Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Termination of the Finnish-Russian negotiations does not necessarily mean either the abandonment of Soviet demands on the northern republic or an immediate resource to force of arms. Secure in its great wealth and power the Soviet Union can wait and, without moving a man or a gun across the border, make things tough for the Finns. It is not an easy thing for a small country to maintain its army on a war footing and keep its defenses ready to meet an attack. By maintaining a constant threat, a powerful nation can put a weaker one to expense and inconvenience which may in time wear down its resistance.

SAD DEATH—Mr. James W. Beers 60-year-old resident of Belle River was found dead at his home about 4:15 yesterday afternoon. The aged man had been mentally ill and was discovered in unfortunate circumstances. A coroner's jury inquired into this division in his death yesterday. He had not been seen since the last of October but the deceased was in the habit of visiting Charlottetown frequently. His disappearance aroused the community caused no alarm.

Special Red Cross Meeting Planned

A meeting of the Prince Edward Island Division, Canadian Red Cross, was held yesterday. Plans were made for the special meeting to be held in Hearz Hall on Wednesday, November 15th, when the speaker will be Dr. P. D. Bentley, National Red Cross Commissioner, Toronto.

Since all divisions of the Canadian Red Cross have been requested to correspond with the calendar year it was decided not to follow the suggested plan of ending the fiscal year on December 31st, when full reports can be submitted. Preparations for the appeal for funds to be conducted during this week and next were discussed at length.

Dr. H. D. Johnson, speaking on behalf of the Canadian Legion expressed the appreciation of that body to the Red Cross for deferring its appeal until after Poppy Day and assured the Red Cross of the support of the Legion in its efforts to raise funds.

Dr. MacMillan speaking over the radio last night in a very stirring appeal urged the people of Prince Edward Island to uphold the wonderful record established by them in the assistance they rendered the Red Cross in the last war.

YOUNG KILITE BUGLER

When the band of the Prince Edward Island Regiment, on parade through the streets of Halifax and Dartmouth one of the Kilites chaiming attention is bound to be the youngest of them all. This year-old bugler, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ambrose of Charlottetown, young Ambrose has been a Bugler with the crack Island unit for the past two months recently joined his unit, which is on active service in Dartmouth; he is a "chip" of the old block for his father, Ex-Sergeant Jack Weatherbie of Charlottetown, had a notable record with the E. I. Highlanders during the Great War.

IMPRESSIVE PICTURE—The danger of drinking even moderate quantities of liquor before driving a car is emphasized in striking fashion in a motion picture which was given a preview at the Capitol Theatre yesterday morning. It was seen and commented upon favorably by representatives of the clergy, the Provincial Government, R. C. M. P. local police, and others. The picture, which is one of the well-known "Crime Does Not Pay" series, is accompanied by a citation of statistics proving the tremendous toll in human life and property on drunken driving. The picture shows how easily such tragedies may happen, and is calculated to make a profound impression on the public.

SWAN-MACNUTT—In Zion Presbyterian Church, Manse, on Friday evening last, the pastor, Rev. Carlyle Webster, officiated at the marriage of Miss Madeline Louise Swan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Swan of Charlottetown, to George Reginald MacNutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. MacNutt, of Malpeque. The bride, attended in blue gowns with corsage of red roses, was attended by Miss Mildred Dingwell, who wore Burundis crepe with corsage of pink roses. Mr. Gordon C. Swan, brother of the bride, acted as groomsmen. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, at which Mrs. Madeline Louise Swan, Mrs. E. Elmer Sutherland and Miss Suzanne MacKinnon assisted in serving.

Several cars in this vicinity showed the effects of the cold on Sunday morning as steam was going in clouds from them.

Several thousand bushels of potatoes stored here were removed last week by rail and trucks for the present time.

The Bank of Nova Scotia has opened its doors at Morell as a daily bank now, for several years past the office was only open three days per week. Scores of customers welcomed this move by the bank management. Mr. Naive, Manager of the bank, will move to Morell very shortly.

Mr. Angus Lapierre, arrived home from Montreal on Wednesday evening and left the next day for the Madagascars to attend the wedding of his brother. This writer who received an invitation to the wedding would last two weeks, that being the custom of the Gulf Islands.

A few fishing boats still swing at anchor at St. Peter's Harbor in the hope that a few fish days may come before the freeze. At time of writing one of the heavy fall storms is raging.

Many friends of Mrs. Harold Murphy, Morell, will learn with regret of her serious illness in the Charlottetown Hospital.

The two minutes silence was well observed here on Saturday. Scores of children and adults seemed to freeze in their tracks as the hour of silence arrived and how long two minutes is after all.

Mr. and Mrs. Wentz Baker and Mrs. Albert McEwen were visitors to the city Friday on business.

Mrs. Arthur Blackland and Mrs. James Blackland, Jr. are spending a few days in the city.

Mr. Cyril Sinnott P. W. C. spent the weekend at his home here. Mr. Sinnott is attending college for the second term and will follow up his studies in the fall.

The voice of Her Majesty the Queen was heard here on Saturday. It is only a few short months since the beloved Queen won the hearts of her people across Canada and the United States.

It shows how deeply the Author's Association recognizes the need for keeping up our intellectual life in war time. Her Excellency said in a broadcast talk: "At this moment, of all others, we turn to the things of the mind and the spirit. In a world dominated by terror and tragedy."

In her call for greater creative effort, Lady Tweedsmuir said she was certain "we should try now to write books of permanent value."

"We should aim in writing them, at simplicity and beauty of style and we should try to show the heights to which men and women can attain rather than dwell upon the depths to which they can sink," she continued.

"There should be hope in these books and a reasoned optimism and an unwavering faith that in the end truth and justice will prevail."

Her Excellency gave similar word to poets and expressed a hope that war would produce some poems to rival Robert Browke's sonnets, Julian Grenfell's "Hymn to Sunrise" and the beautiful poetry of Charles Peguy.

"It happens this verse will be some household words and will be sung and said by generations to come," she declared.

Different things were looked for in books in wartime than in peace, she said. People find themselves putting to one side books which are peevish in their outlook or flashy in their writing.

"We go back to the great classics of England and France, many of which were written during the stress of wars and from them we draw inspiration from the greatness of the human spirit," she said.

Georgetown

Georgetown is having its busy season. Twelve to twenty trucks are running full time for the past ten or twelve days, filling up the potato warehouse. The "Millie B." has made ten trips from Annandale; also the schooner "Aristocrat" of Souris landed fourteen hundred bags from Annandale. Never have the movements of potatoes been so rapid as in summer. Therefore, it is no wonder that the shed, large as it is, is now about full, with trucks backing in, filling up the alleyways. The shippers are anxiously awaiting for potato boats, to relieve the situation.

The S. S. Surt is still on her regular weekly trips, relieving the situation, by taking table stock potatoes to Sydney. Perhaps the bulk of potatoes coming across the water of the past two weeks has been shipped from Annandale. It is no wonder that the shed, large as it is, is now about full, with trucks backing in, filling up the alleyways. The shippers are anxiously awaiting for potato boats, to relieve the situation.

The farmers in this vicinity have all vegetable teams turning over the soil for 1940 crop. Thus the horseman work at the ploughing, while the trucks carry off the potatoes.

Wharf work at Georgetown and New Port, also roadwork is about finished for the fall. The mill was certain two weeks ago, and brought out many friends of nature. Very noticeable is the green hills of St. Georges and New Port, and now as this goes to the press, Jack Frost will change the scene and the green hills will be no more for this year.

Lady Tweedsmuir Pleads Literary Effort

Ottawa, Nov. 13—(CP)—Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of Canada's governor-general, Saturday urged Canadian writers to rise to new heights in their writing of war and congratulated the Canadian author's association on holding Book Week at this time—Nov. 11 to 18.

"It shows how deeply the Author's Association recognizes the need for keeping up our intellectual life in war time," she said in a broadcast talk. "At this moment, of all others, we turn to the things of the mind and the spirit. In a world dominated by terror and tragedy."
