A FREE TRADE VICTORY.

A short time ago it was announced in The Guardian's despatches that an important election was to take place in Argyleshire, Scotland, in which the two candidates stood respectively for free trade and Mr. Chamberlain's plan of tariff reform. The election has since taken place and the returns were delayed by the fact that there are a large number of islands in the constituency and stormy weather prevented the reports coming in for several days after. The result was a great victory for the Liberal free trade candidate who scored a majority of 1586, where in the last previous a Conservative was returned by a majority of 600.

The cabled reports show that the campaign was conducted under great difficulties among the fishing population of the islands. The candidates and their electioneering agents travelled from island to island in yachts, but as much of the three weeks time during which the campaign was running was stormy many of the appointed meetings failed to be held. Similarly on the day of voting the electors were conveyed to the polls in all sorts of floating craft. On its face the by-election is a black eye for the Chamberlain policy, but it would not be wise to generalize too much from a single contest. The fishermen of Argyle may not be quite fair samples of the intelligence of the three Kingdoms, and there may have been local conditions that very materially affected the result, but which are not discernible at this distance.

The death is announced of Pierre Raymond Leonard Martineau, M. P. for Montmagny, Quebec. He was born in 1837 and was a lawyer. He was first elected at a by-election in 1898 on the appointment to the Bench of the sitting member, Mr Choquette, and was re-elected at the general election in 1900 by a majority of 213. The county has been Liberal since 1887.

Manitoba's crop, if good harvest weather favors, is estimated to yield over 57 million bushels wheat, 40 million bushels oats, nearly 11 million bushels of barley, besides potatoes, roots and flax. A rough estimate of its value is forty million dollars. This is forty million dollars worth of most salable merchandise, which the world wants and is eager to buy. Thirty years ago the land on which all this value is now forthcoming produced nothing.

The Montreal Herald quotes a millionaire of that city as saying, "Canada should challenge for the America Cup." It would cost half a million, he says to build and run the boat. His plan is, to form a strong committee of representative men and have them invite twenty wealthy citizens to contribute $15,000 apiece. That would make $300,000. Then, in order to make it a national affair he would have the federal Government donate $50,000 and each of the provincial Governments $10,000. This would make $110,000 more, making a total of $410,000. The balance of $90,000 he would raise by public subscription. But, really, Mr. Millionaire, we cannot promise off hand that $10,000 contribution from P. E. Island, except on conditions. Tunnel the straits and bring the Grand Trunk Pacific into Charlottetown, guaranteed to sail the race in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and then if the potato crop is good we might consider it.

In Quebec Province where political addresses are frequently delivered from the church doors on Sunday, Mr. Tarte took occasion to make a political address last Sunday. It appears to have fully returned to his first love as a Conservative, and was welcomed back, so a despatch states, by Mr. Casgrain, one of the lieutenants of the party in the French-speaking Province. Mr. Tarte has never ceased to be a protectionist, and by so much belongs with the party that introduced protection. And now that the Langevins and McGreevey's have ceased from troubling we see no reason why Mr. Tarte may not feel quite at home among his Conservative friends and they with him.

ALL NEWS OF LOCAL INTEREST

THE dedication of the new Catholic church at St. Mary's on Brac took place on Sunday last, with great pomp and ceremony. His Lordship Bishop McDonald was assisted by the Revs Dr. Doyle, A. S. Burke, F. X. Gallant, J. A. McDonald, T. Campbell, J. P. McGrath, T. Gallant. Rev. Dr. Doyle sang the Mass and preached the sermon which was a model of pulpit eloquence. The blessing of the corner stone was effected by the recitation of the proper prayers and the singing of the Litany. After the service, the Bishop complimented the pastor and people of Brac on the erection of the beautiful church. There was an immense concourse of people present from all parts. After the ceremony Father Connolly entertained the Bishop and clergy at a banquet.

AGAIN the angel of death has entered the home of Christopher McLean of Mt. Herbert, Lot 45, and removed from this world of toil and care his much beloved sister, Mary Ann. The deceased was a lady of quiet and unassuming disposition, and although ill for a number of months was never heard to murmur or complain, but bowed submissively to the will of the Heavenly Father, in whom she placed all her trust both for time and for eternity. Although failing in health since Christmas last she was not confined to her bed till about one week before her death. All that medical skill and kindly attendance could do for her was done, but it was the will of Him that doeth all things well that she should go to join the white robed throng. She leaves to mourn one brother and four sisters, together with a large number of relatives and friends. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. D. McLean and the remains interred in Lot 48 cemetery, Com.

THE Talmud or Wit and Wisdom of the ancient Rabbis, was the subject of a lecture by ex-Rabbi Samuel Freuder in Zion Church last evening. The Talmud, the speaker said is the book which contains all the religious laws and ceremonies handed down by tradition and faithfully observed by millions of Jewish people at the present time. The whole work of the Talmud contains 5894 folio pages, and was characterized by the speaker as being voluminous but not luminous. He read from the volume containing the laws concerning the Sabbath. He sang the Passover Hymn and lustily blew the Ram's Horn. Some beautiful extracts from the Talmud, were then given, and the fact was brought out that the Talmud contains 24 passages where Jesus is mentioned, and therefore no Jew will ever doubt the historicity of Jesus Christ, though most of them still refuse to accept him as the promised Messiah. There are however quite a number of Jews who are active Christians. It is estimated that there are in the United States over 3,000 Christian Jews, nearly 200 of them are ministers of the Gospel. The lecture was mosaic in its character, giving a varied collection of Rabbinical lore and thoroughly Christian in its spirit pointing to the glory of the cross. It was greatly appreciated by all present.
