SOCIAL EVENING—On Tuesday 11th inst a Social evening was spent at the home of Mrs. J. A. McKenzie Spring Park Road by the Willing Circle of the King's Daughters of Trinity Church. The President, Mrs. A. Henry presided, and associated with her, was a large attendance of members. The recital by the Charmade Ladies Chorus, depicting French Canadian life as set forth by Dr. Drummond, was so unique and popular, that it was decided to repeat it under the auspices of the King's Daughters. This recital was under the capable direction of Mrs. Hugh Miller, with her well trained Chorus, and received large patronage. Due notice of the Recital will be given later.

Railway Notes

Charles Doull of the car ferry has moved his family from Carleton to Borden for the winter months.

Mrs. Clarke, wife of Charles Clarke, C. N. R. carman, Summerside, and son, Ernest, were visitors to this city last Saturday.

The local chairman of the various divisions of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees convened in Moncton Monday for a meeting of the general grievance committee, Atlantic region. W. B. Monteith, of the C. N. R. freight staff is the representative from Charlottetown division.

Charles A. Meikle, chief steward of the car ferry and Mrs. Meikle, have as their welcome guest at their home in Summerside, James McLeod of Charlottetown.

Citizens who heard the C. N. R. whistle blow Saturday morning at 7:50 when all machinery is supposed to be idle, were of the opinion that a wrecking crew was being called; but when it sounded at 8 o'clock, all fears were allayed and news was received that the shops were going full blast, making up for the holiday observance.

We extend congratulations to W. W. Brown, C. N. R. trainman, and Mrs. Brown, who recently celebrated the 77th anniversary of their marriage. The occasion was observed Monday evening, when four tables of bridge were enjoyed. Mrs. Bell, wife of H. Bell, C. N. R. conductor, won the lady's prize. A delicious luncheon was afterwards served by the hostess.

Horace Brodie arrived last week from Calgary to be present at the funeral of his father, the late J. C. Brodie, retired C. N. R. carpenter.

Mrs. McDougall, wife of Neil McDougall, C. N. R. carman, recently entertained a number of her friends at her home, Upper Prince Street.

Mrs. Christopher, wife of Frank Christopher, C. N. R. trainman, entertained at five tables of bridge last week. During the evening refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by her daughter Miss Allen.

Miss Margaret Kerwin, daughter of Robert J. Kerwin, C. N. R. fuelman, left this week for Boston where she will visit with friends for several weeks.

F. J. McDonald, pursuer on the car ferry, Borden, is still suffering from the effects of an injury received some time ago when the loading platform fell while being lowered into place.

The death of Edward Hennessey, C. N. R. engineer on the "Charlottetown" has caused widespread regret among the citizens of Borden, where he was held in the highest esteem. Mr. Hennessey had 18 years service and was considered a very capable and obliging employee. His remains were interred in Seven Mile Bay Cemetery. A widow and one child survive.

T. H. Carroll, Moncton, C. N. R. supervisor of work equipment was in Charlottetown this week.

Increased Number On Payroll Of Sydney Steel Plant

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 11.—Sydney's steel plant has a larger average working staff at present than at any time during the past 13 years, a statement by officials of the employment department indicated today.

The average daily force was 3,200 men in a payroll account of 3,600—about 400 higher than the monthly average in 1935. More than 50 new employees were taken on last week. Officials expected the same daily average of employees would be maintained throughout the winter months.

Assures Senate Of Co-operation

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Conservative members of the Senate, now in a majority in the Upper House, will not employ their numbers to the embarrassment of the government's minority, but will co-operate sincerely, diligently and without prejudice in reviewing legislation. This was the assurance given to Senator Raoul Dandurand, government house leader, by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, in the Senate tonight.

In the past five years the Liberal Senators had worked earnestly and helpfully with their Conservative colleagues. The latter were now in a position where they could reciprocate and Senator Meighen assured Senator Dandurand that this assistance would be forthcoming. Mr. Meighen's observations came at the close of a brief speech he delivered in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Girls Forgot To "Thank You"

(By The Canadian Press) MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—Learning what it costs to finance an "evening out" should be part of the education of all women students, is the view expressed in the McGill Daily by a group of men undergraduates.

"Today too many women take being asked out for granted," one student commented. "They often looked bored and are apt to be rude in this respect, even to the point of not thanking their escorts for the thoughtfulness and trouble involved in giving them an evening's pleasure. If these same girls were forced to ask the men out for a few months and pay the bills they would realize their privileged position."

The comment was aroused by the fact the co-eds have not been in any hurry to avail themselves of the Leap Year privilege of doing the asking.

(By The Canadian Press) LONDON, Feb. 12.—While modern civilization advances to ward's streamlined trains and television, modern fashions are taking a record leap back through the ages. Styles are being copied from stone fragments of the ancient Chinese art of A. D. 618.

The stately Bodhihatta of the T'Ang Dynasty, loaned to the Chinese Art Exhibition from the Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. collection of New York is a central figure of inspiration for London fashion designers.

A new waistline for the goddesses of 1936 has been derived from this headless image—considerably lower than it has been for some time.

Ronald Morrel, famous English designer, has copied the costume in lime-stone grey and underglaze red chiffon with a beading of sequins and moonstones decorating the neckline. The drapery and waist frill has been cunningly reproduced with pleating and tucking.

The wooden statue of Yuan-Cin of the Sung Dynasty, (A. D. 960-1279) has also been studied for inspiration by fashion creators. A dinner gown made of black silk net has something in common with this god's attire. The gown is about five inches from the ground with long, ermine panels back and front which continue from hip frills. Chenille pom-poms in various shades give color to the high neck and back.

MANTOBA CLAIMS FLYING TRAPPER

(Canadian Press) BERENS RIVER, Man., Feb. 12.—Fur traders and fishermen here claim that F. Scheutze, Berens River, was the first pilot-trapper in Canada.

Scheutze obtained a pilot's license in Winnipeg in 1934, bought a moth plane, and flew his family more than 100 miles from Berens River to his trap-line northeast of the settlement.

Scheutze's 45-minute flying time was a far cry from the former's three week trip made by canoe to his Whiskey-Jack River home. His machine was damaged beyond repair by a gale last summer.

The pilot-trapper was born in Brazil and came to Canada with a brother in his early youth.

HOPPER THREAT IN SASKATCHEWAN

(Canadian Press) REGINA, Feb. 12.—A dreaded grasshopper may return in greater numbers to some areas of Saskatchewan, particularly about Regina, S. H. Vigor, field crops commissioner, said here. One area threatened covers a strip six to eight miles wide, running north and south of this city, and includes the Qu'Appelle Valley.

The greatest danger zone, said the commissioner, lies in the Macklin-Wilkie district of central Saskatchewan. Eight municipalities west of the line between Regina and

Colorful Women In U. S. Senate

(By The Canadian Press) WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Death and gallantry have combined to push ajar the exclusive doors of the Senate for two senatorial widows, and may open them for a third.

(The Senate of Canada has two married women members, Hon. Cairine Wilson of Ottawa and Hon. Eva Falls of Bethany, Ont.) The United States Senate's first and only elected woman member is Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas, who was appointed to the office in November, 1931, after the death of her senator husband, Thad Caraway.

Mrs. Rose Long has been named to succeed her husband, the late Huey P. Long of Louisiana. Mrs. Margaret Schall will campaign in Minnesota for the seat of her late husband, blind Senator "Tom" Schall, recently struck and killed by a motor car.

At the time of her appointment, the naming of Mrs. Caraway was regarded as a courteous gesture. But when November, 1932, rolled around she took to the hustings on her own, and won in a campaign that gained much color from the assistance given by Senator Long, her Louisiana neighbor.

Caraway on the floor, and the Senate for the first time in its history will include two feminine members.

Appointed by Gov. James A. Noe of Louisiana, to fill her husband's unfinished senate term, Mrs. Long when she arrives is expected to kindle anew the curiosity concerning her which gained little gratification during her husband's incumbency. She seldom appeared with him in public since he feared violence and preferred keeping his family out of danger.

The two women senators, like Mrs. Schall, took an active, although quiet, part in their husbands' political careers. All spent their early married lives actively interested and busy in their homes. And all three are the mothers of three children.

In August, 1934, Mrs. Caraway's son Robert, was killed when thrown from a horse.

Mrs. Caraway had to jump feet foremost into speech-making in 1932. She laughs now and admits she was told by Senator Long her first address was the worst he ever had heard. But she wound up the campaign a seasoned "stumper."

Mrs. Long is the type of woman who can grace a mansion as well as a cottage and probably will fit into the Senate as a quiet and interested member. She has no special political plans and hardly could be expected to attempt to follow the unheroic course of her husband. She probably will map her own course as she goes along.

Saskatoon are believed to be "severely infected."

Large supplies of poison bait have been made available, and a vigorous campaign will be waged against the pests.

Sees Barn, Motor Equipment Disappear

JASPER, Pa., Feb. 11.—A farmer near here lost a barn, two trucks, two automobile motors and some scrap lumber but gained a swimming pool when a lime sink caved in suddenly in his back yard.

A small son of Steve Bird noticed the barn disappearing yesterday, and called his father. A new truck also was going over the edge but Bird led it to trees with ropes and finally pulled it out.

The hole, now about 40 feet in diameter and nearly full of water, was still widening today. Bird sounded it and played out 90 feet of

KNOW WILD WEST DAYS

(Canadian Press) SASKATOON, Feb. 12.—Stepping into the limelight like some figure from early history, William Black, 96-year-old hunter and plainsman of the west, gives some vivid recollections of pioneer days.

The still hearty nonagenarian, fully recovered from a severe illness, celebrated the event with some fresh reminiscences of his youth.

His opinion of Col. Wm. Cody, the legendary "Buffalo Bill," is far from flattering. The real heroes of the plains and great buffalo hunters were Wild Bill Hickok and Kit Carson. "Buffalo Bill" was surrounded with a halo that was false," the old buffalo hunter said.

Mr. Black was born in Huntington, Que. He joined the American army and as a trooper often came in contact with the colorful heroes of the early west. He fought in most of the Indian wars in Nebraska and hunted buffalo throughout the Dakotas and Wyoming.

Conservatives Hold Caucus

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Conservative members of the Commons held a caucus today with Mrs. George Black, member for the Yukon, attending. It was the first time a woman had been present at a Conservative caucus of House members.

In view of the official opposition having only 40 members it has been decided there will be no official pairs with the government for the present at least.

It was generally expected that opposition leader Bennett would be financial critic in all fiscal and financial matters.

The Conservative members entered into a general discussion of the parliamentary situation and also of the last election.

Conserve Liquid Manure

The importance of getting the liquid manure on the land with the least loss, is emphasized by the fact that one-third to one-half of the value of manure may be lost by neglecting to save the liquid portion. The urine is much richer in nitrogen and potash than the solid excreta, pound for pound.

Moreover, in urine the constituents are present in a soluble and readily available form and so, pound for pound, they are worth much more than those in the solid excreta. Liquid manure can be most effectively conserved, we are told, by using sufficient absorbent litter. Purely out straw will absorb about three times as much liquid as when uncut.

Saskatchewan has reason to be grateful to the hard-working beaver. In the north he has prevented forest fires by clearing out hot spots in the timber, and storing up water behind his perfectly constructed dams.

BEAVERS WILL BE PROTECTED

(Canadian Press) REGINA, Feb. 12.—The Saskatchewan government has declared a closed season for beavers in recognition of the work of the industrious little animals in helping reclaim drought-stricken areas of southwest Saskatchewan, by building dams.

The beaver, migrating more than 100 miles south of its former colony haunts, built dams and stored water in small streams in dried out areas. Conservation commission engineers welcomed their advent and every encouragement was given to founding new colonies. Small bodies of water stored by beavers proved invaluable in reclaiming dry areas.

Saskatchewan has reason to be grateful to the hard-working beaver. In the north he has prevented forest fires by clearing out hot spots in the timber, and storing up water behind his perfectly constructed dams.
