Visit Summerside To Gain Information On Fox Ranching

Frank G. Ashbrook and Charles E. Kellogg of the Fur Resources Division of the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey, and Dr. John I. Hardy, Chief Animal fibre specialist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and Dr. Walter Wisnicky of the University of Wisconsin have spent the last four days at the Dominion Experimental Fox Ranch, Summerside, where they have been obtaining first hand information on ranch construction scientific equipment and general and detailed setup of the scientific investigations that are being carried out there.

Dr. Hardy who is the chief animal fibre specialist of the U. S. Bureau of animal industry, is cooperating with those of the Bureau of Biological Survey to initiate experimental work along his special lines regarding physical characteristics and qualities of the fox fur. Mr. Ashbrook and Mr. Kellogg are particularly interested in the work that is being carried out at Summerside because it is intended to increase the staff and facilities for more extensive work on fur farming at their experimental fur farm at Saratoga Springs.

The University of Wisconsin with which Dr. Wisnicky is associated, intends to initiate scientific investigation work on fur farming as a whole and will acquire 100 acres of land in the vicinity of the University at Madison, Wis., which gives him the opportunity of having the close co-operation of the departments of the University, including the chemical, nutritional, parasitological, bacteriological and the animal pathological laboratories.

North Shore Hockey League

Mr. William Champion was elected president of the North Shore Hockey League, at the annual meeting held on Friday evening in the town hall Kensington. The members of the league in attendance as well voted the other officers of the league as follows:

Vice President: Mr. P. N. LeBlanc.

Secretary: Mr. William Delaney re-elected.

Executive: Mr. Kenneth Champion, re-elected; Mr. Kenneth McLean.

The outstanding feature of the meeting was, the admittance of the Clermont Aces, into the league, replacing the former Kensington Aces, and amendments to several of the constitutions clauses, which will it is hoped put an end to the many arguments, etc., which usually arose during the playing season of other years.

While other new teams were not definitely admitted all present were favorably inclined to having them entered, and without a doubt they will be, when the lists are handed in for approval, at their next meeting.

Secretary William Delaney presented a complete financial statement, which showed a surplus on hand.

A discussion of prime interest to the teams in the league centered around the residence clause and amendments were made which were favorable to all concerned.

The meeting for approval of lists was set for Dec. 15th, and it is hoped that all teams will be prepared on this date, for by the looks of things the North Shore League will be bigger and better than ever this season, with the Baker Trophy, which is still in competition being the prize played for.—H.

Council To Again Call Tenders For Airport Grading

A special meeting of the Summerside Town Council was held last night to deal with the grading of the airport. Mayor Campbell presided. All the councillors were present with the exception of Councillor MacNeill.

The price of Fred McRae's tender was considered too high by the Council Board. After some discussion it was decided to call for tenders again for the grading of the airport, and a motion was passed calling for tenders for the work, the town grader and tractor to be used, the work to be completed within 12 days. Tenders will close at noon Saturday. Mr. McRae's tender was rescinded at his request, moved by Councillor Mollison seconded by Councillor Morrison.

A letter was read from the St. Eleanors Electric Light Co. Ltd., turning over their line and equipment to the town of Summerside for the sum of $200 and they agreed to take light from Summerside at the same rate as other rural districts.

A request from Sinclair and Stewart to have a six inch pipe laid across Water Street for a sprinkler was granted.

A request for a dance hall to be opened in the east end was refused. A motion was passed moved by Councillor MacKay seconded by T. D. Morrison to change the town square from Dominion to "Memorial Square" in honor of the men who served overseas.

Meeting adjourned.

Smiling contentedly, and apparently completely recovered from the wracking strain of negotiating the recent European "peace pact," Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain is pictured above as he arrived back in London from a brief vacation in Scotland. On the job again, he will cope with such knotty problems as the revolt in Palestine and critics of the "Munich peace" plan.

All Tired Out Before Day Half Over

Women who should be strong and healthy become weak, run down and worn out, and are unable to attend to their household duties. They get up in the morning dreading the day's work ahead of them.

Some disease or constitutional disturbance has left its mark in the form of shattered nerves, impoverished blood, and an exhausted condition of the entire system.

Women will find in Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills the remedy they need to supply food for the exhausted nerve force, and one that will help them back to sound, perfect health again.

USES BOTH HANDS TO WRITE

Letter From a Man of 90

He asks us to excuse his writing. We do more than that — we congratulate him on being able to write at all at his age, especially as he has been suffering from rheumatism. This is what he says in his letter:—

"Three years ago I was in bed for six weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. Since that time I have been taking Kruschen Salts, and have not had another attack. But the complaint left me with inflamed feet, and it hurt me to walk. My hands were also somewhat stiff. I took Kruschen every morning before breakfast, and shall continue to do so because I am sure they have kept me in good shape for three years. Excuse this writing, as I am ninety years old, and use both hands to write." — J.R.G.

The pain and stiffness of rheumatism are often caused by uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen helps to dissolve and remove excess uric acid in a gentle way through the natural channels. Renewed health and vigor is the result.

MRS. WM. BUNT

he told Mrs. Burt that he would back the truck up instead of driving to the head of the field and turning. He saw Mrs. Burt start off with the fork. He did not know what happened to her but after he had backed up he saw her lying in the path of the truck. The wheels must have passed over her. His mother Mrs. Jacob Burt, came out from the house and helped him lift her into the truck and they brought her to the house and telephoned for Dr. J. W. Jardine. When the doctor got there she had passed away. She was unconscious when picked up and did not come to.

Mrs. Burt and Dr. Jardine also gave evidence. The inquest was called by Corp Lines of the R. C. M. P. Summerside who was notified of the accident.

The jury were Messrs. Leigh Sutherland, foreman; Fred Donald, Alden Donald, Roy Adams, Edwin Murphy, Wilson Adams and Asaph W. Blackeny.

Mrs. Burt was the wife of Mr. William Burt of Seaview. She was 49 years of age and leaves to mourn besides her husband one adopted son, Ray, 17, years of age, to whom the deepest sympathy of the whole community is extended in their very sad bereavement.

Hon. W. H. Dennis asked the visitors from the United States to convey friendly greetings to their countrymen across the border.

Quality Improved

Quality had probably improved considerably although the number of entries in the show was down over what it had been in peak years, George A. Callbeck, judge at the show declared. Only the darker color classes had been judged yesterday he remarked and commented on the swing to lighter phases since the show was inaugurated nine years ago.

In the animals judged yesterday some "off color" was noticeable, a very undersirable trait for so early in the season, Mr. Callbeck pointed out. If the "off color" was due to breeders forcing animals a little too much to make them ready for the show it was "not so bad" but if it was due to the breed ranchers would "want to watch out as it is a very undesirable trait when pelters are wanted in December."

He expected improvement in quality as he reached the paler classes but it "would take some time to get the extra pale types up to the state of perfection which we desire."

Mr. Frank G. Ashbrook, of Washington, D. C. expressed his pleasure at returning to the Province after an absence of 12 years and taking with him three of his countrymen who — making their first "pilgrimage" — the Island.

The three Americal scientists with him also spoke briefly expressing their appreciation for courtesy shown them while in the Province.

Silver foxes in the wild state were extinct, Mr. Charles Fremont of Quebec, reminded the gathering, while the cross fox was nearly so. The same could be said for mink. Producing the animals in captivity had herefore become a serious industry, he pointed out, and one in which men with capabilities would always be able to secure just reward for their labors.

This Province was still far ahead of his own in the holding of fox exhibitions and each year as he visited the Provincial show here he was able to return with new ideas, the speaker said.

Better pelt prices as a result of curtailed production, not only in Canada but throughout the world was predicted by Mr. J. C. Donald, Dominion representative of the Hudson's Bay Company. Personally he felt "we have hit bottom." Reduced feed costs with the apparent passing of the drought cycle on the prairies and the return of normal cattle population there were also predicted by Mr. Donald.

The dinner program concluded with the showing of motion pictures by Mr. Lowell Hancock of champions at the 1937 fox show.

Last night's dinner, although the attendance was slightly less than on some former years, was marked by all the enthusiasm which distinguishes the annual Provincial "get together" of foxmen.

REJUVENATING THAT OLD BLACK DRESS YOU HAD LAST YEAR

If one is fortunate enough to have a plain black dress that "just won't wear out," there are dozens of fixover ideas to be gleaned from the Paris winter collections.

A jacket is, of course, the simplest and one of the most effective rejuvenations. Try a short fitted jacket of violet wool over a perfectly plain black wool crepe dress; or a gay scarlet jacket with a tiny Peter Pan collar of black astrakan. A scarlet leather belt on your black dress will make the necessary connection between jacket and dress.

Two outstanding fall models combine black wool material with a contrasting material. One black wool with slightly flaring skirt has short puff sleeves of brilliant plaid wool and round brass buttons down its back. To carry out the idea to perfection there should be a little jacket of plaid to match the sleeves.

Another dress is all black half way to the knees; from that level the skirt is of deep red wool material. The sleeves are black to the elbows and are then changed to a bell-shaped bottom of the red wool.

To give a black suit a touch of 1919 chic make the buttonhole band of violet colored cloth and perch a bunch of Parma violets on the jacket lapel. A crepe blouse of the same violet shade completes the rejuvenation. Easier still is to tie a sash of lavender ribbon around a black wool dress; and add lavender crystal buttons down the centre of the bodice.

Dressier treatments include an afternoon dress that combines a black duvetyn skirt with a gathered black chiffon blouse, joining the two by a crushed girdle of coral moire. Quite different, but equal dressy, is a simple black silk crepe that has its long sleeves and narrow belt piped with gold kid, while gold kid makes a visible lining for the high round neck that is slit a couple of inches in the centre front.

GROWING OLD GRACEFULLY

So long as the inevitable lines around her mouth and eyes seem softly, not firmly, etched there, and her expression is one of good humor and kindly tolerance, no older woman need give them a second thought. The natural lines of maturity, providing they are not hard drawn-looking ones that give the face a bitter, slightly soured look are indeed nothing to worry about.

Perhaps it might be a good idea for any woman past forty to ask herself occasionally—'Am I growing older gracefully?"

The answer to this is important. Because only those who do grow old gracefully can hope to be nice to have around, as well as lovely to look at, as the birthdays mount higher and higher past forty.

And to any woman, growing older gracefully surely means becoming more tolerant year by year—being more understanding of people and their problems and their shortcomings. It means going through the hours of each day in a less critical frame of mind than she did when she was twenty-five, of not feeling that the little time spent listening to another's problems is just time wasted.

It must mean, too, developing a better sense of humor—especially if we may define a sense of humor as the ability to laugh at oneself.

And finding much fun in very simple things. When a girl of twenty wants the world with a little fence around it— in other words, expects a great deal from life, her wide-cyed attitude simply makes her all the more charmingly appealing. But when a woman her mother's age is forever discontented — always searching for more happiness, more of this, more of that, she loses poise which is the solid foundation of graceful maturity. Ambition is a wonderful thing, of course, but there's much to be said for appreciation of what one has and knowledge of how to budget time to enjoy it more.

Call it trite if you will, but it still is true that glowing health, cleanliness, a sense of humor and a kindly disposition are exactly what is needed to keep any face beautiful through the years.

Paging The Goat

(Ottawa Spectator)

It many be that humans are getting sick of trying to do a little uplift among their own species and are turning to animals.

There was still something to be done along this line, even if the average person in a democracy was kinder to a dog than he could be to a fascist and vice versa; even if Walt Disney has immortalized the mouse and the turtle, and even if horse lovers showed a sentimentality that, if applied to fellow men, would probably mean peace in our time.

No one had done anything about removing popular libel from the goat.

The goat had always been both feared and ridiculed. It was said to be malodorous, to be addicted to chewing tin cans, and was maligned when certain people were described as "goatish." That is until the American Goat society, meeting in Syracuse not long ago, decided to make a determined drive to break down this prejudice against their proteges.

This society believes in stressing the virtues of the goat, which is a very valuable animal indeed. Goat milk, for example, is exceedingly nourishing, having a high percentage of butter fat and caseln. The goat rarely is affected with tuberculosis; therefore, the milk is safer than any other raw milk. Doctors recommend it for babies and invalids. The "goaty" flavour which is complained about is absent if the udders are kept clean Goat meat is also excellant. In addition, the goat is a most companionable animal. It likes the company of humans, and even enjoys being made a fuss over. In fact, a goat thrives best when thus treated.

It is, in short, about time we stopped getting the goat's goat.

CHAMBERLAIN

Turning to home affairs, the Prime Minister outlined a new scheme of civilian defence, making these points:

1. Sir John Anderson, appointed yesterday to the cabinet as Lord Privy Seal, will become in effect, minister of civilian defence in charge of air raids precautions. He will make arrangements for a national voluntary service with a close tie-up to the committee for Imperial defence, of which he will be a member.

2. There will be no compulsion because the Government believes its objects can be attained "by voluntary action provided that action is suitably guided and organized."

3. There will be no ministry of supply with compulsory powers over men and industry until "we have done everything we can on voluntary lines."

4. Weaknesses were found in the military program during the September crisis. They will be corrected "and measures which will be necessary will undoubtedly add to the cost of armaments we had originally contemplated." (The Government originally planned an expenditure on arms of $7,500,000,000 for five years. It has been unofficially estimated the total now may reach $10,000,000,000 or even higher.)

Replies To Fascists

Mr. Chamberlain replied to German and Italian suspicions of Britain's determination to rebuild its defences with a disavowal of any aggressive intentions or desire to enter a new armaments race.

Referring to the "no more war" decaration he and Chancellor Hitler signed at Munich, Mr. Chamberlain said: "In that declaration if it is properly followed up lies the chance for a new era of peace in Europe."

"It is our firm determination," he said, "that there shall be no sitting still and waiting for peace to come."

Mr. Attlee and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal Leader, attacked the Government's foreign policy, the Labor leader claiming the democracies of Great Britain and France suffered a severe defeat at Munich. Both asked the Government to make a clear-cut pronouncement of Germany's colonial demands.

The House tomorrow will debate the Prime Minister's motion: "This House welcomes the intention of the Government to bring the Anglo-Italian agreement into force." Although no date was announced, it was expected to go into effect Nov. 15.

Coinciding with Mr. Chamberlain's announcement of quick action on the agreement, designed to end friction between the two powers in the Mediterranean, the Spanish Government accused Italy anew of lending strong military suport to Insurgent General Franco.

Operation of the Italian Pact, concluded April 16, was made contingent upon some "settlement" in Spain. Italy recently called home some 10,00 of her troops from Spain apparently in a move to speed up the pact's operation.
