent public is demanding just now, and upon which the current market places a high value. And you are merely an intellectual young woman of leisure. They might think it a pity you didn't have to work, but secretly, no matter what their regard, they'd consider you negligible because you belong to a class that is content to be, not to do. I assure you they consider themselves the most important group in New York—in America—at present: the life-giving group of suns round which far-off planets humbly revolve."

"I see, you mean that my novelty would wear thin long before theirs. Heaven knows I have little to give them. I should feel rather ashamed sitting at the head of my table offering nothing but terranin and Gobelins. But don't you think I could make real friends of some of them? Surely we would find much in common to talk about—and they certainly take time to play, according to Uncle Din."

"I think there would always be a barrier . . . Ah! I have an idea. Why don't you set up a studio and take your painting seriously? Cut yourself off from the life and join the ranks of the real workers. Then, by degrees, they would accept you as a matter of course. You could return their hospitality in your studio, which could be one of the largest—there is no danger of overwhelming them; they are too successful themselves. Think it over."

Mrs. Goodrich's face, which had looked rather gloomy, brightened, lit up again. Her red mouth lifted at the corners, light seemed to pour into her hazel eyes. "I'll do it!" she exclaimed. "I did a portrait of father last month and it really is good. He is delighted with it, and you know how easy he is to please! I wonder I never thought of it before. You certainly are the most resourceful man in the world, less—by the way, I hear there is a party at the wonderful Gora Dwight's tonight. Do take me."

"Oh! I'm so sorry . . . it's quite impossible, Anne. I wish I could. . . I'll take you to one next week. And meanwhile get to work. Be ready to meet them in the outer court at least. You'll find it an immense advantage—rob your advent of any suggestion of curiosity."

"I'll look for a studio tomorrow. This is the way I do things—my father's daughter, you see."

She spoke with gay determination, but her face had fallen again. In a moment she began to draw on her gloves. "Now I'll have to run Westbury for dinner at eight. Thank you so much. Let me write you a goodnight. If I were a writer instead of a mere dabbler in paints, I'd dedicate my first book to you. I'm so sorry I haven't time to drive you down to Muldon Square."

Clavering, drawing a long breath as if he had escaped from imminent danger, saw her into her car and then walked briskly home. He had in a moment he had forgotten Anne Goodrich as completely as he had forgotten Janet Oglethorpe.

The Middle Ground

By Marlon Rubincam.

TWO SISTERS

Chapter 44

Amy—Aimee, as she signed herself now—was developing with a rapidity that astonished her mother. In fact, she had long since developed far beyond Mrs. Talbot's comprehension.

"It's no sort of life to lead," the mother would grumble, when Amy's head with its tumbled mass of glowing hair appeared in the dining room doorway.

"It's a fine life," Amy would answer, through almost every day. She would glance at the clock which usually pointed to 10 or half past, disappear for her bath, and return for her breakfast, her skin glowing from a hot and cold shower, and a silly, frivolous, enchanting cap of lace and ribbons holding in some of her hair.

Amy was the type that looks best in fancy costume. She had enough of the picturesque about her to be quite perfect in picturesque garb. Amy was put on the stage in many a performance where her voice did not matter, because she "made up" so wonderfully. And in the blue crepe silk robe that had been Claire's and the lace cap with a long streamer of broad ribbon falling down the back would answer.

Tea Sets, Pitchers, Vegetable Dishes, etc., can be had in patterns to match the spoons and forks.

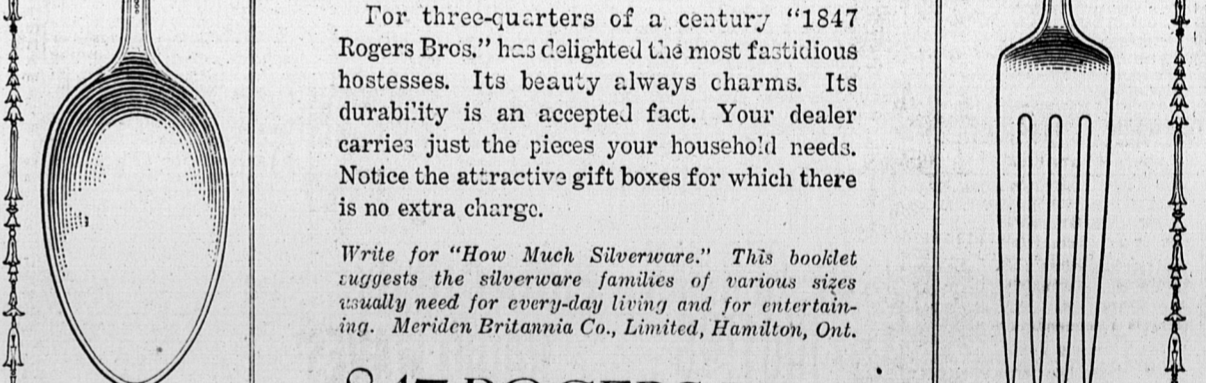

Let Christmas Morning Bring Completeness to the Silver Service

Many times this year, no doubt, the hostess in your home has been reminded of the pieces of silverware she lacks—pieces that would make possible a wider entertaining of her friends and just the graciousness of serving she desires. What more appropriate Christmas gift than these very half-dozen or dozens of pieces that will bring completeness to the silver service!

You will find them all in 1847 Rogers Bros. Silverplate—saled forks, butter spreaders, orange spoons, bouillon spoons, oyster forks, and serving pieces.

For three-quarters of a century "1847 Rogers Bros." has delighted the most fastidious hostesses. Its beauty always charms. Its durability is an accepted fact. Your dealer carries just the pieces your household needs. Notice the attractive gift boxes for which there is no extra charge.

Write for "How Much Silverware." This booklet suggests the silverware families of various sizes usually need for every-day living and for entertaining. Meriden Britannia Co., Limited, Hamilton, Ont.

1847 ROGERS BROS. SILVERPLATE

MERIDEN BRITANNIA CO. LIMITED

The Middle Ground

By Marlon Rubincam.

TWO SISTERS

Chapter 44

Amy—Aimee, as she signed herself now—was developing with a rapidity that astonished her mother. In fact, she had long since developed far beyond Mrs. Talbot's comprehension.

"It's no sort of life to lead," the mother would grumble, when Amy's head with its tumbled mass of glowing hair appeared in the dining room doorway.

"It's a fine life," Amy would answer, through almost every day. She would glance at the clock which usually pointed to 10 or half past, disappear for her bath, and return for her breakfast, her skin glowing from a hot and cold shower, and a silly, frivolous, enchanting cap of lace and ribbons holding in some of her hair.

Amy was the type that looks best in fancy costume. She had enough of the picturesque about her to be quite perfect in picturesque garb. Amy was put on the stage in many a performance where her voice did not matter, because she "made up" so wonderfully. And in the blue crepe silk robe that had been Claire's and the lace cap with a long streamer of broad ribbon falling down the back would answer.

The Middle Ground

By Marlon Rubincam.

TWO SISTERS

Chapter 44

Amy—Aimee, as she signed herself now—was developing with a rapidity that astonished her mother. In fact, she had long since developed far beyond Mrs. Talbot's comprehension.

"It's no sort of life to lead," the mother would grumble, when Amy's head with its tumbled mass of glowing hair appeared in the dining room doorway.

"It's a fine life," Amy would answer, through almost every day. She would glance at the clock which usually pointed to 10 or half past, disappear for her bath, and return for her breakfast, her skin glowing from a hot and cold shower, and a silly, frivolous, enchanting cap of lace and ribbons holding in some of her hair.

Amy was the type that looks best in fancy costume. She had enough of the picturesque about her to be quite perfect in picturesque garb. Amy was put on the stage in many a performance where her voice did not matter, because she "made up" so wonderfully. And in the blue crepe silk robe that had been Claire's and the lace cap with a long streamer of broad ribbon falling down the back would answer.

The Middle Ground

By Marlon Rubincam.

TWO SISTERS

Chapter 44

Amy—Aimee, as she signed herself now—was developing with a rapidity that astonished her mother. In fact, she had long since developed far beyond Mrs. Talbot's comprehension.

"It's no sort of life to lead," the mother would grumble, when Amy's head with its tumbled mass of glowing hair appeared in the dining room doorway.

"It's a fine life," Amy would answer, through almost every day. She would glance at the clock which usually pointed to 10 or half past, disappear for her bath, and return for her breakfast, her skin glowing from a hot and cold shower, and a silly, frivolous, enchanting cap of lace and ribbons holding in some of her hair.

Amy was the type that looks best in fancy costume. She had enough of the picturesque about her to be quite perfect in picturesque garb. Amy was put on the stage in many a performance where her voice did not matter, because she "made up" so wonderfully. And in the blue crepe silk robe that had been Claire's and the lace cap with a long streamer of broad ribbon falling down the back would answer.

The Middle Ground

By Marlon Rubincam.

TWO SISTERS

Chapter 44

Amy—Aimee, as she signed herself now—was developing with a rapidity that astonished her mother. In fact, she had long since developed far beyond Mrs. Talbot's comprehension.

"It's no sort of life to lead," the mother would grumble, when Amy's head with its tumbled mass of glowing hair appeared in the dining room doorway.

"It's a fine life," Amy would answer, through almost every day. She would glance at the clock which usually pointed to 10 or half past, disappear for her bath, and return for her breakfast, her skin glowing from a hot and cold shower, and a silly, frivolous, enchanting cap of lace and ribbons holding in some of her hair.

Amy was the type that looks best in fancy costume. She had enough of the picturesque about her to be quite perfect in picturesque garb. Amy was put on the stage in many a performance where her voice did not matter, because she "made up" so wonderfully. And in the blue crepe silk robe that had been Claire's and the lace cap with a long streamer of broad ribbon falling down the back would answer.

FARQUHAR STEAMSHIP COMPANIES

Steamer "JAN"

Charlottetown to St. John's, Nfld.

Next Sailing About December 11th

This steamer will leave Charlottetown about December 11th and should arrive at St. John's, in time for the Xmas market. Shippers requiring space for Cattle, Poultry, Produce, etc. Apply to

CARVELL BROS., Agents

ACANADIAN PRODUCT

purita

FREE RUNNING