DRIVER'S LICENCE

"This is your licence to drive," said he. Then turned to the next in line; And I had the right once more to see. At the wheel of that car of mine.

The colour of hair had changed to grey. From brown in the three years sped; But I thought as I carried my card away. Of the more that he might have said.

"Here's proof that your state believes that you Are a man who will drive with care. That never a reckless act you'll do. On a crowded thoroughfare.

"This licence to drive is on you bestowed. As one that your state can trust. By night and by day to be fit for the road. So live to that faith you must."

PERFECT KNITTERS

New knitting machines have been perfected to produce seamless silk stockings that keep their shape. This modern machine puts vertical stitches at the heel to keep it from slipping under the foot, and two-way stretch stitches at both heel and toe to prevent ankle sagging.

Hints on Etiquette

To overlook the little rudenesses of others you meet as you live your daily life, will help to be happy as well as showing your good breeding. Speaking rudely to such people only places you on their level.

PLACES TO PUT THINGS A PROBLEM TO EVERYONE

Everybody's problem, whether man, woman or child, and whether they live in a house or an apartment, is having enough places to put things.

No woman ever has enough closet room for her clothes, for linens or for general storage; nor enough dresser drawer space for linens and odds and ends; nor enough dining room and kitchen cupboard and cabinet space for silver, dishes, glassware and cooking utensils.

As for her husband he has the same trouble finding room for all his belongings, and if he has a hobby, or brings work home to do in the evenings, what he most wants on the world, and seldom has, is a cubbyhole all his own, where he can spread himself to his heart's content.

So far as the children are concerned, they, of course, don't care. It's their mother who worries about toys left lying around the floor and on the stairs for people to fall over; about hats and coats and galoshes being put down just anywhere.

Modern designers have all this very much on their minds, and they bring new ideas to ease the situation.

You should have place in your kitchen where you can sit down to work, and remember to use it to save your feet and back.

"All I know is what I read in the daily newspapers," said the late William Rogers, and twelve million Canadians get most of their information from day to day in exactly the same way.

Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

"It's a queer winter this," Jock observed by way of a greeting; this morning. At the time, he was carrying a sack of feed on his shoulder, across the yard to the piggery, where pens are occupied now by potential mummia pigs with of course an odd youngster destined perhaps for the barrel. With his lead it was a bit difficult to maintain an upright position along the icy path. It is indeed a strange January with only fringes of snow on the roadsides or decorating the aids of the woods and groves. But James has in mind what could happen pointing out other winters when "the year's snow" and plenty of it came after falls. We must not be too sanguine then in our hopes for a next snowless one. Fields and meadows have a bare appearance that is rather misleading, for they too hold patches of ice which may disappear entirely along with that on the roads and yards; now that rain washes lazily down the banks.

TRYSKIM MILK ON PAPER LAMPSHADES

If you're looking for a good cleaner for your paper lampshades, well, try Tryskim milk. Tryskim shades or those with a shellac, varnish or waxlike finish.

First dust the shade inside and out with a soft, clear cloth, soft brush, or a hand vacuum cleaner. Then pour a little milk on the shade and roll it around. As the milk darkens with dirt, use a fresh supply. If the milk seems to be before continuing. Sponging the milk on with a soft cloth hastens the cleaning—however, if the cloth

Bottle Cleaning

Mix some soapy water and coffee grounds together and pour into the soiled or discolored glass water bottle. Allow to stand for an hour or so, and then shake vigorously at intervals. Finally wash and rinse with clear hot water. The results are very satisfactory.

The Food Chopper

When using the food chopper spread a newspaper under the table where the chopper is used. If this is done all the spilled pieces can be picked up at once.

The Carpet Sweeper

Try using a wire hair-brush for taking out the hairs and threads from the brush of a carpet sweeper.

Todd-Hyde Nuptials

The marriage of Miss Anne Kennedy, daughter of Mr. Harry Hyde and the late Mrs. Hyde, Charleottetown, P.E.I., to Mr. Charles Earl Todd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Todd, Brantford, P.E.I., took place on Wednesday, Nov. 20th, 1946 at 6:45 p.m., at the home of the bride, School Street, Charlottetown.

The ceremony was performed by Reverend Blair MacPhail, minister of Brantford United Church. Many relatives and friends of the young couple were present. The bride, given away by her father, met him at the stairs and entered the living room to the piano strains of "Here Comes the Bride."

The bride looked lovely in a floor-length dress of white satin with sweetheart neckline and long pointed sleeves. Her floor length veil of fine net trimmed with silver silk was caught by a halo trimmed with a string of pearls, set of the groom. Miss Lois Abbott, niece of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and was gowned in a floor-length dress of fine blue net with taffeta with sweetheart neckline. Her shoulder length veil of blue net was caught by a halo trimmed with apple blossoms. She carried a bouquet of red roses and lily of the valley ferns with white satin streamers. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, set of the groom.

Next morning the bridal couple motored on their honeymoon to Moncton. The bride travelling in white and the groom in brown fur trimming and brown accessories.

Upon their return the popular young couple will reside in Brantford where the many friends wish them every happiness.

Yets Used to Pin-Ups Find Difference in Wives and Flancess

Many wives have waited in loneliness and anxiety for the return of their husbands from the war, denying themselves all pleasure while they worked to keep their homes together and to rear their children without the help of a father, only to reap the bitter harvest of finding out that their sacrifices had been in vain. The long absence had estranged their husbands from them. Love was dead. And all that their G. I. Joes wanted was a divorce.

Thousands upon thousands of engaged girls have had a similar experience. The boys, who had been ardent lovers when they left them and for whom they have knitted sweaters and packed boxes and written enough letters to paper the universe, have lost their taste for their old sweeties and instead of presenting the lassies with the wedding rings they expected, they have given them the brush off.

Even the bobby-soxers, who have cut their teeth on romantic stories about dashing young soldiers who were coming home from the war by battalions and who were all crazy for girl friends and dates and going places and having fun, are asking WHERE are these glamorous creatures who were to be the answer to a maiden's prayer for a "steady," but who have failed to show up as per schedule.

FIN-UPS SPOILED BOYS

Neither the forsaken wives nor the maidens all forlorn have been able to explain the current attitude of the men who once loved them, but have ceased to love them. And the mystery might never have been solved were it not for a young army officer who has unriddled the riddle.

He says that it is all because of the pin-up girls and the magazine cover girls and the model girls, whose pictures during the war have lived every barrack and tent and hut and fox hole, and that these so cultivated the soldiers' taste in feminine pulchritude, that they cannot decide upon lesser beauty. With them a girl has to have Marlene Dietrich's legs, Betty Grable's figure and Hedy Lamarr's eyes to be worthwhile, and any female with just an ordinary assemblage of features doesn't rate a second glance, still less having any money spent on her.

Furthermore, this young officer deposes that the boys at the front fell victims to their own wishful thinking. Gazing continually upon the pin-up beauties, they sub-consciously endowed their own wives and girls with all the exotic attractions of these professional good-lookers, and when they got home and saw that their Mary Joes were not Lana Turners, they just couldn't take it. Hence the deserted wives, and the jilted fiancées, and the poor little bobby-soxers having to depend on the boy next door for a date.

It is a sad story, sisters, but do not grieve as those without hope. Have a little patience; and all will yet be well. Give men time to adjust their eyes to look upon the common, or garden, variety of woman and they will realize that they couldn't stand a world full of Miss Americas. Also, that a woman may be short on looks and long on other good qualities, such as a sweet disposition, brains, knowing how to cook and a sense of humor.

Also, while men worship beauty abstractly, they seldom marry it, as witness the number of ladies with husbands. They admire the living picture, but they let some other man frame it and hang it on his walls. And, anyway, there is no arguing about taste. When G. I. meets some girl with the come-lither look in her eyes, he will wonder what anyone ever saw to admire in those pin-up girls.

Good Eating for the Lunch Boxes!

and so easy to mix!

ALL-BRAN RAISIN BREAD

1 egg
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup molasses
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
2 tablespoons melted shortening

1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
2 1/2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/4 teaspoons salt
1/4 cup chopped raisins

Beat egg well. Add sugar, molasses, milk, shortening (melted and cooled) and All-Bran; mix well, let stand until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and soda together; add to first mixture with raisins; stir only until flour disappears. Bake in greased loaf pan lined with waxed paper in moderate oven (350°F.) about 1 hour.

Extra good and so different! This rich flavoured only Kellogg's All-Bran can give... and that marvellous soft, light All-Bran texture. Perfect for the lunch boxes because it's packed with nourishment and keeps fresh. Clip the recipe now.
