

BINGO

Holy Redeemer Hall
TONIGHT
8.30

The prizes are the same as those prevailing at other Bingos in the city.

Drive out ACHES

JUST RUB IN MINARD'S
"KING OF PAIN" LINIMENT

35¢

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)
MRS. LIGHTFOOT LOOKS A-HEAD

Tomorrow's disconcerting way is turning out to be today.
—Old Mother Nature.

Mrs. Lightfoot the Deer was head of the family. There was no doubt about that. All the Green Forest knew it. It was she who decided when they should rest and where, when they should move on, and what they should eat. It was she who led the way. Lightfoot simply tagged along. Of course the twins did whatever their mother did. Snow carpeted the Green Forest, but as yet it was not deep enough to bother them. Of course they left footprints wherever they went, tracks easy to follow if any one wanted to follow them. They didn't care. The season of terrible guns was over, so now they didn't care who saw those tracks. Any enemy other than Man whom they might fear could follow them as easily without snow as with it. Good noses are to be depended on even more than eyes. So the snow did-

"I'm looking ahead" replied his mother.

"I'm looking ahead," replied his mother. She was looking down an old wood road.

The young Deer looked down the old road, too. He didn't see anything worth looking at. He said so. "I'm looking ahead to the deep snow," replied his mother.

"The young Deer" stared at his mother. Then he stared down the road again. "Where is the deep snow?" he demanded.

"It hasn't come yet, but it will," replied his mother.

"Then how can you be looking at it?" demanded the young Deer.

Mrs. Lightfoot paid no attention to this. "Now," said she, "I know just where we will make our yard."

Both twins stared at her with a funny look on their faces. What in the world was mother talking about? "What is a yard?" asked one.

"I never heard of such a thing," said the other.

"It is the place where we will spend the rest of the winter after the snow becomes too deep for us to travel about," replied Mother Deer.

"Do you mean we will stay right in one place and not move?" asked one. The twins were still very young, much younger than they liked others to think they were. Snow and ice were still very new and strange to them.

"You'll be able to move all you will want to, but it will be in just one part of the Green Forest. We won't be able to go from place to place as we do now," replied Mother.

"We've been doing too much of that. If you ask me," grumbled Lightfoot.

"Nobody asked you, my dear," replied Mrs. Lightfoot, and added, "You don't have to stay with us, you know."

Lightfoot did know. Mrs. Lightfoot and the twins didn't depend on him at all any more.

"Did you say we will make a yard?" asked one of the twins.

Mrs. Lightfoot nodded. "How will we make it?" the other twin wanted to know.

"You'll find out when the time comes," replied Mrs. Lightfoot. "And I think it won't be long now."

She added as she lifted her slender nose to test the wind. There was the feel of snow in it. Indeed, a few flakes were beginning to fall.

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

AUDACITY

There can be no denying that a particularly "nervy" bid, made under propitious circumstances, can have remarkable success, especially when the opposition is first rank. The writer sincerely hopes that no one will accuse her of advocating the sort of bid made by South in today's deal, but at the same time she must confess to a sneaking admiration for its audacity!

South dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Total-point duplicate.

42	10 7 5	6 3	AKJ985	K108	94
AKQJ9	N	7 5	AKQJ82	10 9 8 4	7 4 2
6 5	W	6 3	AKQJ2
7 5	E	10 6 5
AKQJ9	S

This remarkable series of bids took place at one table:

South	West	North	East
2♥	2♠	3♠	3♠
2♥	2♠	Pass	Pass
Dble.	Pass	Pass	Pass

North opened the king of clubs, and South played the deuce of hearts. North thought for a long time, obviously afraid to continue with clubs, because if South's seven-bid had been "honest," he could hardly have a spade in his hand. After long consideration, however, North decided to lay down the club ace. When South played the diamond deuce on this trick, it became evident that he could not want to shift to either red suit, and North therefore led a third round of clubs. South ruffed and collected two diamond and two heart tricks. Thus, the seven-spade "sacrifice" went down seven tricks, giving North-South 1300 points.

Undoubtedly, most readers will look incredulously at South's jump to seven hearts, holding as he did two losing spades and having no reason to believe that North could control the spade suit. It was, however, the very audacity of South's bid that went so far to insure its success! South, an expert, was fully aware that he could probably not make even six-odd—but he was also aware that if he bid for a grand slam, vulnerable, in the face of a suit named by one opponent and supported by the other, he would have an excellent chance to get away with his bluff. Obviously, West believed South—and acted exactly as many other fine players would act!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

by Zane Grey

by Ham Fisher

by Carl Anderson

by Edwin

by George McManus

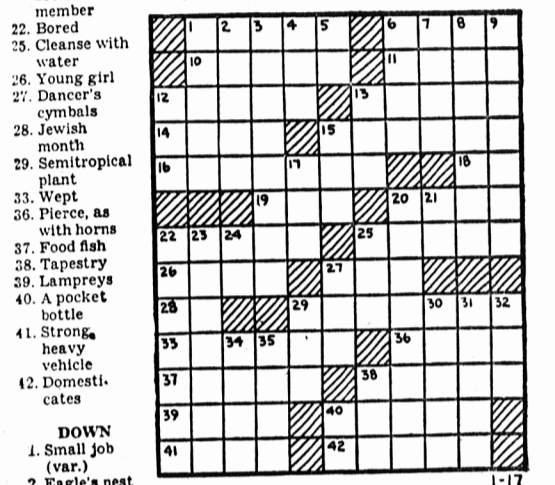

by Westover

by Harry Hoenigsen

DAILY CROSSWORD

- ACROSS
- Genus of the dog
  - Sums up
  - Antecedent
  - Frothy
  - Relieves
  - Canal through New York
  - Female ogre
  - Closing
  - As a hawk's eyes
  - River (Chin.)
  - Before
  - Ship's bottom member
  - Bored
  - Cleanse with water
  - Young girl
  - Dancer's cymbals
  - Jewish month
  - Semitropical plant
  - Wept
  - Pierce, as with horns
  - Food fish
  - Tapestry
  - Lampreys
  - A pocket bottle
  - Strong, heavy vehicle
  - Domesticates
- DOWN
- Without a name
  - Withered
  - One who works manually
  - At a round distance
  - Large roofing slate
  - Spread grass to dry
  - Outer garments
  - Attached by the base
  - Egyptian god
  - Ovum
  - Undivided
  - Anger
  - Measure of weight
  - Missile weapon (So. Am.)
  - Intensely active
  - A wing (Rom.)
  - Feet (abbr.)

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
AXYDLBAAXR IS LONG FELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptoglyphic
GZJGCC UV VHNLUVY.—NLUC U EG.
YKEM KC K AEUVJUAT.G HS NLG
LUYLGCN PKTBG UV TUSG—NGEGVJG.

Yesterday's Cryptoglyphic: BUT AS SOON AS THEY SEE THE WINTER OF FORTUNE. THEY ALL FLY AWAY—CICERO.

QUICKIES

by Ken Reynolds

"About this violin you got for Junior with a Guardian Want Ad—I think he's outgrown musical toys!"

L'L ABNER

by Alex Raymond

RIP KIRBY

BLACKHEADS

Blackheads go quickly by a simple method that dissolves them. Get two ounces of peroxide powder from your druggist, apply with a hot, wet cloth gently over the blackheads—and you will wonder where they have gone.

by Al Capp

by Alex Raymond

TILLIE THE TOILER

by Harry Hoenigsen

PENNY

by Harry Hoenigsen