Island dairymen in annual session here yesterday decided to ask the Dominion government to build, equip and operate a cold storage plant at Borden to be used to store Island butter. Under the present plan, dairymen complained, butter produced in this province is sent to Montreal for grading and storage. During the winter months it means producers must pay for shipping butter to Montreal for grading and then for bringing it back to the Atlantic seaboard for shipment if it is for export overseas.

Local co-operative creameries and cheese factories are not equipped with cold storage facilities, the resolution pointed out.

Without storage equipment Island producers were forced to sell their product immediately, especially during summer months, and often when the price was lowest.
