Taught Immigrants English Language

WINNIPEG, July 6 —(CP) —W. J Sisler, who taught hundreds of New Canadians the English language, has retired as principal of Isaac Newton High School, Winnipeg, after 34 years service.

When Sisler, who came here from Scott township, York County, Ont., in 1905, began teaching in a north Winnipeg school his pupils were almost all immigrant children who know no English.

He evolved a system to meet the challenge and today regards the friendship of foreign families with whom he freely mingled a fitting reward for his efforts. His teaching system is now in general use in Manitoba and he received handsome royalties for his book on the system.

"I could have left the district," Mr. Sisler said, "but the people and their problems became my prime interest. Most of our own people at the time did not understand them. I liked them and tried to help them."

Doubt Borealis Audible Except In Men's Minds

OTTAWA, July 5—(CP)— Are there sound effects with the northern lights? Can old aurora borealis be heard as well as seen? Hundreds of persons, beginning with Samuel Hearne, who in 1771 discovered the Coppermine River and established that the Arctic Ocean was the northern boundary of this continent, have recorded their belief that they heard the northern lights.

But science has yet discovered no instrument sufficiently sensitive to record these sounds though they have been reported quite audible. Some "hear" the lights. Others say the sound is in the imagination.

Recently in the London Times there has been a controversy in the editor's letter box as to the sound effects of the northern lights. Scoffers and believers have aired their views.

The description by a Norwegian scientist named Tjonn of what he heard at Njuke Mountain, Norway, Jan. 25 was quoted by a Times correspondent.

"During the imposing display of this big corona, where the whole heavens was like an ocean of flames, my assistant and I heard a curious sound which came from above, first from the southwest, then from the zenith and at last from the northeast," the scientist reported.

"The sound lasted about 10 minutes, rose to a maximum and fell down again, following the intensity of the aurora.... The sound is difficult to describe; it was similar to the sound from burning grass and spray. On the mountain it was absolutely quiet, no sound coming from wind, waterfalls, telegraph lines or motors."

In Ottawa could be found no one who would affirm having heard the lights, though there were those who held they heard a cracking noise as they saw them. The general opinion was that those who see the gorgeous spectacle of the northern lights near Canada's arctic boundary associate any noise they hear during the display with the lights.

The northern lights are irregular patches and dancing columns of light, rapidly changing in form and color. They are seen better in the far north than anywhere else. They are believed caused by electrical discharges in the atmosphere and are generally associated with sun spot cycles.

Major D. L. McKeand, superintendent of the Eastern Arctic and secretary of the Northwest Territories Council, who has made many trips to the arctic and subarctic areas, said he had never "heard" the lights. "The controversy as to whether they can be heard will go on as long as we have them. There is no instrument for recording them," he said.

Major McKeand referred to the record of the journey of Samuel Hearne who wrote: "I do positively affirm that on still nights I have frequently heard them (northern lights) making a rustling and crackling noise like the waving of a large flag in a fresh gale of wind." Hearne started the modern controversy.

In 1932 C. S. Beals of the Dominion Astrophysics Observatory, Victoria, circularized many observers over the whole northern fringe of the world. Majority of the replies testified to an association between the display and a sound, generally described as swishing or crackling. A substantial minority said they had never heard a sound.

Commander C. P. Edwards chief of air services, department of transport, said snow packing might cause the sounds associated with the aurora. There was no direct influence on radio reception. H. E. Welsh, chief radio engineer, aviation division, department of transport, who was engineer in charge of the radio direction finding services on the Hudson Bay ocean route, said: "I've heard crackling sounds during the displays. The noise and aurora coincided. The inference was the aurora caused the noise. But I don't know that it did."

H. R. Newcombe, radio operator who spent several years at Cape Hope's Advance in the far north, said: "You think you hear the lights. When you see them sweeping across the sky, I suppose you associate sound with them. It may be an illusion."

Jersey Breeders Club Hold Picnic

The annual field day and picnic of the Jersey Breeders Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the farm of Dr. J. P. Lantz, Southport, P. E. I., and was very largely attended by the most outstanding Jersey breeders of this province. Although the day was not very bright, the enthusiasm of the members in attendance made this event one of the best ever held in the province for the Jersey Club. At the outset of this meeting, a number of the breeders selected a group of cows and heifers from Dr. Lantz's herd, to be used for judging classes and competition, open to both old and young. Great interest was taken in the judging and placing of the classes, and it was considered by all that this judging was very educational to the young breeders. The winners in the different classes were as follows:

Mr. Glen Newson of the Gurnsey cattle club, winning first place in the cow class.

Mr. Fulton Kitson winning first place in the second cow class.

Messrs. Sterling Stead and James McElroy were the winners of the yearling class.

The calf class was not as keenly contested in placing, but a far greater discussion and variation of ideas were expressed by the different breeders, as this group was of three distinct types.

The two Jersey Herd Sires were led out for the inspection of the breeders and they sure showed plenty of type and quality. The imported Jersey Sire "Wonderful Standard 2nd" has improved very greatly since last year and the breeders say the more they see of this animal the better they like him. The other Sire "Its Brave Dream" is also a wonderful young Sire and most judges claim he is one of the most outstanding young Jersey bulls in the Maritimes today. He was the winner of Junior and Grand Champion bull at Amherst Winter Fair last year. He has all the quality they ask for in Jerseys.

Mr. L. W. Roper, Fieldman of the Live Stock and Poultry Division was in charge of the placing of each class, and gave a brief outline, pointing out the most important features to be looked for in the placing of such classes.

The President, Mr. W. N. Jenkins, Bedeque, presided and called the meeting to order, and called on Dr. Lantz to say a few words. He welcomed the visitors to his farm for this event. Speeches were then delivered by Mr. W. R. Shaw, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Mr. Stewart Wright, Provincial Department of Agriculture.

Supper was then served by the ladies and enjoyed by all present.

On motion of Mr. Claude Smith, East Royalty, Dr. Lantz was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for the use of his farm and herd on this occasion. This being seconded by Mr. Ernest Underhay, Bay Fortune. Dr. Lantz replied expressing his appreciation for the co-operation received during the past few years from members of the Jersey Breeders Club, and was glad to have been able to place his farm and herd at their disposal for their Field day.

The next speaker on the program was Mr. Lincoln Dewar, New Perth, President of the Holstein-Friescian Club for Prince Edward Island, who gave a very nice address and commended the Jersey breeders on their work, and hoped that the spirit for the betterment of the breed would continue, although he feared that they were strong competitors with the Holstein breeders. He wished them every success.

With a few well chosen remarks by the President, the meeting was brought to a close, all prepared to go homeward after again expressing their thanks to Dr. and Mrs. Lantz. It was deeply regretted that our genial Jersey fieldman for the Maritime provinces Mr. Lister, Harvey Sta. was unavoidably absent on account of the field day being postponed.

Train and Prune Tomato Plants

Tomatoes are a widely grown crop, both for canning and for table use, and for the latter purpose as an outdoor crop. In the open when grown as a canning crop or for table use, they are handled in different ways, being allowed to grow unsupported without being pruned, or supported on stakes by tying, in which case they are usually given some pruning. For staked tomatoes the next satisfactory results are obtained when the plants are grown to a single stem and allowed to develop to their full height. This method of training to a single stem is obtained by pinching out the sucker growth which arises from the axils of the leaves. Such is differentiated from the fruiting trusses which arise from the stem between leaves. Care should be exercised not to pinch out the terminal end, for if this is done upward growth will be arrested. This method of training to a single stem has given the most satisfactory results when early maturity and total yield are considered.

When the above method of training is followed the distance of planting is a consideration. Additional experiments have shown that greater yield from a given area is obtained when the plants are spaced at 12 inches in two-ft rows as compared to 18 inches or greater distances, with the rows three feet apart. Such close planting for any extensive area requires a very large number of stakes, and it has been found more satisfactory to train the plants to strings which are tied to two horizontal wires, the lower one six inches and the upper one 54 inches above the ground. A well braced post for this method is required every 50 feet, and smaller stakes every 15 feet to give additional support for the top wire. A string is tied to the top and bottom wire at each plant and as the plants increase in height they are given one or two turns around the string, which gives all the necessary support.
