Service was held in the Borden Union Hall on Sunday afternoon. The Girl Guides paraded from the town hall to the church. Before beginning his sermon Rev.Mr. MacLean extended a hearty welcome to the Guides and thanked them for their contribution to the service, The theme for the sermon was "Anxiety", and the text was, Take no thought for the morrow; for the morrow shall take thought for the things if itself. Sufficient Matthew 6:34. In pointing out the unto the day is the evil thereof. Matthew 6:34. In pointing out the reason why we should not be overanxious in these nerve-wracking days, the riscourse had two headings: First, that the earth belongs to God and man in it. The words of the text were uttered by our Saviour in the days when a dictator government had wide control over a big empire and people lived under the tyranny and subjection of Caesar, but Christianity began with a small group of men and spread in spite of wars and persecutions from country to country because the earth belongs to God and man's destiny is in his hands. Secondly, that man should trust in God's gracious power. In these days of war on two continents when the world seems to be full of strife and turmoil, our newspapers full of it, and our radios blare it from morning till night, this text, "take no thought for the morrow seems a strang message for our Lord to give us, but we are to give our minds to doing our best day by day and trust God to take care of the future. To worry and grow anxious is to mistrust God's gracious power as He says the forces of evil shall not prevail against us. A.

Painful Boils Bad Blood the Cause

When boils start to break out on different parts of the body it is an evidence that the blood is loaded up with impurities.

Just when you think you are rid of one, another crops up to take its place and prolong your misery.

All the lancing and poulticing you may do will not stop more coming.

Why not give that old, reliable, blood purifying medicine Burdock Blood Bitters a chance to banish the boils? Thousands have used it for this purpose during the past 60 years.

Take B.B.B. and get rid of the bad blood and the boils too.

Magnus, Montreal, and Capt. Jean Lafontaine and Lieut. G. Payette, both of Montreal, who went as interpreters. There were also the following members of the 1st Division Provost company:

Eric Porter, Edmonton H. F. Low, New Carlisle, Que.; Lorne G. Dagg, Holland, Man.; A. G. Gillis, Margaree, N.S.; G. W. Mudge, Cobble Hill, Vancouver Island, B.C.; Dave Mason, Hamilton, Ont.; R. P. Harrison, Minnedosa, Man.; Peter Oliver, Quebec; D. Henzie, Regina and Lyman Paige, Lennoxville, Que.

The special reconnaissance was carried out in secret at the time when the German push toward the sea against the British expeditionary force in Flanders was at its height.

Three German planes were shot down when they attacked the ship on which General McNaughton and his party travelled. Once a mine dropped by parachute from a plane exploded 20 feet away.

The report said the Canadians inspected terrain where their troops had been expected to see action. Once a telephoned report back to London had to be broken off for fear the line had been tapped when it passed through a section held by the Germans.

On the return to England aboard a destroyer, the Canadian officers passed smouldering ruins of bombed towns and long lines of bewildered refugees carrying their only remaining possessions in small bags. Some of the most distressed persons were taken to England.

The destroyer was severely machine-gunned when nearing English waters. While General McNaughton and Colonel Turner were busy completing their report, Lieut. Magnus lay prone on his stomach in the chart-room near the captain's bridge, relaying messages as bullets hit the deck like hail.

The German organizations have been closely watched by authorities since the outbreak of war. Some of their members are already in internment camps.

Recently Royal Canadian Mounted Police took action against Canadian Fascist organizations, arresting Adrien Arcand, leader of the National Unity Party, and a number of his associates in Montreal and Toronto.

Another amendment to the regulations also announced by Mr. Lapointe will make all commissioned officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police justices of the peace for the purpose of issuing search warrants. This is expected to strengthen the hands of the police and save them in organizing searches.

The organizations declared illegal are Ausl ands organization of the National Sozialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei; Deutsche Arbeitsfront; the Canadian Society for German cluture (Deutscher Bund fur Kanada); National Unity Party; Canadian Union of Fascists; the Communist party of Canada; the Young Communist League of Canada; the Canadian labor defence league; the league for peace and democracy; the Ukrainian labor farmer temple association; the Finnish organization of Canada; the Russian workers and farmers club; Croatian cultural association; Hungarian workers club; Polish People's Association; Canadian Ukrainian Youth Federation.

*S'side Trotting Park Bought By Capt. Grady

Capt. Sampson Grady, for many years on the Summerside town council, has purchased the Summerside trotting park from Dr. E. T. Tanton and W. E. Darby. Captain Grady intends to fix up the park for horse racing events and also to use it for a training centre for race horses. New stables and grandstand are to be erected, the work to be proceeded with at once. The property is at the northwest of the town and until this last year or two the Dominion Day racing events were always held there. The property is about fourteen acres, with ample space for an exhibition as well as horse racing. The Prince County Exhibition was held on the grounds for a number of years. Captain Grady is to be congratulated on his initiative in purchasing the park with the idea of reviving horse racing at Summerside. S naud last night was apparently placed by him before the cabinet at its suddenly called midnight meeting.

From the meeting the cabinet went to the Elysee Palace to see President Albert Lebrun. At this time Havas News Agency announced that the cabinet had "offered" its resignation to the President, but cancelled the report some minutes later.

No further information on the political situation was given out until the communique was issued almost two hours later from the Premier's office.

Dropping of Daladier, who held the War Ministry in the first seven months of the conflict and was Premier during the Munich crisis, was the most striking change made by the French Premier, Daladier had been under fire for some time for his role in pre-war French politics and preparedness.

(A secret meeting of Labor members of Parliament was reported in London by the Press Association to have "dealt with the question of who was responsible in the days before the war for Britain's apparent lack of foresight." Some observers believed that this meant that former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, whose position was analagous to that of Daladier was also under fire.)

Major-General Charles De Gaulle who becomes Reynaud's chief assistant at the war ministry, was promoted from the rank of Colonel only on May 25th. At that time he replaced one of 15 Generals ousted by Reynaud in the drastic house cleaning of the French army that was instituted after the German breakthrough at Sedan.

Marcel Bouthillier, the new Finance Minister succeeds Lucien Lamoureux.

New Portfolio

Reynaud created a new portfolio that of Minister of the French Family, apparently to deal with problems created by evacuation of large sections of the population from their homes.

A "Daladier" man dropped from the cabinet was Albert Sarraut, who was Minister of Education. He is replaced by Yvon Delbos, who was foreign minister during the Premiership of Leon Blum.

Ludovic-Oscar Frossard was transferred from the Ministry of Information to that of public works.

The new minister of information, Jean Provost, is publisher of Paris-Soir, the powerful French evening newspaper and one of the first French newspapers to modernize its methods of news gathering and presentation.

the sky and being visible to aircraft crews flying more than 100 miles away from the scene of the vast conflagration."

Railroads Wrecked

The Air Ministry said rail communications over a wide area of Germany were successfully attacked and "the important marshalling yards near Essen, Dusseldorf and Wesel were heavily bombed."

One British raider, flying over Germany in the pre-dawn of Wednesday, found the Oldebroek airdrome alight and night flying in progress.

"The base was promptly attacked" the Air Ministry said.

The raids were conducted in the face of intense opposition, it said, in which "several of our craft suffered minor damage."

"All but one, however, returned safely to their bases," it added.

The French air ministry said that its bombers "violently attacked highly important objectives" in the region of St. Quentin, Peronne and Cambrai, the district where Hitler today launched his attack on the French lines.

Masses of enemy troops were bombed and German columns cut up.

When the German attack was launched at dawn "a formidable air battle occurred during which our pursuit force and our assault force gave magnificent mass support to troops fighting on the ground."

Meanwhile in the House of Commons Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Secretary, said that defensive preparations are being pushed forward at British airports to fortify them against any Nazi attacks.

Have you observed the bouquet and winy flavor of MORSE'S SELECTED ORANGE PEKOE TEA? Thousands have. Some users say it leaves nothing to be desired.

BRITAIN DRILLS

the men and guns of the "Ironsides" defenders with their highly mobile and heavily armed units and planes droning watchfully and incessantly overhead, but in the spirit of the people themselves.

They have been grimly warned by their leaders to guard against every kind of "brutal and treacherous manoeuvre" and the warning has struck deeply.

Riot squads of General Sir Edmond Ironsides' invention—hardened regulars with machine guns, anti-tank guns, demolition materials and light cannon—have replaced local volunteers as the Kingdom's first line of defence.

Military observers stressing that parachutists are Germany's most daring and resourceful troops, had questioned the wisdom of the Government's earlier scheme of sending striplings and oldsters armed with rifles to fight them.

As important as the troops to the general plan of defence is the Government's drive to rout fifth columnists.

Leaders here are aware that fifth columnists in the Low Countries and France left food, gasoline and directions at strategic points for the invading Nazis and caches of arms and ammunition for parachutists.

The British Union of Fascists have felt the British drive mostly. New arrests were made all over Britain.

Dig Ditches In Pastures

Farmers have been requested to dig ditches in pastures to hinder the landing of German troop planes.

They have been asked, also, to scatter haystacks over the fields instead of putting them in orderly row and to leave harrows, reapers and other farm implements where they will cause the most inconvenience to any invaders from above.

The Government is buying up surplus livestock in certain coastal farming areas to leave the land barren of food.

While the defence forces have been braced against every kind of offensive so far used by the Nazis, they still ponder the possibilities of a new weapon striking at Britain.

One speculation here is that German scientists have evolved an amphibious tank.

Another possibility is the comparative quiet of the German undersea fleet. Some naval men believe the Germans have been ripping out the insides of old submarines and fitting them to carry troops who could be landed at quiet landfalls from rubber boats.

PICTURE PRODUCER GIVES AMBULANCES

LOS ANGELES, June 5 —(AP)—The American Red Cross today announced receipt of $25,000 from Harry M. Warner, motion picture producer for the purchase of 20 ambulances. Ten are to be sent to England, 10 to France.

Senator Proposes Bill To Alter Neutrality Law

WASHINGTON, June 5—(CP)—Senator Henry Lodge (Rep-Massachusetts) proposed today that neutrality law restrictions be altered to permit United States vessels to enter all Canadian ports and Greenland.

He offered a bill to move the eastern limit from 66 to 30 degrees west longitude. Under present restrictions, United States' ships may enter the Bay of Fundy ports of Yarmouth, N. S., and Saint John, N. B. Lodge said six months' experience had shown that the "exemption of these ports has been entirely beneficial both to Canada and the United States."

"Further consideration of our national defence needs has convinced me that Canada and the United States have many common interests insofar as defence problems in this hemisphere are concerned," Lodge told the Senate.

"It is my conviction that the whole of North America, plus the Caribbean area, is air base area—our minimum-of-defences. If this is true—and I believe it is—we should extend the privilege of shipping to Canada to include all Canadian ports—just as we now extend it to Bay of Fundy ports, Bermuda and the Caribbean islands."

FRENCH SAY

Somme anti-aircraft fire burst out in the southwestern outskirts of Paris.

A spokesman thus summed up the French position at the end of this first day of the great battle:

"Favorable."

Earlier, authorized sources had declared that the defenders on the Somme front were holding everywhere with the exception of a few points where a withdrawal to more favorable positions was indicated, adding that in such an operation there was "nothing to worry about."

The German steel-clad cars were attacking in great fleets at many points along the front. Nearly 2,000,000 men were at grips.

A 125-Mile Front

It was a struggle on a 125-mile front, red with the fire of uncounted thousands of guns—a chaos of roaring artillery, bombers, tanks and infantry action.

The worst of it all was in a bloody rectangle formed by the cities of La Fere, Laon, Anizy-le-Chateau and Chaunx, southwest of St. Quentin. The line is 70 miles north of Paris.

The Nazis centred the sharpest of their efforts in the two sectors of Amiens and Laon with a supporting attack all along the front—running east from the mouth of the Somme to the Aisne river—lashing out from a pocket they had held on the south side of the Somme at Amiens and down the Oise valley on the highway from Laon southwest to Soissons.

It was a battlefield of the last war; and a battlefield where men had died in combat through the centuries. And while Hitler was threatening to teach France an "historic lesson," Premier Paul Reynaud thus answered him: "We will fight to the end with our British ally for the liberty of the world."

Began at Dawn

The attack toward Paris began at dawn and roared on through the hot, dusty day and into the night without let-up.

The Germans stormed up first with their dive bombers and heavy artillery, smashing at the massed French infantry. Then the Nazi foot soldiers poured forward in waves, while Panzer (mechanized) columns waited for openings in the French line to start their lightning dashes.

The dry weather favored the steel-armored machines. The battle was the third great impact of the main French and German armies.

The first ended in the collapse of the ninth French army on the River Meuse; the second in the retreat of the first French army from Flanders after the Belgian surrender had laid open its northern flank.

This third and greatest engagement found France ready. The men of General Maxime Weygand, the allied commander-in-chief met these new smashes with machine gun fire against diving planes and famous 75-M guns against the tanks.

The front itself actually ran about 200 miles across northern France. It reached eastward from the sea, near Abbeville, along the Somme and Aisne and across the Meuse to the region of Longwy, which is at the junction of the French-Belgian-Lukembourg borders at the points where the Germans broke through into France.

But it was only on about 125 miles of this meandering front that great activity seemed to be centred.

Two Million Fight

While 2,000,000 men fought on the great front, aircraft was busy over a wide area. Central France was bombed; and allied warplanes bombed Friedrichshafen, the home of German zeppelins, and other objectives on the German side of Lake Constance. Six bombs were dropped on the Swiss side of the border, apparently inadvertently, but there were no casualties. Munich was bombed for the second time in two days. Other objectives were Ulm, Mannheim and Ludwigshaven. The threat of new raids on Paris itself caused the government to decide to close the primary schools.

Summerside Teachers Back From Magdalens

MISS DOLLY MATTHEW

Miss Dolly Matthew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Matthew, Summerside, and Miss Clarisse Blanchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Blanchard, Summerside, returned on Saturday from eight months teaching at Protestant Schools on the Magdalene Islands. They were met at Souris by Mr. and Mrs. Matthew and motored to their homes. Both girls enjoyed their stay very much and found the people very kindly and hospitable. In October they attended a Teacher's Convention at Grindstone the principal town of the Islands and were very delightfully entertained by the residents. Grindstone is not the Capital, but is the chief mercantile centre. Amherst is the capital and has a Court House and Jail. Grindstone has a very modern hospital, which is in charge of the Grey Nuns. Miss Matthew taught at the Church of England school at Grand Entry. The school was very modern, only being built six years ago. There are only six families in the settlement with 15 pupils between them. There was a Government Nurse stationed at Grand Entry. Grand Entry is one of the many little Islands that make up the Magdalenes. Grand Entry's original name was "Coffin Island" but the name is not used now. It is connected by sand bars from the mainland and at low tide, motor cars can drive round the beach. The sands are very white and hard. The nearest Island is Grosse Isle, where Miss Blanchard taught in another English settlement where there is a two room school. Here is the English Church of the settlement. Grand Entry also has a French settlement with a school of 4 pupils. There is a Red Cross Nurse at Grosse Isle. The climate is very much like the Island but not so much snow. Fishing is the chief livelihood of the people; although there are valuable gypsum beds near Grand Entry. The Island is very bare of trees and no Maples are to be found. A program of reforestation is to be carried out this year if possible. In these scattered settlements crops are put in by hand, but at Grindstone more modern methods are used. Two houses in Grindstone had electric light, one run by a windmill and the other by an engine. The population is about 8,000. The people are happy and contented with the simple things in life having logging parties and dances in the fall. There are large quantities of sheep reared by the inhabitants. Many young men joined the Navy when war broke out and everyone kept up to date with the war by radio.—S.

SWAN LOSES SWANS

PERTH, Australia—The Swan River here has lost the birds for which it was named 250 years ago. Apparently swans resent the intrusion of motor boats and yachts, and have moved to quieter waters.

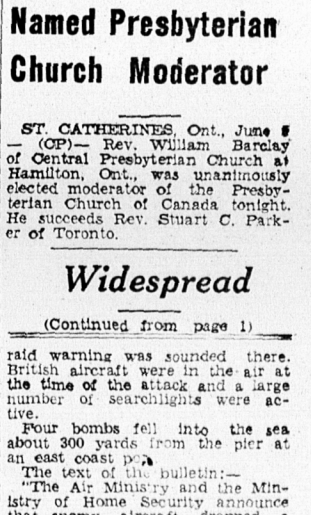
LONDON—Second Lieutenants Duncan Sandys, J. Bellenger and H. B. Trevor Cox, all members of parliament, have been promoted to a full lieutenancy and temporary captaincies, respectively.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up" Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.



Alberton Troop

Alberton Troop had a hike last week to the neighborhood of Kildare Capes and passed a good many of their Second Class tests on their journey.

A softball league has been formed between some of the Troops and already games have been played between Alberton and Tignish, and Alberton and Elmsdale. These games are, of course, all played outside of meeting times.

A conference of Leaders from Tignish, O'Leary, Elmsdale, and Alberton is planned for June 10.

Patrol Leaders from Tignish, Alberton, Elmsdale, and O'Leary who attended the Patrol Leaders Course some months ago, will be holding a weekend camp to complete their course on June 21. This camp will be in charge of Assistant District Commissioner S. J. Davies.

Scout Parade

To the great disappointment of all Scouts and Cubs the annual parade was cancelled last Sunday. The District Commissioner reported that many troops were unable to attend. It is to be hoped that some future date favorable to all may soon be selected.

Rev. W. Barclay Named Presbyterian Church Moderator

ST. CATHERINES, Ont., June 5 — (CP)— Rev. William Barclay of Central Presbyterian Church at Hamilton, Ont., was unanimously elected moderator of the Presbyterian Church of Canada tonight. He succeeds Rev. Stuart C. Parker of Toronto.

raid warning was sounded there. British aircraft were in the air at the time of the attack and a large number of searchlights were active.

Four bombs fell into the sea about 300 yards from the pier at an east coast port.

The text of the bulletin:—

"The Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security announce that enemy aircraft dropped a number of incendiary bombs in rural districts of Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, Norfolk and on the Thames side during the night, apparently in an attempt to locate and attack R.A.F. bombers.

"Anti-aircraft defences were in action.

"No damage was reported except that one house in Lincolnshire was set on fire.

"In addition to incendiary bombs high explosive bombs were used in two of these attacks without causing any serious damage.

"Six persons received minor injuries."

Terrific Explosions

At several places along the east and southeast coast there were sounds of terrific explosions last night and early today.

Beds were shaken and windows rattled at one [illegible] and heavy batteries [illegible] the bursting of shells of anti-aircraft were [illegible].

The sounds of roaring motors were heard as the R.A.F. fighters went up to the attack.
