Court Cabot I. O. F. meets tonight. Plan of hall for Romeo and Juliet opens at Gourlie's drug store today.

THERE WAS NO CHANGE in Mr. Gourlie's condition up to a late hour last night.

REGINALD Traves of Montreal arrived by the Northumberland last evening to visit J. A. Gourlie.

W. W. LANE arrived in Summerside last evening from Port Elgin N. B. to assist for a week or so in the drug store of J. A. Gourlie.

Miss Lena Clark, Cleveland, Ohio, formerly of Summerside arrived by the Northumberland last evening from Shediac where she has spent the past two months. She will visit friends here for a short time.

The death of Capt Lewis Muttart one of the most respected farmers of this part of the province occurred at his home at Cape Traverse yesterday morning. Capt. Muttart was for many years one of the foremost and best known men in the ice boat service between the Capes where he was a very popular and trustworthy officer. Deceased was 80 years of age. Surviving him are four sons, Elthaler, Tryon, Montague and Robert, Cape Traverse; and Harry H. Summerside, and four daughters Mrs J. F. Hullard, Bedeque; Mrs T. C. Muncy, Cape Traverse; Mrs C. B. Robinson, Boston and Mrs T. B. Grady Summerside.

Two young hearts, intended as affiliates, are to be kept apart by the hatred of their fathers, one for the other. But love is stronger than hate, and love triumphs. The battle is an interesting one. We see it going on around us every day. Shakespeare saw it, and he gave us such a picture of the struggle as appeals at once to the imagination and the understanding. The story needs no key—nomenclature, no one fails to understand "Romeo and Juliet." And none will fail to appreciate a realistic production of the play such as will be given by the Starville Co., in Market Hall on Monday night next.

A friend has kindly sent The Guardian the following additional of an interesting wedding in Victoria:—The Methodist church in Victoria was the scene of a pretty wedding on Tuesday Sept. 8, when Dr. John Jardine of Summerside and Miss Inez Sturdy daughter of Mrs. Nelson Sturdy of Victoria were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The church was beautifully and appropriately decorated for the festive occasion by friends of the contracting parties and though exceedingly large so great was the number of relatives and friends that it was packed to its utmost capacity. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. F. Dawson, Tryon assisted by the Rev. Dr. Smith of Summerside. The bride who looked charming was dressed in white chiffon draped over white Japan taffeta silk with a panel of Battenburg lace. She was attended by Miss Nan Poole, Charlottetown who, wearing a black picture hat and gown, in pale green silk with lace trimmings made an ideal bridesmaid. Misses Irene Miller and Rowena French, robed in white with pale blue ribbon trimmings were "things of beauty and joys forever" as flower girls. The groom was attended by F. J. McMillan of the Merchants Bank of P. E. I. The bride was given away by her brother, Vernon Sturdy. Wallace Stewart and J. E. Robertson discharged the duties of ushers and Mrs E. Boswell, Victoria, presided at the organ with her usual superior ability. After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's mother, where upwards of fifty guests were entertained in the hostess' inimitable style. The clock having struck eleven the bridal party left for Summerside where they in future intend to reside carrying with them an abundance of rice and the best wishes of their many friends in Victoria and vicinity. The presents which were magnificent and numerous are some indication of the high esteem in which Dr. and Mrs. Jardine are held by their many acquaintances.
