THREATENED OIL EMBARGO AID TO PEACE

(Copyright, 1935, By The Havas News Agency)
GENEVA, Nov. 25—Soviet Russia and Rumania, which between them now provide Italy two-thirds of her petroleum requirements, tonight offered to ban further oil exports to Italy if other exporting countries do likewise.
This proviso is regarded as being directed primarily at the United States which supplies 25 per cent of Italy's oil imports. Great Britain, through the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, is handling only 8.5 per cent of the trade.
The League made public notes from Russia and Rumania, conveying the offer. Russia also included coal, iron and steel products in her conditional proposal. The Russian note was dated Nov. 17 and that of Rumania Nov. 23.

ROME, Nov. 25—Diplomatic sources said tonight that the question of an oil embargo against Italy by raising the threat of spreading war, has added the cause of peace.

It is a stake for which Premier Mussolini will fight, well-informed observers stated. Upon it, they asserted depends either a conflict in Europe or a peaceful division of Ethiopia.
Italy's vital need of "black gold" was described as the basis for diplomatic activity which culminated today in postponement of the League of Nations consideration of such an oil embargo.

Italian officials still were anxious lest the United States, through a voluntary oil embargo, set the pace. But most authoritative sources expressed doubt that Washington would take formal action to keep oil from Italy.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—Information in the hands of the government tonight showed that the United States exports to the Italo-Ethiopian war zone are continuing during November despite the pressure applied to stop them.

The mere fact that exports to Italy have been maintained thus far in November signifies, in the opinion of some observers, that some further step may be contemplated by the administration in an effort to halt the flow.

Enjoyable Social At St. Eleanors

On Thursday evening a very enjoyable social evening was held in the hall at St. Eleanors under the auspices of the teachers and pupils of the High School.
Mr. Earle Jelly, principal of the school very capably presided.
A program of solos, duets and a quartette formed the first part of the entertainment and each number was heartily enjoyed.
Then came some snappy monologues and dialogues which won much merited applause.
The second half of the evening was taken up with games and contests. Mr. Jelly superintended the games and Miss Dorothy MacMurdo had charge of the contests.
A feature of the evening was the witch's pot, loaned by Mrs. Percy Crossby for the occasion, and presided over by Mrs. Roy Tanton who impersonated a witch and told all and sundry their past, present and future.

A general sing song made the intervals pass pleasantly.
Those taking part in the entertainment were Carl Moss, Hazel Barrett, Edward Lockhart, Colin Creswell, Mrs. Harry Cannon, Mr. Earle Jelly, Mr. Alban MacDougall, Miss Lila Perry, Mrs. Percy Crossby, Earle and Carrie Cannon. Mrs. Lockhart was the accompanist of the evening.
The school children served a very dainty lunch after which the evening came to a close with all joining in singing Good Night Ladies and the National Anthem.
The proceeds are being used towards school improvements.
The teachers and scholars very much appreciate the assistance given by the people of the village with the program and also to the hall committee for the use of the hall.—S accurately determine the percentage of humidity in his greenhouse. He should think of humidity in the same way as he thinks of temperature—in figures.

When the above methods of control have proved unsatisfactory there is still the old standby of prevention by spraying or dusting. As far as mildews are concerned, sulphur sprays and dusts in their various forms are the ones that have given the best results. The main point is to have a good coverage of the spray or dust on the foliage and thus prevent the germination of the spores that might be around. The K. S. Resin spray developed at the Saatchon Laboratory has proved quite effective against mildew of roses. When sulphur dust is applied it should be as fine as possible. In the control of tomato leaf mould, vaporised sulphur has proved quite effective with many growers. Care must be taken, however, to avoid injuring the plants during this process. Vaporised sulphur must be deposited on the leaves as very fine elemental sulphur.

It is important that each greenhouse operator should possess, not only the ordinary thermometers, but also wet and dry bulb thermometers by means of which he can

GOV. GENERAL IN TORONTO

Pays First Official Visit To Queen City.

(C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
TORONTO, Nov. 25—There was a distinctly Scottish atmosphere about Toronto today as Baron Tweedsmuir, Canada's new Vice-Regal representative, paid his first official visit to the Queen City of Ontario.

Bagpipes played and a long line of killed, scarlet-coated 48th Highlanders lined up as a Guard of Honor as the Governor General and his Consort came to Queen's Park stately seat of the province's legislature, to receive addresses from provincial and civic dignitaries.

Earlier, as he left his private car to see Toronto for the first time as representative of His Majesty in Canada, a heavy mist—similar to those that cloud his native Scotland—rolled up from Lake Ontario. Acting-Premier Harry Nixon, Provincial Secretary voiced the welcome of Ontario to His Excellency, Canada would look for profit in the "same judgment" the Governor General would be called upon to exercise in dealing with perplexing problems of the time, he said.
Mayor James Simpson introduced an international flavor to the ceremony, in his address on behalf of the corporation of Toronto.

"Your Excellency's appointment has been received with great satisfaction by the citizens of the United States, who know Your Excellency as a man who has won their

Control of Mildews In Greenhouse

(Experimental Farms Note)
"Prevention is better than cure" is an old motto that can be applied to the control of mildews and moulds in greenhouses.

The first principle in prevention is that of cleanliness which means the destruction of all foliage in the greenhouse which is likely to harbour the mildew organism. Most mildews pass the wintering stage on diseased parts of the plants attacked. Empty greenhouses may also be freed of many overwintering surface fungi by burning 10 ounces of sulphur per 1,000 cubic feet on hot coals or chips soaked in coal oil. The houses should be closed tightly for about 24 hours during the process.

The second method of prevention is that of creating an unfavourable environment for the germination and further growth of the mildew or mould organisms. Spores of mildew, for instance, require some moisture before they can germinate. This moisture can be present on the leaves of the plant either after overhead watering or as a dewy deposit due to excessive humidity in a stagnant atmosphere. This generally occurs at night. Such conditions can be partly remedied by good ventilation and increasing the temperature.

It has been recently found, for instance, that leaf mould of tomatoes can be controlled by maintaining the relative humidity below 70 per cent, when the temperature is 72 degrees F., or else 75 per cent when the temperature is 64 degrees F. Unfortunately many greenhouses are not equipped with adequate facilities for ventilation and heating.

It is important that each greenhouse operator should possess, not only the ordinary thermometers, but also wet and dry bulb thermometers by means of which he can respect and admiration by the brilliancy of achievement in life and letters, and as one who has given evidence of a sympathetic understanding of American ways of thought," Mayor Simpson said.

Baron Tweedsmuir briefly replied to the addresses of welcome and later came down from the speaker's chair in the legislature chamber to meet personally all those who had come to greet him.
Tonight he will attend the Horse Show at the Royal Winter Fair.

Ignores Warning Of Federation President

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25—John L. Lewis curtly dismissed a warning tonight from William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, that organization of a committee within the Federation to promote industrial unionism might bring "grave consequences."
"It won't change our plans at all," Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers, told reporters after Green had handed them copies of a letter he had sent to Lewis. The letter went also to the six other union presidents who have banded together to work for unionization of mass production workers by industry rather than by craft. That is, they would have a single union for workers in the steel industry, rather than several unions of different steel crafts.
"When organizations within organizations are formed for the cord which may follow." This exchange followed Lewis' resignation Saturday as a vice-president of the Federation, and his explanation to reporters today that it was due to "irreconcilable differences" with a majority of the executive council over "how workers in our large industries should be organized."
