May Be Asked To Sacrifice Trade Preference

(By The Canadian Press) OTTAWA, June 27—Some new views on possibilities of extending Canadian trade abroad will be brought home by Prime Minister Mackenzie King when he returns from Europe at the end of next week.

Canada now has special tariff agreements with more than 100 countries and the question is not so much opening up new markets as in obtaining tariff agreements by which the exchange of commodities would be facilitated and increased.

With respect to Empire preferences it is possible the Dominion Government will be called upon to make important decisions as to what may be sacrificed in order to facilitate the proposed trade agreement between Great Britain and United States.

At the present time a most favored nation agreement is awaiting exchange of ratifications with Uruguay and an agreement with Austria may be completed soon.

While it has been the avowed policy of Mr. Mackenzie King and his government to work toward a lessening of artificial trade barriers there have been few drastic cuts in the tariffs created under the regime of former Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

Failure of the government, during its almost two years in office to effect greater tariff reductions has provoked considerable outspoken criticism from those who support the administration in the House of Commons.

To such criticism the answer has been that Canada, a small country with many important manufactures employing thousands of men, in addition to its basic industries of farm, forest and mineral production, cannot afford to suddenly drop tariff barriers while other countries maintain a policy of economic nationalism protected by tariffs and quotas.

How far the important European countries, particularly those with which trade relations are prepared to abandon economic nationalism to join in a movement toward freer trade, Mr. Mackenzie King will probably have a better idea when he completes his swing through France, Belgium and Germany.

Other trade extension efforts proposed for the near future take Mr. Euler to Cuba and other sections of the West Indies but will probably not include the British West Indies with which Canada already has a trade agreement.

Rev. Dr. Larkin Visiting Chatham

Rev. P. H. Larkin, D. D., of Toronto, is an interesting visitor in the city this week say a Chatham, Ont. Paper.

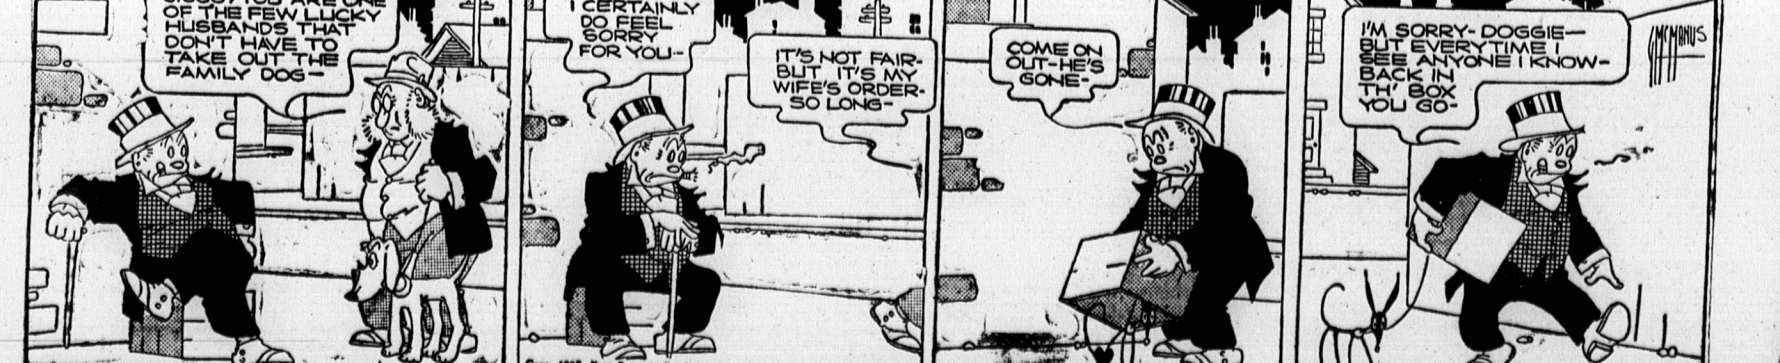

Rev. Dr. Larkin as an earnest young minister came to Chatham to become pastor of the First Presbyterian Church when the congregation worshipped in a little red brick edifice on Wellington street near the Gray-Dort factory.

It was during Dr. Larkin's time as pastor of the present beautiful edifice was built on the corner of Wellington and Fifth streets. Those were the days when such stalwarts as Urquhart, Glens, Stones, McKerrals, Phillimore, McColls, Cummings, Roscs, Taylors, Rankins, Smiths, Martins and many other well known pioneer families were the pillars of the church.

Rev. Dr. Larkin remained as pastor of the First Church for ten years, when his congregation reluctantly consented to his removal to Seaforth where he remained actively in the ministry for over twenty years.

Dr. Larkin through his effective ministry here left a lasting impression upon the hearts and minds of those who were members of his congregation, and also many people throughout the community generally.
