CANADA PROUD OF IMPERIAL CITIZENSHIP

Mother of Nations Which Keeps Sacred its Covenants and Obligations.

CHIEF JUSTICE'S ADDRESS.
Before American Bar Association
Struck High Note of Loyalty to Empire.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23.—Canada's pride in being a part of Great Britain, a nation which "keeps sacred its covenants and maintains its plighted word," was asserted last night by Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice of the Dominion of Canada, in an address here before the American Bar Association on the "Constitution of Canada."

Sir Charles' speech was the feature of the night session of the association. Business had been disposed of during the afternoon to allow the members to make a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon. The association adjourned to-day.

In describing the growth of the Canadian colonization system, Sir Charles commented upon the German system of colonization. "The German Government," he said, "apparently has not discovered that there can be no colonial enterprise where the colonist is checked at every turn by official limitations, and this may account for the fact that the German emigrant to-day selects the United States, Canada, or Australia as a field for his enterprise rather than the German colonies in South Africa, where freedom to work out his career to the best advantage is not yet permitted."

The speaker said some Americans inquired why a people of their same blood, and apparently of a manly, independent spirit, were content to remain in what they thought was a position of political inferiority and dependency.

Political Status Not Inferior.
"This inquiry arises, I think, out of misconception of our relationship to the British Crown," he said. "You would not, perhaps, say that the political status of an Englishman or Scotsman was less free and independent than your own, but our position, you think, is different. We, on the contrary, realize no inferiority in ourselves nor in our political position to that of the Englishman or the Scotsman. What little check the colonial relationship places upon us we think is far more than offset by the pride we have in that glorious history and traditions of the Mother Country. She first taught the world that the Divine right of ruling is not vested in kings and princes, but in the people. We glory in her literature, and her laws, her poets, artists and statesmen."

Proud of Citizenship.
"If, in the zenith of her power and glory, when the Roman Empire included all the civilized, and most of the uncivilized globe, the highest boast of a free man was 'Civis Romanus sum,' without disparagement or offensive criticism of any nation, we, as Canadians, viewing ourselves as an integral part of the British Empire, are proud to declare our citizenship in the great Mother of Nations—in that nation which, to keep sacred its covenants, to maintain its plighted word, is willing to give up its treasure and to sacrifice the lives of the best and noblest of its children. We glory in the men who live to serve her and we reverence the memory of those who die to save her."

GUARANTEE OF NAVY

KEEPS TRADE GOING

Warships in Atlantic Keep Routes Open for Canadian Products.

Thirty-one ocean liners, a fleet many times greater in tonnage than any argosy of mediæval Spain, carried the Canadian army to England. Eleven war vessels were strung by the line-of-communication system across the Atlantic, as a convoy. It was the greatest army that ever crossed the Atlantic, and the most impressive convoy ever seen in our times. The value of that 31,000 soldiers, 8,000 horses and 70 field guns was absolutely guaranteed to the British War Office by the greatest insurance system ever seen afloat.

But the Canadian army is no safer on the Atlantic than the Canadian mercantile marine carrying Canadian wheat, bacon, flour and cheese to the ports of Britain. Day in and day out, night after night by all bells the guns of British battleships keep open the trade routes between the fields and the mills and the factories of Canada and the markets of England. Thanks to those nimble cruisers, this country becomes a creditor of England, who, thanks to the navy, is financially able to pay her bills in a time of war on the principle "Business as Usual."

The Navy Guaranteed.
This navy-guaranteed trade put England in Canada's debt, three hundred millions in a year. It enables large percentage of our population to go on raising wheat, operating mills and factories under absolute safety of insurance every wheel in Canada, every smokestack, every power house, every travelling crane, every spindle and loom lathe and drill and roller, should go on working as though war had never happened in the world.

With such an impressive spectacle of efficiency on the high seas, it is the imperial business of every man and woman in Canada to spend every dollar possible to keep the factories of Canada operating as diligently as the farms and fisheries and the mines. The money spent in buying Canadian goods is money spent to justify the protection enjoyed from the British navy.

It's the busy army at home that makes the majesty of the watching fleet. Every warship boiler burning on the seas should be backed up by ten Canadian factory boilers burning at home.
