THUR. DAY, APRIL 10, 1913

A WELCOME NEW DEPARTURE.

The awakening interest in agriculture with the subsequent request for up-to-date information on various phases of agricultural work, has led the Provincial Department of Agriculture to the publishing of bulletins on various questions of interest to our farmers. These bulletins are to be short and concise, and being prepared by men who are experts in their various lines, will be of immense value to all interested. Local conditions and influences are taken into consideration in the preparing of these pamphlets, and they are consequently of more value than similar publications from United States or even from other sections in Canada where climate and environmental are quite different. The first bulletin is now available and is a treatise on Spraying. This pamphlet is prepared by Mr. Charles M. Williams, B. S. A., Representative of the Fruit Division of Ottawa, and Fruit Inspector for the Island. In this pamphlet the spraying of large fruits, small fruits, and potatoes, is taken up. The proper mixtures to use, the time of application, the pest to be controlled, and other questions of importance, are fully discussed. One very important point that is generally overlooked, the proper method of diluting lime sulphur is thoroughly explained. As all orchardists know, lime sulphur is the most efficient fungicide in use today, but if applied too strong, the foliage will be ruined by burning, and too weak the spraying will be ineffective. The only method of safely ascertaining the correct dilution is by the use of the hydrometer. The use of this instrument, together with the required strengths of lime sulphur for the various applications, is fully explained. All farmers intending to spray their orchards or other crops this season, and others should get a copy of this bulletin before the supply is exhausted. It may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture, Charlottetown.

FOX SPECULATION AND HAPPINESS.

"Riches, to the wise and good in public or in private life are the means of virtue, and best serve the noblest purposes; but in the use and not in the bare possession lies the merit." In other words, the worth of anything is the happiness it will bring; and happiness means neither more nor less than the state of mind resulting from a worthy endeavor so to act as to leave the world a little better than we found it.

The attainment of happiness is the end or goal of all our endeavors, yet few of us ever get very far in the pursuit of it. With primitive man, whose wants are simple and mainly physical, it is comparatively easy to furnish the means of happiness. His ambitions are not mental and are easily satisfied, so he pursues the even tenor of his way as contented and happy as the birds singing above his head. With advancing civilization the pursuit of happiness is more complex, and comparatively few ever get beyond mere contentment; indeed, it is estimated that in an average community, 10 per cent may be calculated as blissfully happy, 10 per cent in anguish, and 80 per cent in moderate contentment.

Now it is a question whether one should aim at mitigating the woe of the 10 per cent or adding to the satisfaction of the 80 per cent. The answer is naturally in favor of the former, yet how few make the attempt! It is so much easier and less disagreeable to minister to the moderately contented than to dive down below the surface and bring solace and a ray of happiness to people who have suffered horribly, bodily or mentally. The horrible excites repugnance, even antipathy, and it is so much more agreeable to talk hopefully to and otherwise assist those who may have experienced nothing worse than the average sorrows and disappointments of life.

Besides, the pursuit of wealth in order to attain to happiness is much more in accord with our desires, though the attainment in actuality may turn out to be ashes in the mouth.

A recent writer suggests a profoundly interesting census of a given number of people of different ages, sexes, races, occupations and social strata which should put such questions as the following and compare and classify the answers: 1. Are you glad or sorry to be alive? 2. What are the main elements of your happiness or unhappiness? 3. What has been your greatest joy, your worst suffering? 4. What do you most desire, most dread? 5. Would you prefer the survival or extinction of your personality at death? 6. What means would you recommend for bettering the lot of human kind?

There is not a shadow of doubt that so direct and effective a method of diagnosis would prove invaluable, but it is impracticable and visionary, for most people would answer not what they actually feel of want, but what is assumed they feel and want. All the same the questions should prove a very good test for self-application, and according to the answer would be the measure of one's happiness.

ness or misery in this life.

These few thoughts have been suggested by the present feverish unrest and desire of so many of our people "to get rich quick," to attain what they consider a share of happiness, by means of fox speculations. It is a moot point whether we are not sacrificing the substance of contentment for the shadow of blissful happiness. Time was, and not so very long ago—so recently, indeed, as to be included as a characteristic of our Islanders in the current issue of public literature about the Island—when we could be described as a most thrifty, contented community with no extremes of riches or poverty and practically no ambition beyond that of Pope:

Happy the man whose wish and care A few paternal acres bound, Content to breathe his native air In his own ground.

This is undergoing a process of change; the farmer, the merchant, the clerk, the porter, the housewife, the maid are all in a measure discontented with the labor they formerly delighted in, because the returns seem poor and mean compared with the profits in foxes. They have seen some of their friends or neighbors reap a rich harvest in foxes and rise to affluence and wealth. They, too, wish to share in the spoils, forgetting that in the most outstanding instances fortunes in foxes have not been the outcome of a day, but of years of patient toil and struggle against heavy odds.

To gratify the clamant demand for fox investment we have promoters flooding the market with fox propositions, and Islanders of every class and description anxiously and eagerly buying up the stock, talking foxes, dreaming foxes, praying foxes to their own mental, if not moral, detriment.

We have not a word to say against that spirit of "divine discontent," which leads to the betterment of society, the development of a community, or the advancement of mankind. That is a healthful sign and seeks the greatest happiness of the greatest number. But that is not the spirit animating most of the "get rich quick" elements that have been caught in the fox maelstrom. It is the desire of unearned gain, "the basest mind's delight," the gambling spirit which risks all in the throw of the dice; and we know full well that he who plays for more than he can lose with pleasure, stakes his heart.

How many hearts, we wonder, in this fairest of Islands, are at stake at the present moment? How many contented people of yesterday have become feverishly unhappy anticipating the outcome of their deal? How many would be only too glad were it possible for the human mind to permit them to experience that scientific impossibility, the mingled feelings of contentment with their present lot with the anxiety inseparable from the gambling spirit?

LUCY B. DODGE REUNITED TO FAMILY.

LONDON, April 8—Lucy B. Dodge, grand-daughter of the late John Bigelow, at one time American minister to France, and the daughter of the Hon. Mrs. Lionel Guest, was reunited to her family this evening. She communicated with her mother, saying that the publicity given to her disappearance had induced her to write to her relatives.

Miss Dodge left her home in London with a maid on April 3. She had become wearied of a life of idleness and desired to earn her own living. A reward had been offered for information concerning her whereabouts.

IN MEMORIAM

REV. MR. HARPER.

The funeral of the late Rev. Henry Harper of Port Hill took place on Monday at one p. m. Owing to the rain service and lack of conveyances at Port Hill, clergy and others east of Port Hill were unable to be present. Grand Master John Profit of the Masonic Fraternity and Grand Chaplain the Rev. J. Abbott Winfield, also Messrs. John Dunn, H. Clarke, A. Forsythe, Captain Larkin and a number of others went from Alberton, also Mr. E. Gorrill and others from O'Leary. The funeral was taken charge of by the Masonic Lodge of Port Hill. Although the day was somewhat stormy a large gathering assembled at the Port Hill Rectory where a short service was conducted by the Rev. J. A. Winfield, the Rev. Mr. MacKay of Port Hill offering the prayer. Immediately after the large procession started for the church, headed by the Masonic Fraternity. The church was crowded, large numbers having to stand. The solemn and magnificent service of the church was rendered by the Rev. J. A. Winfield (at the late Mr. Harper's request). The hymns sung by the choir and large congregation were Days and Moments Quickly Flying, Hark, blessed Are the Dead, and Rock of Ages. The sermon was one that will not be forgotten, the text being Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. After speaking upon life, its duties and preparations, the Rev. Mr. Winfield paid an eloquent tribute to the deceased clergyman.

Speaking with great emotion, he said: "Our brother's work on earth is done, suffering from a disease which caused acute pain and suffering yet borne with a cheerfulness not often seen. God's finger touched him and he slept. His ministry was a remarkable one. After his ordination he entered on his duties in this parish, his only parish, and for nearly thirty years labored unceasingly until the call came. As a Priest of God he was faithful in his Holy duties. The call of a sick parishioner was to him a call of help which he cheerfully undertook. For long years his feet trod this parish which became a familiar battle-ground to him. His teaching was sincere and helpful to the members of his parish. And often you and I have heard the expression of parishioner and outsider alike. He was a good man, and herein lay his power in this Province. At times he knew what it was to want and to abound, to be full and to be empty. Yet his living faith in his God was an inspiration to his family and parishioners. As a husband and a father he was ever solicitous for the welfare of his dear wife and children, and though he is not yet his personality will be felt for the many years to come. As a member of the Island clergy and a constant attendant at the D. C. meetings he was always a pleasure to meet him there. His smiling face, his cheerful greeting, his friendly grip, his helpful advice to his brother clergy and delegates was always something to think about." The latter years of his life were perhaps not so active on account of physical infirmities, yet where duty called a danger he was never wanting there. Like most country clergy and with large parishes he had many calls upon his strength perhaps unknown to anyone outside of his family, yet which told even upon a large frame and healthy body, and as we look back over the many years of his ministry we are amazed at the work he accomplished. Personally I found him a true brother and friend, and for the fourteen years I have known him I realized the thoroughness of his convictions, the solidity of his friendship, the charm of his personality and the power of his Christianity. His faith, ten tried, yet he rejoiced a hope and at the close of his ministerial career with his work accomplished surely St. Paul's victorious exclamation was his, Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. The bustle and toil of active warfare is now changed into peace and rest. What a change. I hear no more the busy beat of time or fluttering pulse nor does one moment seem to differ from the rest, it is the hush of eternity.

Priest of God well done Rest from thy loved employ Thy battles fought, thy victories won Enter thy Master's joy. After the interment the Masonic service with its beauty and solemnity was rendered by Worshipful Grand Master J. Profit and Grand Chaplain J. A. Winfield, assisted by all the brethren present.

SYDNEY LINEMAN INSTANTLY KILLED.

SYDNEY, April 7—Richard Peters, foreman of the Western Union Company's linemen here, met with almost instant death today about noon, when he came in contact with an electric wire while making repairs. Peters was repairing some damaged wires on Falmouth Street, and was on a Western Union Pole. While attempting to separate the C. B. Electric Co's high tension wire from the ground wire at which he was working, the end of the loose wire partly ran up his sleeve above the glove on his hand, and he received almost the full force of 22,000 volts. He was removed from the pole and medical aid summoned and physicians did everything possible for two hours to resuscitate the man, but their efforts were without avail.

SOLICITOR IN TROUBLE.

CALGARY, April 9—Hugh E. Gillie, former city clerk is arrested here charged with misappropriation of $200 while acting as solicitor for J. M. Gray. He furnished bonds and was released.

MILLIONS FOR MINING.

SYDNEY, April 8—Horace Mayhew, of Broughton, England, managing director of the Cape Breton Coal, Iron and Railway company, will arrive here for the summer about May 1st. The company is preparing to work actively its properties at Mira. Two hotels, a manager's house, three cottages, boiler and engine house, machine shop, and laborers cabins have been erected. Three slopes have been opened up, 2 1/2 miles of track have been built, and a contract for three miles additional has been let. A 1,000 foot coal shipping pier is also to be built. The total estimate for construction work is one million dollars. It is expected that the employees in construction work will number 500 before the end of the year.

DR. FRIEDMANN CONTINUES TREATMENT.

NEW YORK, April 8—Dr. Friedrich Friedmann resumed treatments with his anti-tuberculosis vaccine Sunday after a week's interval, inoculating sixteen patients at Seton hospital in the presence of the government's physician supervising the series of tests now in progress. All the patients were suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis and in an advanced stage of the disease. His supply of vaccine became exhausted when he treated his sixteenth patient.

A woman brought in just after Dr. Friedmann had used the last of his culture was a decidedly advanced case. When her physician learned that the vaccine was exhausted he took Dr. Friedmann aside. "He asked me to inject a bit of sterilized water into the woman to make her happy," Dr. Friedmann explained afterwards. He said she only had a few days to live, and it would let her die happy at least. I told him that I had a cure for tuberculosis and not against death, added the Berlin specialist.

THE RECEIPTS OF SUFFRAGETTES ARE ON THE INCREASE.

LONDON, April 7—The women's social and political union, the organization of the militants in its annual report, claim that the receipts for the past year increased $15,000 over the previous year, the total income being $142,510. The report records in a triumphant manner the progress of militancy. It gloats over the destruction that has been wrought and the extension of the scope and vigors of the campaign, "human life alone being immune from attack."

It is stated in the report that it is not liberal alone but the whole Parliamentary coalition, including the official labor party that is marked for persecution and says: "The parallel between Pharaoh visited by plagues of ever increasing severity, and the liberal government visited by militancy more and more drastic is complete."

A tribute is paid to the male militants for "showing fine comradeship and great courage." Home Secretary McKenna is assured that his bill in regard to releasing hunger strikers, when they are ill, and then re-imprisoning them until they serve out their sentences will be an utter failure. During the year 367 suffragettes were arrested and 311 imprisoned. Of this number 131 went on hunger strikes and 89 were pumped.

TREATIES GO BY SCORE.

WASHINGTON, April 8—The possible violation of over a score of treaties between the United States and foreign countries thru one provision of the new tariff bill that proposes a concession in tariff on goods brought in by American built ships, is giving concern to officials of the state and commerce departments.

The section under consideration would reduce by 5 p. c., the tariff on all foreign goods brought to this country "in vessels built in the United States, and which shall be wholly the property of a citizen or citizens thereof." Treaties now in force with Great Britain and with a score or more of other nations, to provide that the same tariff shall be levied whether brought in American ships or in the ships of the country from which the imports come. The proposed discount in tariff would encourage the commerce in American built vessels, according to the claims of the makers of the tariff bill. Should officials of the commerce and state departments decide that it constitutes a violation of treaties, however, the matter will probably be laid before members of the ways and means committee, with a suggestion that some provision be made to meet treaty obligations or that the disputed section be taken out of the bill.
