Six Doctors Failed to Cure Him.

ERYSIPELAS AND SALT RHEUM WAS THE TROUBLE.

Burdock Blood Bitters

DID MORE THAN SIX DOCTORS COULD DO.

Mrs. Theo. Newell, Argyle Sound, N.S., expresses her opinion of this wonderful blood remedy in the following letter:

"It is with the greatest gratitude that I can testify to the wonderful curative powers of Burdock Blood Bitters. For years my husband suffered terribly with Erysipelas and Salt Rheum. He was so bad at times that he could no sleep on account of the itching and burning. He had been under the care of six different doctors, but they failed to do him any good. I had read different times of the wonderful cures being made by Burdock Blood Bitters, so advised him to give it a trial. He did so, and after taking five bottles was cured without a doubt. I would strongly advise any person troubled with blood disorders to give B.B.B. a fair trial for I am sure it will cure them."

NOT A PARK.

Plea That the Great Yellowstone May Be Kept a Wilderness.

Not a park, but a wilderness full of wild beauty and natural disorder, may we keep the place as nature left it, disturbing no landslide where it lies, no natural dam of logs and stones heaped here by mountain freshet, no havoc of windstorm or avalanche. The windfall, with its shaggy spreading roots full of matted earth and stone, rapidly being covered with grass and moss, and the river bed full of bleached driftwood, each has its own rare quality of picturesqueness, its own fitting place in this wild harmony. There is beauty even in the work of the forest fire, which has left whole mountain sides of freshly scorched pine foliage, a deep golden red smoldering in the sunshine, and many a blackened bit of forest, longer burned, leaves an impression of somber shadow, of silence and death, which cannot be forgotten.

One even comes to begrudge this wilderness its telephone poles, its roads and the excellent stone embankments which keep them from slipping down the mountain sides into the swift streams below, for they detract from its wild perfection. We may behold nature in its softer and more comely aspects almost everywhere, but every year, with the spread of population in our country, it becomes more difficult to preserve genuine wilderness places where hill and forest and stream have been left exactly as nature made them. Already our indomitable pioneers have driven the wilderness into the very fastnesses of the mountains, so that only remnants now remain. And this great Yellowstone park remnant has been fortunately set aside by the government for the enjoyment and inspiration of the people forever.—Ray Stannard Baker in Century.

Threadneedle Street.

Threadneedle street is a corruption of Thridenal street, meaning the third street from "Chepesyde" to the great thoroughfare from London bridge to "Bushop Gate" (consisting of New Fyshe streate and Bushop Gate streate, Anglo-Saxon, thridda, third). Another etymology is Thrig-needle (three needle street), from the three needles which the Needle Makers' company bore in their arms. It begins at the Mansion House, and therefore the Bank of England stands in it. The directors of the Bank of England were called "the old lady in Threadneedle street" by William Cobbett because, like Mrs. Partington, they tried with their broom to keep back the Atlantic waves of national progress. After giving the foregoing, Brewer notes the following extract from Dickens' "Dr. Marigold:" "A silver curl paper that I myself took off the shining locks of the ever beautiful old lady of Threadneedle street" (a bank note).

Foiling a Fakir.

A story used to be told at Cairo of Sir Richard Owen during one of his sojourns in Egypt. The great naturalist was seated in the shade on the veranda at Sheppeard's hotel when the inevitable snake charmer came to him and produced from his bag a lively specimen of the horned asp—the deadly cerastes. The professor gazed and, nothing daunted, stopped and plucked the horns from the head of the reptile wriggling at his feet, remarking to a bystander that the man would probably think twice before trying to palm off upon any one else a harmless snake as a cerastes by the aid of a couple of fish bones. With anybody else the charmer would probably have succeeded. He had tried it on the wrong man.

THE PALACE POSTMASTER.

Never Absent From His Post in a Quarter of a Century.

Mr. Pike, the postmaster of the Palace of Westminster, who will retire shortly under the age limit, after holding that responsible position for more than a quarter of a century, has never been absent for a single hour from his duties on account of sickness, according to The Chronicle, and this in spite of the fact that for many years he was always at his post at 11 o'clock in the morning and did not leave it until an hour or so after the adjournment of the Commons. He has served during nine Administrations, and under ten Postmaster-Generals, and during that length of time has been on the best of terms with members as well as his own staff. During the quarter of a century which Mr. Pike has been watching over the correspondence of members he has seen many changes. Letters and telegrams, he thinks, have increased quite fourfold since he took charge, and, though a great deal of this increase may be set down to the greater activity of the press, it is accounted for in no small degree by the change in the habits of members of the House of Commons, who now transact the bulk of their correspondence at the House, instead of doing it at home. There was only one postoffice witin the precincts of the palace in 1878, now there are four fully equipped in various parts of the building, besides numerous pillar boxes and four telephone installations. There are occasions of great pressure in the telegraph department, generally on budget nights, when members are anxious to let their constituents know what taxes have been put on or taken off. These may be foreseen, but a certain night in 1880 when the dissolution of Parliament was suddenly announced without warning still lives in Mr. Pike's memory as the liveliest experience which the Parliamentary postoffice has ever had.

Cost of Englishmen's Shooting.

The extent to which the letting of moors and forests has become recognized as a regular source of income to lord and laird alike in the Highlands, may be judged from the increase in the number of deer forests now annually let. Twenty years ago there were 90 recognized forests. A recent report from the Crofter Commission showed 109 of these forests. To-day there are 150. Shootings and forests which let for upwards of £400 or £500 a year may be counted by hundreds. In the two Counties of Argyll and Inverness alone there are a dozen forests whose rentals average £2,500. Here the cost per day will work out at over £40, exclusive of wages of attendants. The tendency of price is constantly upward. Captain Heywood Lonsdale will be interested to know that Coulnafearn, the 40,000 acres of which he rented last year for £2,000, was originally let by the Mackintosh of the thirties for £30, with £5 returned as "luck-penny."

The foregoing is typical of the rise in rents which has resulted from the eager competition for forests and moors. Invershie, when it was good enough to afford a bag of 75 brace to one man and a dog, fetched £50 now it is a four-figure shooting. Mr. Geo. A. Cooper is paying £5,500 for his forest, £4,700 to Sir G. Macpherson-Grant for his share of Glenfeshie, and £800 to The Mackintosh for his portion. M. Achilles Fould has Invermark at £3,850; Mr. William Weir, Achnacarry for £2,000; Lord Burton, Glenquoich for £2,022; Mr. Frank Bibby, Mamore for £2,500. For Invercauld, £5,000 for the season is asked. For £3,000 less, Runecht is let. At about £2,000 many moors and forests are now being used. Then, to this must be added cost of traveling, £1 a week for each of the gillies, £1 a week for ponies, beaters and drivers, of whom there may be 30 or 40, at 4s. a day. Dogs cost from £5 to 20 times that figure; guns from £7 to £70. The game shot may, with luck, be sold for half its cost per head. The deer which has cost £50 to kill, may be sold to a dealer for its carcass for £3. Its head, if a fine one, may realize anything up to £25.—St. James' Gazette.
