JAIL CABINET MINISTER

TOKIO, Oct. 1.—Japan's most sensational political scandal in a decade was climaxed this afternoon by the indictment and imprisonment of Heikichi Ogawa minister of railways in the late Tanaka cabinet, who was examined at the public procurator's office in connection with various charges of bribery. The amount is estimated at from $250,000 to $1,000,000.

The offences were alleged to have taken place when grants of private railway building permits were made, and also when the government purchased several private lines shortly before the downfall of the Tanaka ministry.

NEW C. N. R. CHIEF HAS WIDE EXPERIENCE—A wide and varied experience extending over a period of forty years, and a service in different capacities in all the divisions of the Canadian National Railways in the Maritime Provinces is the record of Mr. J. D. MacNutt, the new superintendent of the Prince Edward Island division and successor to Mr. T. B. Grady, who entered upon his new duties here yesterday. Mr. MacNutt was born at Stewiacke, N. S. He entered the service at the age of fifteen as telegraph operator at Wellington, N. S., and in a short time was promoted to the position of station agent, serving at different points in Nova Scotia. His next promotion was to the position of train despatcher, and in this capacity he served for 23 years. During the Great War he was stationed at Moncton, as inspector of train despatchers and during this time visited the Island in his official capacity. When the soldiers were returning from overseas he was stationed at Halifax in charge of the debarkation. For the next two years he was assistant superintendent of the Truro division, and was then transferred to the Campbellton division in the same capacity. Last year Mr. MacNutt was promoted to the position of superintendent of the Campbellton division, which he held until his present promotion to Charlottetown.

BALDWIN CELEBRATES HIS 62ND BIRTHDAY

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Mr. Baldwin spent his 62nd birthday at his Worcestershire home. Like M. Briand, the Unionist leader is a keen pig breeder and finds much solace from politics on his farm, though one has never heard that his rashers have won quite the same reputation as the product raised by the French statesman.

Lord Crewe, who spent many years as Ambassador in Paris, once congratulated M. Briand on the flavor of his bacon, and ever since he has received annually a supply from the Briand abattoir.

Middle-sized, stocky and well knit in figure, Mr. Baldwin does not look his years, and he enjoys sound health. His rapid rise, beginning in a lucky combination of circumstances, is amongst the wonders of modern politics, and few will deny that he has made good in leadership. He is generally regarded as typifying the John Bull characteristics of consistency and political honesty. When he was Prime Minister no chickens came home to roost because of embarrassing promises or declarations made to the electorate. Virtue of this singular kind is not always rewarded in politics, as Mr. Baldwin's present respite from the cares of office proves, but electoral failure has in no way menaced his leadership, which he retains unchallenged.
