ANYTHING but LOVE

by JANET DORAN

CHAPTER IV

"But why," Johnny asked, for the tenth time, "did he see Sig Borndike off like that, and then vanish?"

He and Alma had been questioning the agent at the railroad station, and had learned that Lawson Whittaker had spent twenty minutes there with Sig before Sig left for Chicago.

The two men had apparently been expecting someone else, because, just before the train came in, the agent had heard Sig say, "Looks like she isn't coming," and Lawson Whittaker had answered, "She may at the last minute, Sig."

Johnny wrenched his gaze away from the suffering in her eyes and stared at the scuffed tips of his golf shoes. Deep in his heart, he knew why. And sooner or later, Alma would need to know.

Johnny had had the first inkling of what was wrong when he had gone back to the drugstore alone to question the clerk, Jed Turner, who had been Lawson Whittaker's right-hand man

Apparently, the station agent was the last person to have seen Lawson Whittaker

"Well," Johnny demanded, "what happened then?"

"I was kinda busy," the agent replied, "and didn't hear anything else, but I did see Mr. Borndike get aboard the train. Not Mr. Whittaker, though."

"You're sure you saw Mr. Whittaker after the train left?"

"Sure I did! I spoke to him—said it was a nice day for golf, but he didn't answer. Reckon he didn't hear me or something."

"Did you notice what direction he took when he drove away?"

"No—I didn't notice."

Apparently, that was the last that had been seen of Lawson Whittaker. Alma and Johnny combed the town and its outskirts without uncovering a single clue.

"He just couldn't drop out of sight!" Alma kept repeating.

"Someone must have seen him."

But nobody had.

After what seemed an eternity, there came a reply to a wire Alma had sent on the train:

Your father apparently in excellent health when we parted at train this morning. Let me know if I can be of assistance.

SIG.

There seemed nothing to do but stay close to the telephone, and wait—hoping and praying for word from her father.

"He's probably gone on a fishing trip—probably left you a note and it got mislaid," Johnny said com-

It must be REGAL

"SORRY, but the flour must be REGAL. It may seem fussy, when flours all look so much alike, to insist on one particular brand; but REGAL is reliable, always the same, and if you spent as much time baking bread as I do, Mr. Grocer, I think you'd insist on REGAL, too.... You'll get it for me? That will be fine."

Shipping Strike Parley Halted

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11—Disagreement over release of strike-bound ships in Hawaii arose today to halt temporarily attempts at resuming negotiations to settle the United States Pacific coast's general Maritime strike.

More than 150 vessels remained tied-up in coast ports, where 37,000 union maritime workers are on strike. Unions claimed 213 ships and 16,986 men were idle through sympathy walkouts in eastern and gulf ports. Employers disputed the latter figures.

The coast unions' joint policy committee, reverting to a former plan of permitting vessels to return to home ports, notified union officials in Honolulu, where 600 travellers are marooned, to furnish crews for seven ships tied up there.

slowly, "but I'm going to try to find out!" He rose. "I want you to stick to that telephone, Alma. I may have to communicate with you in a hurry, and we can't risk servants balling things up. I'll be back as soon as I can!"

"Johnny," she whispered shakily, "you don't think . . . kidnappers?"

"Of course not." He gripped her hand firmly, smiled down at her.

Tears filled Alma's eyes. "You're so sweet to me, Johnny," she said huskily. "I don't know where I'd be, which way I'd turn, if it weren't for you!"

"Stand by," he said gruffly. "I'll call you!"

Alma ran to the door as he strode from the house.

"Take my car, Johnny!"

He slid behind the wheel and roared away down the drive.

ADVISED TO EAT BRAN FOR HER CONSTIPATION*

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Helps Miss Hanson

Read this enthusiastic, voluntary letter: "Just a line to let you know how much I appreciate Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I was troubled with constipation. I asked my doctor what to do. He said to eat bran."

"I tried other brands but they weren't so good, so I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and it is just wonderful. It makes delicious muffins, too."—Miss Agnes Hanson (address upon request).

ALL-BRAN provides mild "bulk"—missing in the average meal. This delicious cereal also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and gently exercises and cleanses the system. It is often more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this natural food pleasanter than patent medicines? Just eat two tablespoons daily. If not relieved, see your doctor.

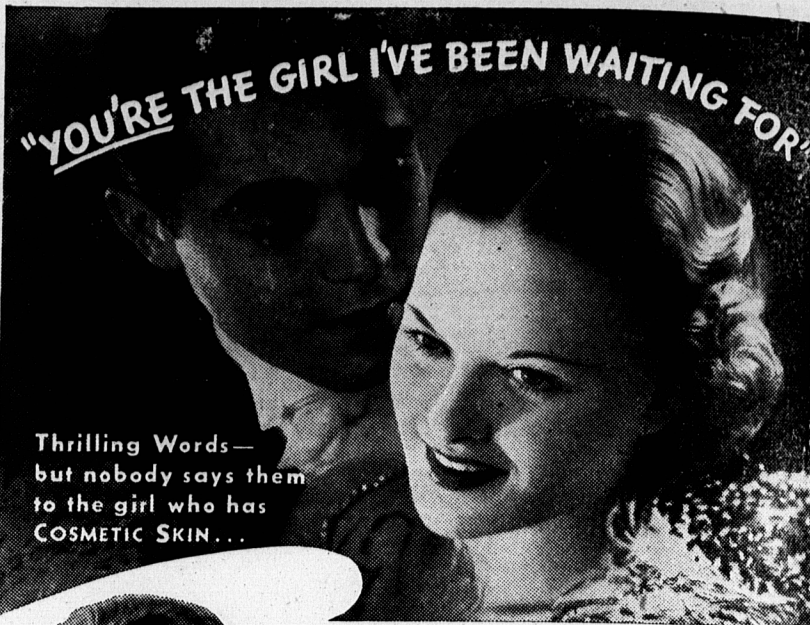

Sold by all grocers. ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

PAPERWEIGHTS OF GLASS PRIZED BY COLLECTORS

Glass paperweights are among the objects prized by antique collectors. Many of them were made by the glassmakers as gifts for their friends. Few of them are over 100 years old, though glass paperweights were found in Egyptian tombs and in Greek ruins.

Most of the dated paperweights were made between 1847 and 1850 at the Baccarat glass factory in France, the New England factory in Cambridge, Mass or the Sandwich Glass Factory on Cape Cod.

Faces Task In Revision Of Covenant

OTTAWA, Nov. 11—Erection of a bridge between the League of Nations that has been since its inception and the League that is to be in the future, was the task of nations today, Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared in an address here.

Addressing a "Peace Action Week" banquet tendered by the League of Nations Society of Canada, the Prime Minister said the guiding influence "the world powers should be" "pursuit of peace by peaceful means."

Of the immediate future of the League the Prime Minister said a revision committee would meet next month in an attempt to agree on amendments to the Covenant.

In the conflict of opinions among members as to the nature of this revision he indicated there was a strong feeling that those features which might tend not only to keep certain great powers out of the League but possibly cause the loss of some present members, should be eliminated.

Citing the attitude expressed at the League by the Australian delegation, that a non-universal League was helpless to carry out the obligations of the Covenant, Mr. Mackenzie King said there was a strong view that a round-table conference of the powers "immediately and vitally affected" by the conditions in Europe, was a necessary step to meet the present situation.

If all those powers had been members at the September Assembly of the League from which he has just returned, that round-table conference could have been held at once. But Germany was out of the League, Italy was resentful of sanctions recently imposed, and the Spanish Government representative was seeking assistance in an internal struggle in which the great powers had already decided against intervention.

Introduced by Sir Robert Borden, Canada's wartime Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King endorsed the veteran statesman's declaration that any failures of the League were really the failure of humanity.

The banquet was in honor of the Canadian delegation to the League of Nations but Dr. O. D. Skelton, under secretary for external af-airs, was the only member of the party present. Hon. Raoul Dandurand, Government Leader in the Senate, remained in Europe to sit on the Covenant Revision Committee meeting next month, while Labor Minister Norman Rogers is on official mission in Western Canada.

A vote of thanks was moved by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. member for Rosetown-Biggar, and seconded by Madame Charles Fremont, Quebec City.

Quoting the words of Pasteur, uttered 50 years ago, that two contrary laws were wrestling for supremacy, the one a law of "blood and death," the other of "peace, work and health," the Prime Minister said the same was true today. It was for the individual people of the world as well as of countries to exert their power for good.

At the recent League Assembly a more realistic attitude was made clear as to what was to be faced. It was apparent what the world needed was a "political physician." With the League meeting amid the troubles in Spain, Italy resentful of the world as well as of countries to exert their power for good.

been useless, the Prime Minister said.

There were many reasons to believe the League had a great future, Mr. Mackenzie King declared, and there was no cause for despair. He was confident the forces of good would prevail.

MOSCOW, Nov. 11-(AP)—Japan and the Soviet Union concluded today an eight-year renewal of a fishing agreement which diplomats predicted would have a far-reaching effect on Far-Eastern and world politics.

The new treaty—scheduled to be initiated this week and formally signed within two weeks—continues the Japanese right to fish in Soviet waters of the Okhotsk sea, the Kamchaka Peninsula and Sakhalin Island, all off Eastern Siberia. The great bulk of Japan's sea food is obtained from these waters.
