It may be added that Cardinal Begin was not alone in protest against the ravages of intemperance under their Government Control system. Others, able and foremost in the Roman Catholic priesthood, have scathingly denounced the iniquities of that liquor system which has so menaced the moral status of the people, and persistently nullified the work of the Church in their efforts to cultivate sobriety amongst their people.

INSIDIOUS EYE STRAIN

We use this adjective advisedly.

Sufferers from Eye-strain may have perfect vision and therefore do not suspect the presence of any eye defect.

The motive power of the entire human organism is Nerve Energy.

Normal eyes, it is computed utilize about 20% of this Nerve Energy, but when Eye-strain is present, a much larger proportion is required. Hence defective eyes, through their consumption of an excessive amount of Nerve Energy may seriously affect the functioning of other organs of the body and produce ill health.

LONG CREEK WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.—The regular monthly meeting of the Long Creek Women's Institute, met at the home of Mrs. Alex. MacLeod, on Wednesday evening, March 2nd, with an attendance of fourteen members. We were pleased to entertain five visitors. One new member was welcomed to our Institute. The meeting which was opened in the usual manner was followed by the reading and approval of the minutes of last meeting. Roll call was responded to with: "A Canadian City and what it is noted for." A report was received from the committee appointed from the Institute to confer with the trustees in connection with placing a hardwood floor in the school-house, it was decided to leave this matter until the summer holidays. The social part of the meeting consisted of a debate: "Resolved that Country Life is Preferable to City Life." A strong argument was put up for "Country Life by Miss Jean MacArthur and Mrs. W. E. Stretch, against Mrs. Norman MacLean, M. S. William MacDonald, and Miss Florence MacKenzie, of City Life. Country Life won the debate by a large majority. A few bills in connection with the Institute were ordered to be paid. Bounteous refreshments were served by the hostess and the meeting closed with singing. The next meeting will be held in the school house. Roll call to be responded to by paying a dime, also a debate "Resolved that the cow is more useful than the horse."

LECTURE ENJOYED.—On the evening of March the 18th, a very enjoyable entertainment was held under the auspices of Melville L. O. B. A., and Lorne L. O. L. in the Orange Hall at DeSable. The hall being filled to capacity by an audience from the surrounding districts to hear Mr. Hammond J. Ince, in his very pleasing and interesting manner, tell of his trip to the Nome mining camp in its early days, and the impressions left upon him in his various experiences with Indians, ice condition, and Eskimos, their customs and the grand scenery of the vast spaces of the great North Land. Mr. Ernest C. Holm, acting as chairman, the following program was carried out: An opening chorus, The Red White and Blue, by a choir composed of the very best local talent. Recitation, The New Church Organ, by Miss Muriel Best. Lecture, The Great North Land, by Mr. Hammond J. Ince. Solo, I'm Glad My Heart's My Own, Miss Lolita MacVittie. Instrumental music, violin and organ. Miss Verna Darrach and Mr. Joseph Dunford. Closing chorus, Jingle Bell, by the Choir. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Ince and others helping in the program was moved by Mrs. Wilfrid Ferguson, Worthy Mistress of Melville L. O. B. A., and seconded by Mr. Myron Shaw, Worshipful Master of Lorne L. O. L., and tendered by the chairman to which Mr. Ince made reply in a few fitting words. During an intermission lunches were sold and just before closing a sale of cakes and a snug sum was realized. Then the evening was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem and all dispersing to their homes congratulating themselves on having spent a profitable and enjoyable evening.

Swift loved his liquor, as did Chaucer. Rostand's favorite beverage was the white wine of Bordeaux. Chateau de Suldurard in particular, and Marcel Proust's is Chateau Cilmens. Congreve drank a quart of Burgundy every night at dinner, and washed it down with several ponies of brandy. Ambrose Bierce's taste was for straight whiskey, provided it was not made by his own hand. Mithaniel Hawthorne's penchant was for ale. Sterne was off the stuff on all his unproductive years; the moment he took to ethyl alcohol he produced "Tristram Shandy" and the "Sentimental Journey." William Schwenk Gilbert lived up to the traditions of his middle name, and Fielding wrote "Joseph Andrews" in a mildly pickled state. Sir Charles Napier wrote his one and only book "Byronia," after his physician had prescribed a moderate daily use of alcohol after a long and deleterious period of abstinence.

Under the assumed name of Dr. Schmidt, Schiller enjoyed the malt of Ogersheim and later of Bauerbach, to such a degree that for years afterwards he was fretful if any other brew was passed over to him. Byron tried all the trilles in Portugal, Spain, Turkey and Greece and apparently found them to his liking, and Swinburne's cast-iron stomach is known to history. Dickens was a magnificent stow-away of ale; old Sam Johnson's drink chair is familiar to all visitors to prohibitionists from this continent who visited and Oscar Wilde on Cook's tour; and Oscar Wilde could down six glasses of green Chartreuse or eight of bad brandy without turning a hair.

But why multiply examples? Are these not sufficient to prove that Prohibition is the handmaiden of Civilization and Culture?

I am, Sir, etc.

THE SAFEGUARD OF PROHIBITION

Sir,—One of the resolutions passed by the Provincial Branch of the Dominion Temperance Alliance (should they not call themselves "Prohibition Alliance" now) prayed "to send into and maintain in this Province five members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police during the open season of navigation and three members during the closed season for the purpose of deterring, preventing and punishing violations of the Customs and Inland Revenue Acts." So a military force is to be brought to bear on us to keep us in order. Well! Well! The idea lying back of this seems to be that Island civilian agents appointed to do this work are prone to look the other way if they see a suspicious vessel in the offing, or "play favorites" among their friends who may be found to operate illicit stills. If this is not the reason for such a request won't somebody kindly explain what the idea really is?

But, if the Alliance must have troops to enforce the Prohibition Act, for, stripped of any quibbling, that is what the above clause means, let them send for a squadron of the Egyptian Camel Corps. They should specify carefully that all the members be picked men noted for their zealous and unswerving belief in the Moslem faith. These men, unlike the Christians, being forbidden by their religion even to taste alcoholic liquors in any form could be trusted to pursue all bootleggers, smugglers and other traffickers in the damnable stuff—accursed by the great prophet Mohammed—with a holy zeal that could not fail to satisfy even the most finical and thorough prohibitionist. As for their steeds—every one knows the great swiftness and endurance of

GIN RICKY

"CENSOR" ANSWERED

Sir,—Your correspondent "Censor" complains that a poster displayed by the Temperance Alliance is a "Gross Misrepresentation" of the late Cardinal Begin in its reference to government control. He should have had more sense than to charge that a quotation, using the exact words of His Lordship, is a "misrepresentation."

Here are the words of this late distinguished Prelate, in his Pastoral Letter, dated December 1923, speaking as Archbishop to the Province of Quebec, in regard to the then existing conditions under Government Control.

"You know what a vigorous battle has been fought for the virtue of temperance in our diocese by our beloved coadjutors and the group of ecclesiastical and lay apostles who aided in his efforts. After about fifteen years of work, they had almost conquered the enemy, and two were overjoyed in foreseeing the end of the destruction caused by the excess of alcohol. But, alas, there is now spreading everywhere the intolerable abuse which we denounce, and in particular, the surreptitious fabrication of an alcohol more harmful than any other in the history of the body and soul, i.e., making moonshine."

What an indictment of government control? Could it be more telling and more accurate? After fifteen years of unremitting labor the Church had "almost conquered the enemy" and were "overjoyed in foreseeing the end of the destruction caused by the excess of alcohol." And now to find their hopes blasted, and their great work of moral reform wrought into complete destruction by the "fabrication of an alcohol" (poisonous moonshine) and the bootlegging fostered under the encouraging wings of the Quebec Liquor Control laws. "Misrepresentation", your correspondent calls it. He should go to school and learn English.

The above photograph of the Vehicular Peace bridge was taken from the Canadian shore, looking towards Buffalo. On the Canadian side, its terminal will be on the ground on which was fought the battle of Fort Erie, in the war of 1812. On the American side the terminal will be on land now occupied by the buildings of Fort Porter in Buffalo. This bridge will be open to traffic about the first of June. It is expected that the Prince of Wales and President Coolidge will formally open the bridge in August of this year.

Forty Three New Operas Are Found

(By British United Press)

ROME, March 26.—The greatest musical find of the century has been made in Turin, where an enormous quantity of Eighteenth Century masterpieces and minor works have been brought to light. Invited to inspect a roomful of books and manuscripts, the Superintendent of Piedmontese Bibliography, accompanied by other experts, found to his surprise among the 97 volumes that constituted the board, 43 operas for the theatre, 23 vocal and chamber music pieces, 22 instrumental chamber music pieces, five sacred music pieces and oratorios, and five treatises on the theory of music.

All these were Eighteenth Century publications of great rarity, many of them not only unique copies, but works that had altogether passed from sight. There was also much manuscript music. Notable among rare printed works are editions of Gluck, Philidor, Pergolesi and Rameau. Special value is attached to the "Nina et Lindor" of Duni, intermezzi in two Acts, of 1778.

Among unpublished works are twelve operas by Vivaldi—up to now two were in existence and eleven only were known by name. In addition there are cantatas and sacred works hitherto unknown. From the pen of Stradella are revealed two unprinted operas for the theatre besides symphonies, serenades, and arias.

The most surprising discovery however, is that of eight volumes containing manuscript settings, with commentaries of Sixteenth Century songs, and madrigals for lute accompaniment and a similar volume for the Spanish guitar, together with manuscripts of ancient and troubadour songs set for a bass voice. The value of the find lies not so much in the prominence of the authors as in the completeness of the contribution made to the history of the development of Italian and European music.

The collection has been acquired by a citizen of Turin and handed over as a gift to the State. All the books and manuscripts have been proved authentic and their publication is eagerly awaited.

A pretty girl, attired in the latest fashion, was sitting on a park bench when a young man came up and took off his hat, remarking that it was a fine day.

"How dare you speak to me," said the maiden indignantly. "I don't know you from Adam."

"Well," returned the young man unconcernedly, "I would hardly know you from Eve."
