GOOD EATING

People can fight famine abroad by growing, conserving, and preserving food at home. As a homemaker, you can join the battle right in your own kitchen. One of the most important famine-fighting techniques is to prevent food waste. For instance, if you have some left-over turkey in your refrigerator, use it in a turkey ring at dinner tonight. With it serve baked potatoes, asparagus au gratin and glazed carrots. Bake a mouth-watering chocolate custard for dessert, and have coffee for the oldsters and milk for the youngsters.
At lunch today start off with piping hot split pea soup and follow with a cole slaw and tomato salad. Make up a batch of bran muffins, and serve them warm. Spread with butter. Have an orange gelatine dessert, and give the grown-ups tea, and the kiddies milk.
For a good morning appetite-promoter, begin breakfast tomorrow with chilled grapefruit juice. Then have fried eggs, and bacon, along with toasted bran muffins, spread with butter. Have coffee for the adults and milk for the children.

KITCHEN PLANS HELP HOUSEWIFE

Pent-up demand for equipment and accent on the kitchen as a liable part of the home has caused a boom in kitchen planning devices. Utilities, manufacturers and dealers all are co-operating in working out complete kitchen plans of every type from efficiency budget installations to the most elaborate de luxe arrangements.
Public response to the program has been greater than the most optimistic anticipated. Industry surveys show that 65 per cent of women plan some alteration of their kitchens as soon as possible.
The new merchandising trend stresses replacement of worn or inconvenient equipment according to the latest fashion.
