SKILFULLY HANDLED

Hawyers were then passed to the tug Cruiser, Neptune and Alice R. and the Athena was pointed up the harbor and proceeded to her berth.

Had the ship proceeded ahead and struck the scow nothing, it is believed, could have saved the two men on the ship carrier.

The shipping men said yesterday that full cargo was needed by steamers entering the harbor and that the channel should be kept clear when liners are coming up.

They said that the scows at the end of long hawsers were a menace to incoming and outgoing boats as it was impossible for the tugs to tow the carriers straight ahead, and the wide sheer of the scows blocked the whole channel.

The Athena had a very rough passage across the Atlantic and during the greater part of the run the steamer encountered heavy gales and high seas which continually swept the vessel's deck.

On Wednesday, Feb. 5, a huge sea broke over the liner, smashing in the forward hatch and carrying away the breakwater, but the Athena stood the storm well and no serious damage was done.

FOUND. A woman and her brother lived alone in the Scotch Highlands. She knitted gloves and garments to sell in the Lowland towns.

One day when she was starting out to market her wares, her brother said he would go with her and take a dip in the ocean.

While the woman was in the town selling her work, Sandy was sporting in the waves. When his sister came down to join him, however, he met her with a very face. "Oh, Kirstie," he said, "I've lost me weikit." They hunted high and low, but finally she might scolded down decided that the waves must have carried it out to sea.

The next year, at about the same season, the two again visited the town. And while Kirstie sold her wool in the town, Sandy splashed about in the brine. When Kirstie joined her brother, she found him with a radiant face, and he cried out to her, "Oh, Kirstie, I've found me weikit." "Twas under me shirt."

ONE AT A TIME. A justice of the peace was holding court in a little Missouri town. One of the attending counsel held against him an old grudge. While the judge was delivering an opinion he was interrupted by the braying of a jackass without.

"What noise is that?" shouted the justice. All of suspicion that the untried attorney was putting up a job on him. "It's only the echo of the court, your honor," said the attorney, smiling.

Not in the least disconcerted, the justice resumed his delivery. Soon, however, the attorney interposed with technical objections, just as the jack brayed again.

"Hold on?" retorted the retreating justice; "one at a time, if you please."

THE VICE DEFEAT SAINTS (Continued from page one) was declared. The second half was the Connaughts the play being counted mostly to the Abbies' end of the rink.

The game became fairly lively the Connaughts forward doing the work. Three goals equally divided until within a few minutes of the finish when the Connaughts again scored making the count 4-4. A few minutes remained to decide victory but neither team scored and the game ended a tie.

The Connaughts wished to play to a finish but this the Abbies declined to do. James McMillan was referee and Urban Gillis judge of play.

The following was the line up of the four teams for last night's games. Victorias: Goal S. D. C. McAskill, Point McLellan, Cover Urban Gillis, Burns, Forwards McQuarrie, Inghram, E. Dougan, Prowse, Sweeney, Callaghan, Stanley Perry.

Connaughts: Goal Abegweits, McAlleer, H. Morgan, Herrell, F. Hennessey, Purcell, Cover C. Campbell, Forwards Murnaghan, L. Campbell, McCarey, G. Hughes, Reddin, G. Hughes.

The second game was contested between the Victorias' and the St. Dunstons. The game started fairly fast, Inghram shortly after starting made a fine run and scored the first goal in the Saints' territory.

It was not long ere the Vics again scored. Dougan broke clear with the puck, made a good run but failed to score. Play returned to the Saints' end and another score was added to the Vics' count. The game was now 3-0 in favor of the Vics.

Several fast combination plays were made on both sides, and things began to look brighter for the Saints when McQuarrie with a fine run added one point to their credit. This was followed shortly by another goal, the game being 3-2 in favor of the Vics. Ridd and Burns made a fine run but failed to score. Inghram made a clever play placed to the Vics' account one more score. The play continued fairly fast until the end of the first half both teams making brilliant plays.

The second half commenced at a lively pace. The puck was kept in the Saints' territory but owing to their strong defence nothing serious occurred for the first ten minutes, when the Vics again scored. Dougan made a fine play navigating his perilous course up the ice and was successful in scoring. The game was now 5-4 in favor of the Vics and but twenty minutes remained to play. The Vics forwards, the wonder of the hockey fans, strolled down the ice and landed number 6 goal. A few minutes later they repeated the feat. The Saints although being crushed and staring defeat lost none of their stamina, Urban Gillis being especially to the front for his team. The Vics scored another goal. The Vics kept the rubber in the Vics' territory and succeeded in adding another score. The game ended shortly with the score 5-5 in favor of the Victorias.

Several penalties were handed out to both teams. Dougan and Gillis played a fine game for the Vics while McLellan yesterday afternoon here for the Franklin Park Ice, in being transported across the city, nearly kicked its way to freedom, out of the crate in which it was confined, while passing down Arlington street.

Twice the elk made attempts to gain its freedom and the last one nearly brought success. The elk, four in number, arrived at the North station Monday afternoon from Yellowstone Park, and yesterday morning Curator Benson sent a squad of men with a four-horse caravan to transport the newcomers to Franklin Park.

Everything went well until Arlington street was reached, when one of the male members of the quartet, longing for freedom, commenced a kicking match that bystanders say rivalled any like stunt a vicious mule ever attempted. The park attendants, however, got the jump and secured the boarding with strong ropes.

When in front of 19 Arlington street the fractious animal, which had been 11 days confined in its cage, began kicking once more, knocked all but one piece of the boarding free and stood in a fair way for freedom. A crowd collected, but none got within reach of the sharp horns that every few seconds flew out through the opening and made the passage way to freedom larger with each kick.

The attendants worked with vigor, but as fast as one piece of wood was replaced another would be kicked sky high. Curator Benson arrived just when his services were most needed. He had been superintending the arrangement of temporary quarters for the elk, and was awaiting their arrival when word reached him of the accident. Summoning one of the Park auto trucks, some boarding was placed in it and orders given to drive to the scene of the trouble. Curator Benson with the attendant, after considerable effort, secured one of the elk's legs, so that his kicking ability was lessened. Then the other leg was pushed back into the crate by means of a piece of plank, and as soon as the animal's body had been pushed into the box, one of the workmen on top pushed a plank between the ropes and box, making a barrier that the nimble hoofs could not remove. It was then an easy matter to nail on the boarding that the truck had brought along, and a few minutes later the caravan started on its way towards the park with two attendants on guard to see that his elkship should not start another exhibition.

The animal's hind legs were somewhat harked by coming in contact with the ropes and boards, but outside of that he seemed unharmed.

BOSTON, Feb. 18 (Special)—Visions of an elk hunt on the Common presented themselves vividly before Boston sportsmen yesterday afternoon when one of the big elk sent here for the Franklin Park Ice, in being transported across the city, nearly kicked its way to freedom, out of the crate in which it was confined, while passing down Arlington street.
