Thousands Regain Nerve Vitality With Phosphate

Weak, run-down men and women, breaking under the strain of a strenuous life, should know that Geo. E. Hughes, Ltd., with usual enterprise is filling the demand for Bifro-Phosphate, the same organic phosphate that New York physicians are prescribing to bring back health, energy and steady nerves to thin, worn out, ambitious folks.

It's a safe and simple remedy that makes the mind grow keener and the body sturdy and strong.

BIG EVENT OF THE SEASON tea and bazaar in St. James Hall Thursday. Tea and admission 60c.

INVERNESS COAL—is clean and makes a good hot fire. Just what you want for the range. Ring 240 for a load.—A Pickard & Co.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—Mr. Jas. Buell, teacher of Bellvue, had the misfortune to cut his foot so badly a few days ago that he had to give up teaching for some days.

PARTNERSHIP FORMED.—The Royal Gazette contains notice that Messrs. Lorne Harper and Frank H. Lowther of Charlottetown woodworkers have formed a five years partnership to carry on the business of manufacturing in wood-working.

FUNERAL SERVICES.—The funeral of the little seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hergey of Charlottetown, formerly of Murray Harbor, was held Saturday 19th, in the Methodist Church, Murry Harbor. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends. Rev. E. Weeks officiated.

SCHOOL INSPECTION.—Mr. Lloyd Shaw, Public School Inspector, paid a visit to the Murray Harbor section of his inspectorate recently. While there he addressed the Temperance Lodge along the line of co-operation looking towards the consolidation of our smaller school districts. He also gave an address in the Presbyterian Church at the Union Service—a weekly gathering in the village.

MANITOBA PRIEST 102 YEARS OLD—Dean of the Order of Oblates of Mary Immaculate, whose 3,000 members are scattered throughout the world, and the oldest Roman Catholic priest in the world, Rev. Father Damase Dandurand, O.M.I., today observed at the Provincial House in St. Boniface (Man.), his one hundred and second birthday. This venerable and most gifted cleric, who is known throughout Canada to Roman Catholics and Protestants alike, does not look his age, and up to the first of this year enjoyed very good health. During January, however, he suffered from a weakness of the heart and in the latter part of the month received the last sacrament as his demise was expected at any time. His health is somewhat improved now, although he is confined to his bed, with the exception of once a week when he is lifted into an invalid's chair and taken to the recreation hall, where he enjoys the company of his brother Oblates. His eyesight is very poor, and he is only able to recognize his intimates by their voice. He was the first Canadian priest to join the Oblates in Canada. He has been vicar of Ottawa, then vicar-general to its first bishop; administrator of the same diocese; first Winnipeg parish priest for a short time and founder of St. Charles (Man.) parish.

and, like Lot, his only hope is in escape from the scene of impending destruction and that without thought of looking back, lest he meet the fate of Lot's wife.

The remaining speakers added nothing new to the debate their remarks being generally a rehash of the opening notes of the discussion, with the possible exception of Mr. A. E. McLean, who made it distinctly understood that his views upon the Government's taxation measures had not changed.

To him it was still a breach of the pledges with which they went to the people, and he was not inclined to get behind the Premier's improvised excuse, that verbal and individual promises are not binding upon representatives of the people. He seems to think that a man or a politician's word should be of the same force and binding character whether written, verbal or recorded and bound by the red tape of official seal.

Whether this heresy will result in counting him out of the party, or defeat his aspirations for the Prince County nomination remains to be seen. In any case he is sticking to his guns. Mr. Creelman McArthur might also be classed amongst the exceptions, in that he discounted all the claims of the Commissioner of Agriculture, AND ALL OTHERS CONcerned, in getting the reduced freight on mussel mud, and appropriated the honor to himself. He also, on the ground that "there is nothing permanent in the world" declared that "dirt roads are the most suitable for this province." He had also some of the party's compliments to pay to the Guardian, which being of a dreamy character are hardly worth noting. Mr. Dennis closed the debate.

Our desire to fairly review the different speeches at the opening of the session, to give the public a readable summary of the salient points, has so taxed our space and attention, as to compel a certain amount of neglect of many other things, and most notable amongst these, our esteemed friend the Patriot. It has not been a case of disgust, nor yet one of a want of courtesy, but purely the pressure of more important matters, which we feel sure our Liberal friend will appreciate, and overlook our apparent neglect. As every one knows the Liberal organ is of the long winded type of material, involving long journeys through the vast space of its literary productions to find whatever small gems are hidden in the mass, so that only with extensive leisure and amplitude of space could we do any kind of justice to its voluminous productions. Its latest one, "WHY THE VEXATION?", while not of the usual length has surely its stamp of originality. Because the Guardian told the plain truth that "The influence of the Bell Government at Ottawa is worse than nil," it launches out in a series of questions asking the reasons why, and in the same breath denouncing it as a "disgraceful admission." The reason is quite simple, and a child in public knowledge would understand. The Government are as well known, or nearly as well, at Ottawa as here, to be an insipid combination, incapable of grappling with public propositions, and are without that forceful personality necessary to make their influence felt before an intelligent representative or governmental body. Men not having an influence with their own people are surely "nil" in influence in higher circles.

Amongst the characters chronicled in the pages of romance were two grown up lads distinguished by the title of Artful Dodgers. They were ever on hand for the execution of public or private mischief, and were equally adroit in their manners of accomplishment, though not always so successful in escaping the penalty of their misdeeds. Where could we, in political circles, find more artful dodgers than those who are quibbling over trifles of a foreign character to becloud and evade the questions of the living present, and shifting from place to place and from pillar to post in attempted hiding from the retribution which is surely overtaking them? Last year the Public Accounts were withheld from the House to the last moment, and as long as the Government could possibly keep them back to avoid as much as they could an early exposure of their methods. When these were asked for by the Leader of the Opposition the blame was laid upon the printers for the delay, while in actual fact the books were in the Government's possession awaiting distribution. Likewise this year the most important departmental reports are withheld from the representatives of the people, with the self apparent object of springing the budget upon the members before they can have an opportunity of looking into the transactions of the year, AND TO ESCAPE AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE A FAIR CRITICISM OF THEIR UNSAVORY RECORD OF THE PAST YEAR. As on last year the printer is Premier Bell's scapegoat, but as was the case last year, the accounts were ready, and withheld by the Government, or so we are informed. In any case this does not apply to the Public Works and Falconwood Reports, which the Premier admitted to the House were satisfactorily and promptly delivered, and have been available since the opening of the session. In their game of hide and seek they imagine a temporary security, but Nemesis will not brook disappointment.

Seed Wheat

A Change of Seed Wheat always pays, and doubly so this year when so little of the Island Grown Wheat is fit for Seed. A two bushel bag (sufficient for one acre), will give a supply of Seed Stock for next year, but it will also pay several times over to sow an entire change of Seed.

Our Stock of Seed Wheat is all grown in Ontario and Ontario's Seed Wheat always does well when grown in this Province, as the climate is similar.

We have in Stock and to Arrive White Fife: (extra choice.) White Russian: (extra choice.) Red Fife: (equal to number one hard.)

Colorado Bearded: (Choice Stock.) All done up in bags of two bushels each. See samples at our Seed and Feed Warehouse, or write us for prices and samples.

Our importation of Seed Wheat is sold by Merchants all over the Province. If you cannot get what you want from them write us.
