WEDS P. E. I. GIRL. A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of England, Truro on Saturday, July 26 at 8 p. m. when Rev. Thompson united in marriage Helen Sellick daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sellick P. E. I. and Clayton Kaulbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kaulbach, Albert Avenue, Bible Hill. The bride was dressed in a street length dress of white Jersey with matching hat and accessories and carried a bouquet of red roses. They were attended by Miss Amy Snow, Truro and Cecil Lamont also of Truro. The bridesmaid was dressed in white and carried pink roses. Following the ceremony the happy couple left for Prince Edward Island and on their return will reside in Truro where the groom is a valued employee of Dewar's Garage, Bible Hill. —Truro News.

VISITED P.E.I. The Male Choir of the Knox United Church, Leggettville, motored to Prince Edward Island for the recent weekend. They led the service of prayer in the Truro church on Sunday evening, and sang well, a number of special selections. They were entertained in the homes of the congregation there. Rev. E. R. Woodside, who supplied in Knox congregation for nine months during the illness of Rev. Neil MacLeod, is pastor in the Truro Church. During the holiday the choir members toured the island, touching Charlottetown, Summerside, Cavendish and other places of importance. The personnel of the choir was as follows:—Harold Johnstone, D. R. Kelley, Auley Matthews, Harry Dickson, Darrell Matthews, Melvin Dickson, John M. Johnston, George Sweeney, Weldon Burke William Hierlby, J. D. Loggie, Chester MacDonald, Robert Kelley, Fred MacKay, Alvin Young, Clifton Watling, Winfield Deady, Arthur Touchie and Carlisle Stymies. Others accompanying the party were Harold Taylor, Mrs. D. R. Kelley and Mrs. W. W. Hierlby, organist. —Moncton Times.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE POSTPONES WEDDING

Wedding bells will not ring in October for Dorothy Stumpf, 19, who was committed for trial in Kitchener, Ont. on a charge of motor manslaughter. The pretty twin-winner in a local industry was charged, in addition, with failure to have an operator's permit, dangerous driving and having illegal possession of liquor following the death of seven-year-old Dennis Hartung at Knollwood camp, Aug. 22. Miss Stumpf had planned to be married to her girlhood friend, James Kennedy, on Oct. 4, the day following her birthday. After the preliminary hearing before Magistrate H. B. Polson, she said she had postponed her wedding indefinitely because the "case has upset me terribly and has caused me a great deal of worry and sorrow."

ELLEN'S DIARY

of the pink froth from the mixture. And just when one is in a quandry, whether to lift or not to lift, out come bygone years one recalls: "Try them with a fork, Ellen—a silver fork, child, then you'll be able to tell right away if the fruit is cooked." Into the hot sterilized bottles, with a sturdy, faithful old kept for such purposes, the not mixture is poured. But not to the top. Oh dear no. Once the contents have settled down comfortably, like such a grandmother as I, with her knitting, there must be room for the hot, melted wax. And then the covers, clamped or screwed down to a nicety. There will be, of course, a final dipping of bottles next morning, as an assurance that at the opening ceremony there will be no bitter hopes, especially if, trusting something to the fate, one uses sealers which are positively not air-tight.

Time was when the opening of jars sealed thus was often annoying and quite dangerous. "And isn't supper ready yet, Ellen?" James has asked me, before this. "Yes! I have said, putting with my exertions "Whenever I get this jar of preserves open." "I'll open it" he would reply rather impatiently adding "if that's what's holding things up!" And many another strong handed one besides James I have seen give up in despair, as I stood by watching. It is really no trouble at all to loosen any stubborn bottle cover. Invert it in a bowl of hot water, hum or sing a line of a favorite air, and then it will turn with little effort—not even a heightening of color.

A nice, and unusual visitor, James and I were invited at Alderlea, this evening. Indeed I found her screaming, as did James though he confessed, as we watched the car go down the driveway, that "until one gets used to it, her speech is difficult to understand." This is an island ex-service man's wife, come free over the seas. "Nae" she replied to one of my earlier questions. "I'm no fraig Glasgow, m' frae Dundee, Aye! frae Dundee." Before this evening Dundee had been a strange city to James and me. Now having had as a guest one whom I suspect will be "forever" Dundee, we learned to know it well, as a beautiful, busy city of unforgettable memories to those familiar with it. The lass herself is bonny: brown of hair, fair of skin and blue of eye, with an expression that is open and a bit inquiring. She "wasna aane" but "came oot wi' twa thers" Scottish brides after war's close. How long will it take her to lose her mother tongue, and accent? I remarked, not that I would ever have it changed, so sweet and low and clear it is. There was a knowing smile and a far away look in her eyes, which I know was seeing well remembered scenes of "hame"—of "parties" and dances and such enjoyable community affairs, not forgetting the mountains, the lochs, the heathered glens and moors, and "I dinna suppose, iver!" she said

Youth And Age Equally Important To Salvation Army

TORONTO, Aug. 30—Which is most important, the citizen of tomorrow or the citizen of yesterday? "Both are equally important to The Salvation Army," declares Commissioner Chas. Baugh, Territorial Commander for Canada, "because both are human elements which need understanding and guidance and often require institutional care."

Economically, perhaps, citizens of tomorrow are most deserving of attention. Among them will be more than 1600 children of unmarried mothers cared for last year by the Salvation Army. They deserve all the rights and privileges implied by the term a Canadian citizen, says the Commissioner. In its 21 maternity and receiving homes The Army seeks to provide safe surroundings to ensure a good start in life, free from stigma.

But citizens of yesterday make equal claim upon The Army's "human touch and understanding heart," the Commissioner states. He said that aged men and women, having made their contributions to the social and economic life of the nation, also deserve consideration. Increase of old-age pensions is a step in the right direction, the Commissioner feels, but often the need goes farther. Protection and congenial accommodation are necessary and in 16 Sunset Lodges and Evening Homes operated by the Army over 800 aged people find haven.

To care for Canada's citizens of tomorrow and yesterday, as well as the host of today's citizens who need help, The Salvation Army's national Red Shield appeal for $1,000,000, will begin across Canada on Monday, September 15.

"The Salvation Army feels certain that the public of Canada, and the hundreds of willing workers who every year give liberally of their time, will assure the success of the Appeal," Commissioner Baugh declared.

Urge Free Access To World News

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8 — (AP) — Free access to news in every country was urged today by the first post-war conference of the International Council of Women.

The 1000 delegates passed a resolution declaring the I.C.W. "is gravely concerned at the suppression and arbitrary editing of information of many countries."

The women said that "since true democracy must be based on an informed public, the I.C.W. considers that there should be free access to the information necessary for forming a true knowledge of both foreign and domestic affairs."

Urge 10-Year Coal Expansion Program

INGONISH, N. S., Sept. 8 — (CP) — A 10-year program of expansion for Canadian coal mines was urged here today in a report from provincial mines ministers following a four-day conference.

Coupled with the expansion program, the report said, should be "any necessary assistance... to encourage this expansion" and a program of "serious" difficulties, which if not ameliorated will result in continuing deterioration."

"The form of assistance might vary with the different coal fields but would consist mainly of transportation subsidies and for reduced freight rates to facilitate the marketing of Canadian coal in non-producing areas."

"The amount of assistance... cannot be exactly determined but should be sufficient to guarantee on a long-term basis the implementation of a sure supply of Canadian coal envisaged in the program of expanded Canadian production."

Because coal was an important factor in the Canadian economy all provinces should encourage the production of an annually increasing supply beyond the tonnage under present market conditions, the ministers said.

Gold mining occupied part of the ministers' discussions and their report said the industry was experiencing "serious" difficulties, which if not ameliorated will result in continuing deterioration."

Factors contributing to a decrease from $200,000,000 in 1941 to $103,000,000 in 1946 were listed as: price decrease resulting from the change in relative value of the Canadian dollar amounting to $3.06 an ounce; an increase of 28 per cent in equipment and 28 per cent in labor costs and the discouragement of capital from entering the exploration and development fields.

The ministers reported that a comprehensive review of all the influences contributing to this situation should be made and a definite policy designed. The ministers said they had requested a meeting with Federal authorities on the matter.

Commending Federal action in aerial photography, the delegates recommended that inter-departmental committees be set up to work within the province and cooperate with Ottawa officials. All provincial ministers reported that these committees had been formed and a meeting with Ottawa authorities would be held in Ottawa tomorrow.

See Exchange Of Facts Means Of Promoting Peace

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 — (AP) — President Truman and Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, called today for a free exchange of economic and social information as a means of promoting peace.

Their views were presented to the opening sessions of the World Statistical Congress, convened for the first time since a similar meeting in 1938 at Prague, Czechoslovakia, was disrupted by the Nazi invasion of the Sudetenland.

Lie told the delegates that international understanding is impossible without exchange of facts. Mr. Truman, in a message read to the meeting, said:

"It is my earnest hope that you men will find means of binding the world together in arrangements for the collection and free exchange of dependable economic and social information concerning all people. In my opinion, this would do much to promote the growth of peaceful democratic institutions throughout the world."

EARLY WEAVING ART INFORMATION SOUGHT

TORONTO, Sept. 9 — (CP) — If a 100-year-old pattern for a bed coverlet was called Double Bow Knot in Kentucky what was it called in Ontario? That's the $64 question at the Royal Ontario Museum's booth at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Unlike most of the displays at the fair, which only give information, the Museum's booth also invites information from passers-by to help fill in the gaps in the story of Ontario's ancient spinning and weaving.

The display shows the early, high spinning wheel and the small, low type brought up from the United States by United Empire Loyalists. "We wonder if some of this type weren't also made right here in Ontario," said Miss Betty Mew of the Museum staff.

The third wheel on display is a polished and ornamented one from the 18th century, when it was fashionable to sit in the drawing-room and spin.

It is about the products of the looms, also on display, that the Museum would most like information. A coverlet of the familiar four-harness, overshoot weave in blue and white was known as the Hickory Leaf in Rhode Island; Double Bow Knot and Blooming Leaf in Kentucky, but nobody knows what it was called in Ontario. The Museum is still asking.

In Memoriam

Lovingly Remembered Viola, Howard, Florence and Nelson.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our darling Bessie K. Acorn, who departed this life September 10, 1946.

She was the loveliest white rosebud. The sweetest flower from birth. So God took her up to Heaven. Before she was soiled on earth.

Though our hearts are broken with sorrow,
By a grief so hard to bear,
Some bright morning, in His garden
We will find her so sweet and fair.

Ever Remembered and Sadly Missed by Mother, Daddy and Mildred.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear little granddaughter, Bessie Kathryn Acorn, who departed this life September 10, 1946.

Two little hands lay o'er her breast,
Two dear little feet lay down to rest,
Two dear eyes in slumber closed
How our hearts are bleeding,
None but God knows,
One little voice, that prattled in love,
Is now ringing with angels above,
One dear form that sat on our knee,
Jesus has called our darling away.

Because a shotgun was carelessly left where young hands could find it, tragedy struck in a small Waukegan, Ill., home, erased the smiles of these two children and brought grief to their parents, Billy Taylor, 4, top right, found the gun behind a davenport, then shot and fatally wounded his sister Betty, 8, top left, "because she hit me." Sorrow filled the faces of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Taylor, bottom, as they waited in vain for an emergency operation to save their daughter.
