Arrange For Meetings Of Study Group

The largest attendance in the history of the Summerside Sub-division of the Catholic Women's League was a feature of the regular monthly meeting held in the Council Chamber of the Knights of Columbus Home Wednesday evening.

Mrs. W. J. Sullivan, the President was in the chair and the chaplain Right Reverend Monsignor G. J. McLellan was in attendance.

There was a full agenda presented and the discussions developed revealed the many useful works being done in the various fields by the members of the League.

A report from the Social Service Convener showed that this committee was as usual doing good work. The Convener of Study Clubs arranged for the members and others as well to participate in the Study Club this season, the first meeting to be held in the sewing room of the Knights of Columbus Home this Friday evening after devotions in the Church. It was decided to hold a Bean Supper in the hall, March 14th and a large committee was appointed. A petition was signed by the members to present to the government, urging the continuation of the libraries already established on the island.

As the April meeting will be the annual one at which the election of officers will take place, the following nominating committee was appointed: Mrs. Joseph Wood, Mrs. W. P. Callaghan and Miss A. O. Halloran.

Before the meeting concluded, Monsignor McLellan complimented the members on their splendid work and said it was gratifying to know that all demands on the Society were being taken care of. The President, Mrs. Gallant, was a visitor division. Mrs. Gallant, was a visitor division. Mrs. Gallant, was a visitor division.

B.C. To Observe 150th Anniversary This Summer

(By The Canadian Press)
VANCOUVER, March 6—During the summer of 1936 British Columbia will observe the 150th anniversary of the introduction of agriculture to the province.

The passing of a century and half since the first grain seeds were planted at Nootka in 1786 will be marked by special functions to be held by many agricultural and social bodies in the province.

The first seed grown on Vancouver Island, brought by white men, came from Bombay, India. In August, 1785 James Strange of the East India Company left the British Columbia coast with two ships, the "Captain Cook" named for the famous navigator who had visited the North American coast and the "Enterprise".

The largest ship was only of 350 tons. Strange, in an account of the expedition written by himself, states he reached the North American continent after an arduous nine-month voyage across the Pacific. He anchored in Nootka Sound in July, 1786.

He records that he was received courteously by the natives. His efforts to turn the idle hands of the valescent sailors to work led to the first seed being planted. Strange and Indian men garden tools and work. "These seeds and set them to work. "These they planted in such places," he says, "as they thought most likely to succeed, and there is but little doubt but that some of their number will be found hereafter in a flourishing state."

The first settler to the new land was Strange's ship's surgeon, whom he left behind when he returned to England.

This was done, says the voyager, "in order to secure to us the affection of the natives." The leader of the expedition planned a return voyage in the following year. "The surgeon was chosen," he adds, "because it was necessary to select some one whose professional talents might make him useful and tender him to those to whose power and caprice his life became exposed the moment our backs were turned."

The surgeon selected a young man named Mackay, was installed in the family of a native chief, who assumed the leader that on his return he would find his doctor "fat as a whale."

The fate of British Columbia's first settler, the youthful Mackay, remains obscure. Strange found himself, owing to financial difficulties, unable to return in the cutter, and it is likely he was following year. It is likely he was bribed or kidnapped by subsequent explorers and used as interpreter with the natives. Some historians claim he was later heard from in Canton, China.

USES CARBIDE FOR GASOLINE ENGINE
(By The Canadian Press)
GREENWELL, Sask., March 6—Successful use of carbide of calcium gas in operating gasoline engines is claimed by a Greenfell garage man, who believes his discovery may enable travellers to motor to British Columbia for a few dollars.

The experimenter, whose identity remains a secret, states his attention was first called to possibilities of the gas by reports of successful Italian experiments.

The equipment used by the mechanic included a welding torch burning carbide. The white hot flames was applied to a motor carburetor, and the engine, of ordinary gasoline type, ran perfectly for several minutes, observers claimed.

Special Session

meeting to the Franco-Soviet pact of mutual assistance, recently ratified by the French Chamber of Deputies. Legal experts of the foreign office are understood to have completed a statement describing the pact as a violation of Locarno.

Press Staff Writer)
PARIS, March 6—(A.P.)—France, expecting Adolf Hitler to announce re-militarization of the Rhineland tomorrow, worked desperately tonight to get Premier Mussolini to settle his quarrel with the League of Nations in order to leave her hands free to deal with Germany.

Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin, in a secret meeting with the Italian ambassador, Vittorio Cerruti, expressed fear, informed sources said, that if Italy includes special conditions in her reply to the League's appeal, peace it will be turned down by Geneva as incompatible with the "dignity" of the Covenant.

French newspapers were instructed to publish no accounts of Cerruti's interview or even to mention that Cerruti visited the Quai d'Orsay.

Flandin had warned the Cabinet that there might be "grave consequences" if Germany breaks the Locarno pact unless Great Britain pledges France unrestricted military support.

He told the cabinet on the eve of Reichstag's Hitler's declaration concerning the treaty that Britain had failed to give him a satisfactory answer to his request a few weeks ago.

Great Britain and France, however, are mutually bound to aid one another should either of them be attacked by Italy as a result of the imposition of sanctions. This agreement, reached following queries by the British foreign office, applies also to Turkey, Rumania and Yugoslavia, with Czechoslovakia expressing concurrence.

The Locarno treaties, too, call for Britain to go to the aid of France should either Germany, Italy or Belgium attack her.

After the cabinet meeting, the Senate air committee discussed a proposal to coordinate control of France's war navy and air ministries, a step now under way in Britain.

France is convinced that Germany has already secretly violated the Rhineland demilitarized zone and is wondering when to when the violation becomes official.

Great Britain, Italy and Belgium owe France aid if Germany violates the zone, under the Locarno treaty. General Andre Nessel told French military leaders, however, Reichsfuehrer Hitler already had 40,000 soldiers in the area to which French officials say France must hope to make the best of a bad bargain when Berlin "publicly announces" military reoccupation of the Rhineland.

Doctor Said Cut Caused Blood Stains

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
MANCHESTER, England, March 6.—Dr. Buck Ruxton, charged with the murder of his wife and nursemaid, attempted today to prove that blood stains in his home came from a cut in his hand.

Norman Birkett, chief defence counsel, opposed the contention of the Crown that the blood-scattered on walls, curtains, carpets and clothing upstairs and downstairs in the physician's home—resulted from the physician's mutilation of the bodies of his victims.

Birkett declared Ruxton had cut his hand with a can opener, a statement which prosecutor witnesses had quoted. Dr. Ruxton as making before he was arrested.

He questioned Dr. Stanley Shannon, medical director of Manchester Prison, whether in the case of a severed artery a great quantity of blood could be lost going from one room to another.

"Just a drop or two," Shannon replied. The prison physician previously had testified he had examined Ruxton's hands after the doctor was arrested and had come to the conclusion the "cuts had been caused by a knife or similar instrument through the hand as it closed."

Public Forum

TEMPERANCE THROUGH EDUCATION

Sir,—Having read with keen interest the many letters appearing in your valuable paper in regard to our liquor laws, may I be permitted to express the following opinion:

Personally I believe in temperance, not only in regard to intoxicating liquor, but also in the laws by which we are governed.

The national drink in England and Germany is beer—in France and Italy wine predominates—light beverages but in P. E. Island, the former prohibition province of Canada and of the British Commonwealth of Nations, after thirty years of theoretical prohibition our national drink is known far and wide as "Island Champagne," commonly known as 40 overproof bootleg rum.

What is our present prohibition law but Government control laughably camouflaged so that Prohibition advocates in other parts of the world may point with pride to it as a moral uplift successfully recommended by a government which has been vividly pictured in that far-off Japanese village where we are told prohibition is such a success. In any other province in Canada, if a bottle of whisky is permitted, you must obtain a permit to purchase the same legally. In P. E. Island the law says you must be a physician to obtain a bottle of whisky and consequently you must go to your doctor and tell him you are sick and the only remedy for your ailment is some Spiritus Frumenti.

The medical profession in this Province is of the highest calibre and they are unethical in their practice, but such is not the case. Might it not be asked if the legislators who limit Province have the power to limit the number of prescriptions that a physician may issue during any set period of time?

To enforce law you must have the support of the citizens. Prohibition writers state that the overwhelming majority of the people in this Province desire our present prohibition law. It might not hurt to point out that just percentage of our electors voted in 1923 and 1929 for the continuance of prohibition. I have no figures for 1933 but will gladly accept correction if in error. The number of electors in 1929 was 1,000,000. In 1929 approximately 20 per cent of the electors voted for Prohibition. In 1935 the number of registered electors in this province was 53,282 and there would be no great difference in the number of electors in 1936. The number of voters in 1929 was 11,450.

Temperance will only be achieved by education and personal effort. It might be amiss to consider the attitude of a great many in regard to Prohibition of liquor. During a most critical period of the late War, temperance advocates in England strongly urged Prohibition. The Right Hon. D. Lloyd George, Prime Minister of England, on such a grave question affecting the personal liberties of individuals sought the advice of arch our late beloved Majesty, King George V. His reply in substance was: "I would not consider prohibition. I will personally abstain and likewise will serve no intoxicating liquors for the remainder of the war. With God's help may the good people of England follow my presumption on my part to be presumption of the people should adopt in regard to the brief presented by The Temperance Alliance and the controversy in the press, but it is sincerely hoped that should they contemplate any changes in our liquor laws they will be guided by those beautiful sincere and truthful words inscribed to the memory of the Fathers of Confederation: "Providence being their guide they builded better than they knew."

I am, Sir, etc.
VETERAN.
